BIG BOLD FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS

What to do about a drinking problem in the family

Get all this fresh flavor– and cut down on calories, too!

A fresh, sunny slice of Sunkist lemon can do more for food than just about anything in this whole live world. And for only four measly calories per tablespoonful.

It fills out bland flavors, skinnies down fat ones, tames the wild ones and puts a lively lift into all your cooking. Use it instead of fattening sauces or dressings for meat, vegetables, fish or salads.

Fresh Sunkist lemons are low in sodium, high in potassium. Make great little flavor lifters for salt-free diets.

Cut one open and give it a squeeze. When you add a little lemon, you add a lot to life.

Carrier home air conditioning

T ct is, Carrier home air conditioning is one of the f ality products that have come down in price d recent years.

oday you can air condition an average three-bed- r home for only about $900. That's the installed] f adding cooling to a satisfactory forced warm air l g system.

f course, the figure will likely be more for a larger or less for a smaller one. But in any event, the f air conditioning is less than many other home vements. And few others mean so much.

Air conditioning can change your whole outlook on life. Even in the hottest weather, you and your family sleep better, eat better, feel better. Allergies are fewer. Rooms are cleaner. Entertaining is easier.

Carrier does all this quietly, dependably and at low operating cost. That is why Carrier equipment air conditions more homes than any other make. Your nearby Carrier dealer offers convenient terms. Call him. He's listed in the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory.

The night a sitter stood tall

By Esther Wagner

When Teresa was fourteen, she had already done a fair amount of baby-sitting, but tonight was certainly going to be different. She didn't know the kids, for one thing; their parents were neighbors, but newcomers. One boy was six and the other two. They'd sounded all right, and seemed all right at first, but after an hour, the atmosphere was so tense with their teasing and whining that Teresa saw she'd have to put the little one to bed early. She went to the kitchen to get the older one a soft drink, to sweeten him while she did the job.

She glanced at the list of instructions by the kitchen phone. She had a little mental vision of the Kents, her employers, sitting down about now to their dinner party; and of her own parents at home, her father reading, often laughing or scowling and then reading aloud to her mother, who would be working at her desk probably, writing letters.

Teresa sighed a little, and began to clank around in the refrigerator. She was just reaching for a ginger-ale bottle when wild screams of pain and terror cut through the silence of the house. A tremor of shock rocked her; but she carefully—almost slowly—pulled her hand from the refrigerator before running to the living room. She heard her mother's calm voice telling her not to panic when something happened.

She found the baby on the rug, dripping blood from a large cut in his forehead, yelling at the top of his lungs. Over by the window, stunned, stood the older boy. At his feet lay his pile of wooden blocks. But one of them was missing—it lay beside the baby.

Teresa thought: This is enough to . . . But she shut off her mind firmly from thinking about herself and what she had a right to feel. She had never seen her mother so caught up in her own feelings that she couldn't act, not even when Teresa's sister had been knocked down and brought in unconscious, not even when the car had skidded into a tree and three children began to bleed and yell. Calm and pale, her mother had tended to them after switching off the engine, and waited till she got back home to be sick and faint.

Teresa scooped up the baby in her arms. She grabbed some tissues from the box she had been using for his earlier tears. Stitches? The word stood in her mind as she wiped. She thought of the telephone table and the number of the house where the Kents were dining. But before any new move, she thought of a time when she had simply yelled for help, and then found things weren't really so bad after all. Her father had grinned on that occasion, but she had sensed that he was somehow disappointed—and she had been disappointed, too.

She went to the kitchen, murmuring softly to the baby, and sat him on the sink top to look closely at his cut. She sponged, and saw there wasn't going to be much more blood. She remembered her Girl Scout days, and a good scoutmistress who, thank goodness, had made everybody do everything themselves, instead of just showing them. She couldn't find bandages, but the baby was calming, and confidence took hold.

Then she remembered: There are times when you aren't the best judge. She hadn't seen the block strike; had the blow been hard enough, perhaps, to cause a concussion? She crossed to the phone table, sat down with the baby, and found a doctor's name and number. Luck was with her. He was at home; gave her a few instructions, advised her not to call the Kents yet, and said he'd come over.

He was there soon, and stayed only a few minutes. He had nothing but praise for her work. He told her to put the baby to bed, and not to bother calling the Kents. He left a note for them saying that the cut was not serious, scowled and scolded a little at the six-year-old, and departed.

As she picked up the baby again, she heard a strange, sobbing sound—and knew a new responsibility. She called the older boy and sent him upstairs for the baby's pajamas. The panic and guilt in his small face troubled her. She thought of his littleness, his newness in the neighborhood, his new house and school. Her mother always told her: use your imagination. There had been a time when Teresa thought you couldn't turn imagination on and off like a faucet, but she had learned at home that you could train yourself to call on it in need.

Now she spoke matter-of-factly to the boy, telling him he must help her. Together they prepared the little one for bed. Then she made the older boy go upstairs with her, put clothes away, help her with songs.

"You're not mad?" he asked her, downstairs again.

"No. It was an accident. But so silly—it could have been bad—we'll have to talk about it." How often she'd heard that! Sometimes she thought her parents talked too much, always trying to make her see what they had in mind. But now she found she too could talk. She said, "I'll have to tell, but I'll tell them you were silly, not mean. I'll tell them how sorry you were, and how much you helped."

She got the boy settled with crayons, deciding that it was not yet time for him to be in the dark and alone.

She felt a sudden slight panic, thinking about the Kents, and having to tell them this whole story. Feeling wobbly, she called up her mother. She knew her voice was thin.

"Just a minute, dear," said her mother. Teresa could hear her speaking to her father. Then came his voice, calm, smooth, but very masculine, very deep, a part of his whole position in the family, for he was always the rock, the last word.

"Do you want your mother over there, Tess?"

"Oh, yes," she thought. But deep inside her mind, she knew and honored what they thought of her, what they wanted for her, what they were preparing her for. So she spoke the words she knew he wanted to hear, and which she really hadn't wanted to say, and which even as she spoke them filled her with a complicated joy.

"No, I don't think so," she said. "I think I can manage."

What to do when there's NOTHING to do

By Jean George

Vacation thrills soon wear off for school-age youngsters. Before long, days begin to drag. Every mother knows the symptoms—plaintive cries of "But there's nothing to do!" The time to nip this kids-under-foot disease is before August dog days bring it to a daily crisis. Here is the prescription. You'll find it's medicine your kids will love to take.

Parachuting without risk

An old sheet torn into squares makes wonderful parachutes. Tell kids to tie cord to the four corners and fix a weight to the cords. When dropped from any elevation, chutes will blossom and float gently to ground.

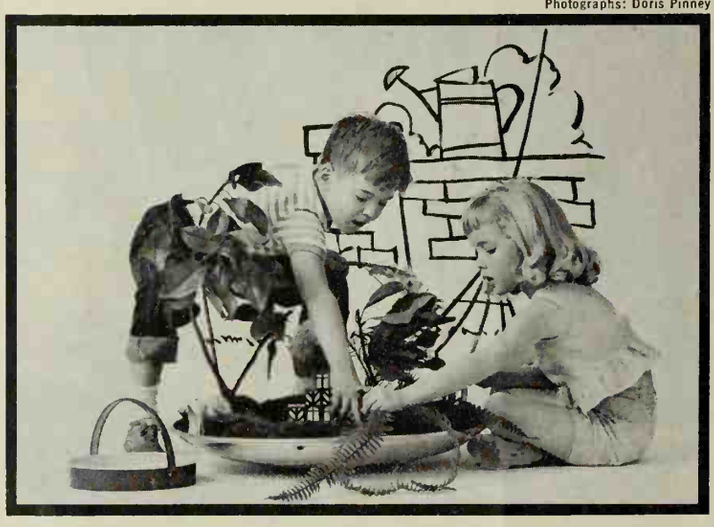
Best fun is wrapping pebble in chute and tossing it high into air or out over a field. To occupy youngsters longer, have them decorate their parachutes with crayon designs.

Wastepaper basketball

Paper is wadded into balls, a line is marked off, and the children throw the balls into the basket. Three hits rate a point. If a youngster misses, he must stand on his head before he can get another turn. Penalty for missing a second time is a headstand plus jumping rope ten times.

Third failure brings those penalties plus running around the house. Soon, penalties are more fun than victories.

Photographs: Doris Pinney



Summer garden in a saucer

Winter's flying saucer is filled with dirt; greenery is transplanted from the garden. Moss from woods can be added, streets laid with pebbles, houses built from blocks. Toy animals add interest. Older brother can build battery-operated water wheel to lend movement to the scene.

Variety is as limitless as a creative child's imagination. Layout can be changed during the whole summer.

WHAT EVERY MAN SHOULD THINK ABOUT BEFORE PAINTING A HOUSE

Some people, it seems, still think "paint is paint"... that there really isn't much difference between one brand and another. This can be a mighty expensive idea.

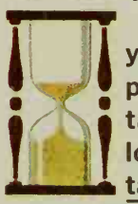
The fact is, selecting the right brand of house paint—and making sure it is applied properly—can save you literally hundreds of dollars over a period of years. Here are some reasons why.

It costs just as much, in labor or time, to apply a lower grade "bargain" paint as for the best you can buy. Cheap paint may even cost more, because it often doesn't have enough pigment to give a good coverage job. So you have to use more paint or apply more coats.

The house paint that will last the longest—and look the best throughout its life—will save you the most money in the long run. Trying to "save" $5 or $10 or $20 by using lower priced house paint can cost you hundreds of dollars in needless repainting expense.

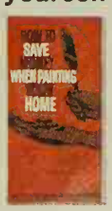
The average thickness of two coats of house paint is 4/1000th of an inch. You are depending on this thin film of paint to protect and beautify the exterior of your house for years—under extreme conditions of sun-heat, driving rain, snow and sleet. Certainly you want the finest protection that modern chemical science can provide.

Remember that the quality of a house paint is something you can't see when you buy the paint.



It only shows up months or years after you've done the painting job. So the important "hidden ingredient" to look for is the quality reputation of the maker.

Your Sherwin-Williams Dealer offers two types of house paint which give you the finest quality money can buy—SWP Oil-Base House Paint, used on more homes than any other brand in the world—and the amazing new easy-to-apply A-100* Latex House Paint. Their superior quality and durability have been proved on homes in all sections of the country—and by years of weather exposure tests by the Sherwin-Williams Paint Research Laboratories, largest in the world. Your dealer will gladly advise you which type is best for your house, whether you do the job yourself or hire a painting contractor.



Ask your Sherwin-Williams Dealer, too, for a copy of the free booklet—"How To Save Money When You Paint Your Home"—which gives you many useful house-painting tips. For the very best in paints and paint service, always look for this familiar sign...

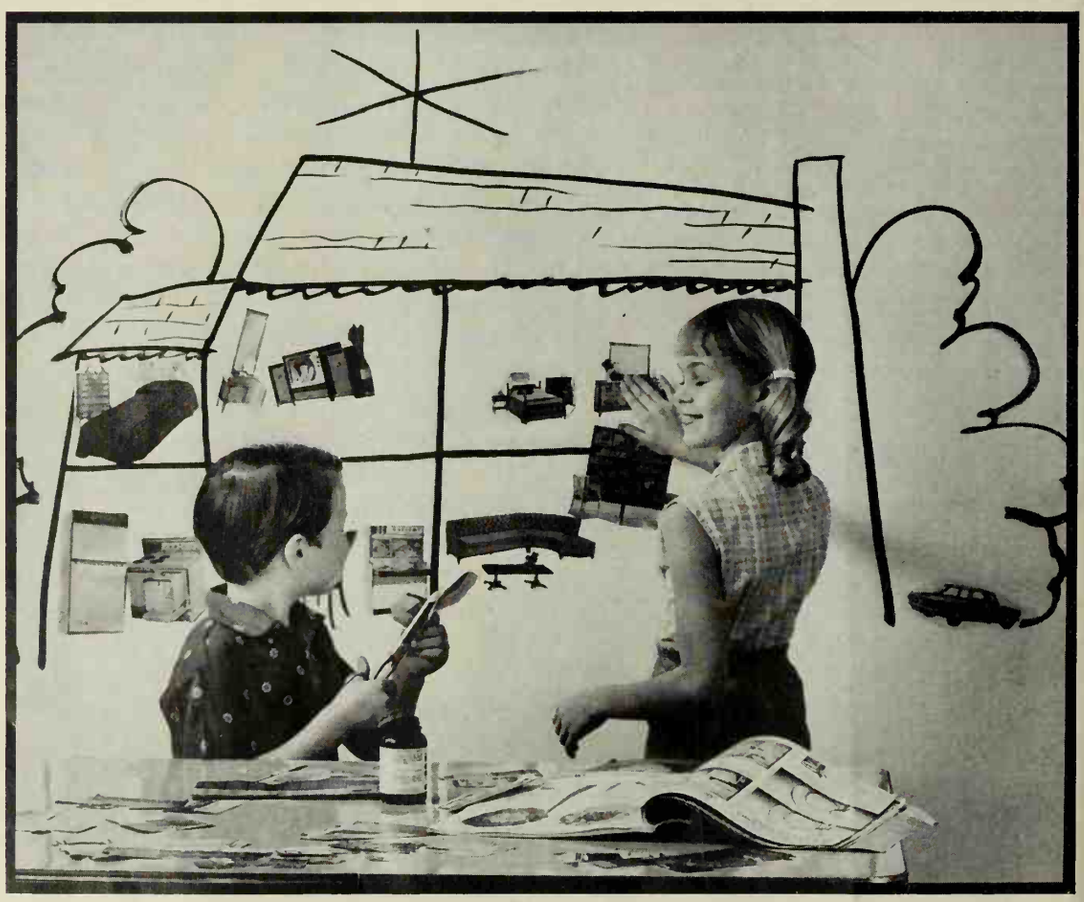
Having fun with things that fly

When your child is tired and cranky, there is nothing like a balloon—whether it's on a string or just free to bounce around where it pleases.

Kites are fun on windy days. Send the kiters to an open field or park, with string, sticks, kites, paste, rags for tails, and newspapers to mend holes.

Playing their lines, youngsters can "fish the sky" for hours on end.



Pasting up a dream house

Cutouts are fun for girls, but boys also join this project if told to paste up a space station.

Sketch a paper house—or a satellite—on a large piece of paper and pin it to the wall. Mark in the rooms beforehand—the limitation adds spice to the game. Your children then fill in people and objects cut from old magazines. Don't be surprised if you find tigers in the basement, though.

FULL HOUSEPOWER WIRING provides plenty of circuits, switches and outlets throughout the Wests' home. "We never have to worry about blowing a fuse no matter how many appliances we run at once," says Mrs. West to neighbor Betty Rada.

"MY ELECTRIC CLOTHES DRYER has no flue," says Mrs. West, "because it needs no flame to make it work. And electric clothes drying is so gentle everything comes out wonderfully soft and fluffy."

"THERE'S MORE THAN ENOUGH HOT WATER for the whole household," Mrs. West says. "And since our flameless electric heater didn't need a flue, we were able to save space by tucking it away in a storage closet."

"FLAMELESS ELECTRIC COOKING is a real blessing," says Mrs. West. "It's so cool—even in the summertime. And because there's no fuel combustion, I spend lots less time cleaning kitchen cupboards and walls."

"EDITH EVEN FEELS A LITTLE GUILTY," says Mr. W "because she doesn't have to work so hard clean house. But to tell the truth, with electric heati everything stays so clean it's amazing. And I t it's wonderful that she's got more time to spen with the kids."

THE TOTAL ELECTRIC HOME that proudly displa Gold Medallion is equipped with flameless ele heating and appliances, Full Housepower Wir and light for living. And tomorrow it will still modern as it is today.

Shadows on the wall

When night comes and feet are tired, light thrown from a projector—or a reading lamp or even a candle—brings shadow figures to life. After hand-formed rabbits, chickens, and ducks grow dull, lacy cutouts revive interest.

These cutouts become marvelous designs by snipping here and there until, say, an elephant is full of stars. Opaque, dark-colored paper brings the best effects.

First aid for underfoot kids

Children love being sick when they aren't. Here they play out tragic but heroic battlefield injuries.

They also like to play doctor and nurse, with the usual "discussions" over whose turn it is to play what. Suitcases can be packed with toy thermometers. Torn sheets make fine bandages, and sticks serve as splints. Be sure to supply lots of raisins for pills.

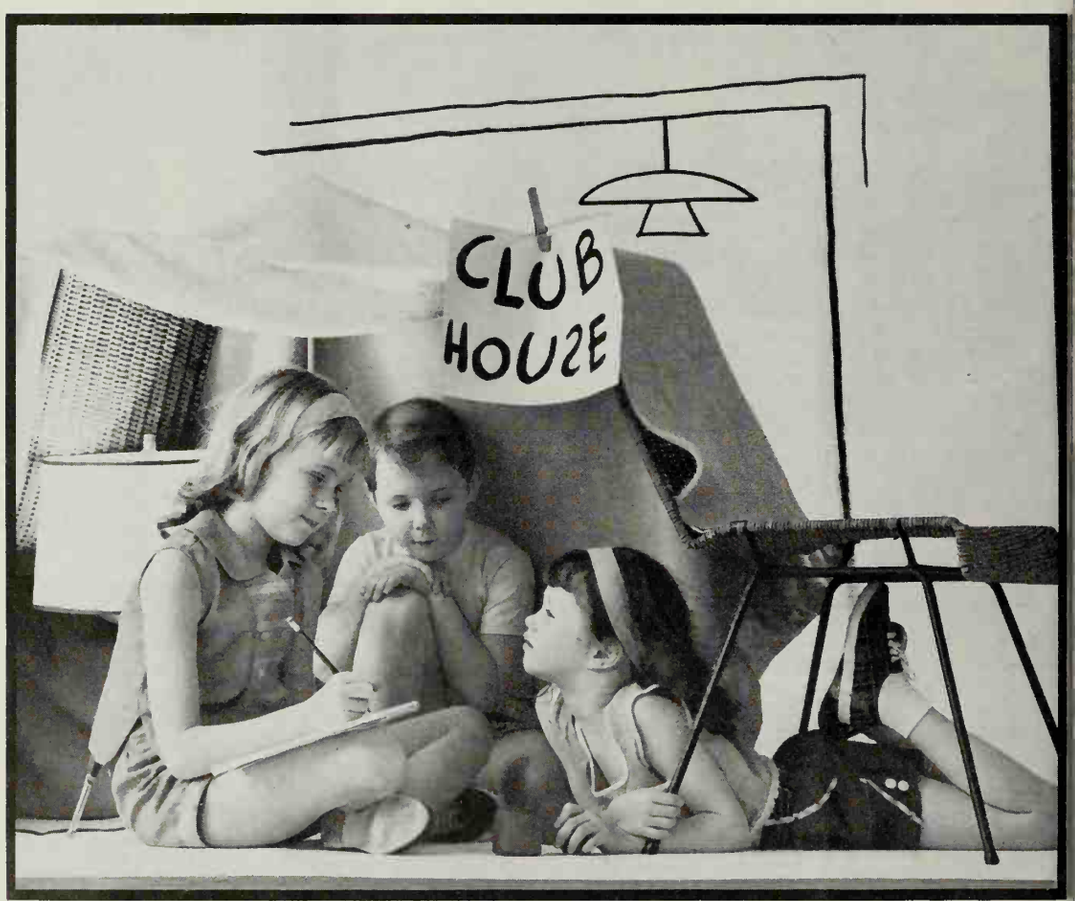
Summer school with ups and downs

This game can be played indoors or out. It requires a set of steps, and at least two—but, if possible, three or more—children.

Mother appoints the first teacher. His pupils sit on the bottom step, and he asks them questions.

Correct answers advance pupils one step; misses send them down one. First one to the top step becomes the next teacher.



A club for under-the-chair men

Most important thing about a club is the club house. It can be several chairs, or a card table, with blankets draped over. Youngsters can elect presidents and vice-presidents, and write simple rules for members.

They will also keep busy designing membership cards. Selection of a name will take quite a bit of doing—and you might even suggest a dish-washing club!

Eight easy ideas for teen-age rooms

You don't need a lot of money or expensive equipment to redecorate your room. Here are some quick tricks to get you started.

Wallpaper can work wonders. Buy a roll of prepasted paper (it's easy to work with), cut a decorative border to form a valance around the room at the top of the walls. Use the same paper to dress up closet doors and dresser drawers.

Dye can change the entire color scheme of your room. Just a few dollars invested in dye gives you a "new" bedspread, curtains, and rug—and in only an hour or so.

Ready-mades are a quick, easy way to change your room. Select a bedspread and matching curtains that fit your new color scheme. If the fabric is a print, pick up one of its colors to use as your accent.

Paint is another inexpensive way to change your room. Try painting your furniture. There is a variety of interesting finishing techniques you can use to make older wood pieces as attractive as brand new furniture.

Fabric can dress up your bed and windows. Choose a pretty print and make a dust-ruffle to peek out from under a solid color spread. Sew curtains to match the ruffle. Cafe curtains are attractive and so easy that even a girl who doesn't sew exceptionally well can make them with no trouble at all.

If you're not an experienced seamstress, here's another even easier bedspread-curtain trick. Buy a plain white dust ruffle and curtains. Select a print bedspread and cut it down to coverlet size, then trim your curtains with a band of the print you've cut off.

Felt forms an attractive headboard for your bed. Attach a width of colorful felt to the top of the wall and let it drop behind the head of your bed. It serves as a pin-up panel for favorite photos or clippings. Cover throw pillows for your bed with the same felt to co-ordinate the area. You can create the same headboard effect by applying a panel of wallpaper on the wall behind your bed and using matching fabric for a bedspread, dust ruffle, or to cover a bolster or pillows.

TEEN-AGERS: Enter your decorating project in Better Homes and Gardens special $5,000 scholarship competition for teen-age rooms. For details and entry coupon, see page 7.

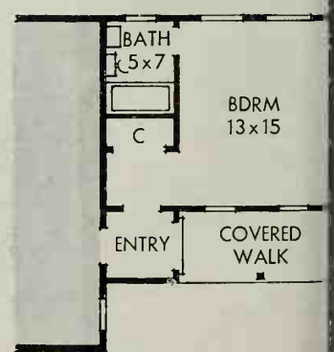
A fine small addition

ATTENTION to design provided a real bonu for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walker, Cryst Lake, Illinois, when they added much-neede space to their home. The well-planned bed room-bathroom addition stresses roomine and privacy. It also lengthens the house, brin it closer to the ground, and in effect, conver the 1920 bungalow to a Colonial ranch-typ house. It now has real charm—and more spac

Photograph: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Bles.

AFTER: The addition was neatly tied to the rest of the home leaving one brick entry wall exposed. A board-and-batten porti with small casement windows emphasizes the door and gives Colonial effect. Gaping front windows in the den and playroo (left) were made to match by gluing thin, beveled sticks of wo to the glass. A new lamp post and fence of white siding help soft the change from brick to wood.

BEFORE: This sentry-box entry was often confused with the back door. The whole house looked as out of date as the 1920s.



The addition, which emphasi privacy, was planned to conce the old entry. The covered w added charm and style.

of smooth-riding room for you, your family and most hing you'd want to take with you. The reason? Beneath spacious cargo compartment (up to 97.5 cu. ft.), rolet wagons have a Jet-smooth ride—a combination of Coil suspension and some 700 road filters that tote you your belongings in a way that takes the toil out of trips.

it up for a two-week outing. Or take it out empty on a quick .o the store. Either way the ride is smooth and sumptuous. That's the two-way blessing of a Chevrolet wagon. Throughout the year, you've got a king-size sedan with limousine-like comfort for family use. Backed up by a real cave of a cargo compartment. Comes a big outdoor expedition, you really appreciate that sprawling load floor, the big tailgate opening (almost 5 ft. wide), that Chevrolet 6 or V8 performance. These wagons love to load up and light out—be it for the beach or the bush. So check your Chevrolet dealer. He's got 5 versions of these versatile haulers for the family-man sportsman. . . . IDEAS IN ACTION

INDIVIDUALITY!

Hidebound conformity to the "rules" would soon make all our homes pretty much alike. But you certainly aren't the same person your neighbor is, and your home shouldn't be a carbon copy, either. Here we show you ideas that could never be produced on an assembly line—each one shows the ingenuity of people who became tired of the same old thing—and happily went off in another direction. Duplicate them exactly? Not on your life! Just let them put an idea in your mind—then away you go!

Contrast!

Great things happen when rules are forgotten. The Sherman Ellsworths, Seattle, Washington, wanted the crispness of Contemporary design in their new home. So they planned it that way, then went ahead and added a long-admired Franklin Stove reproduction.

The result here shows how pleasing and timeless a mixture like this can be—the contrast makes the stove even more effective. Try this with that favorite possession of yours.

Photographs: Charles Pearson. Architects: Thomas & Baar, A.I.A. Decorator: Lou Swift of Del Teet. Data: Margery Phillips Highlight!

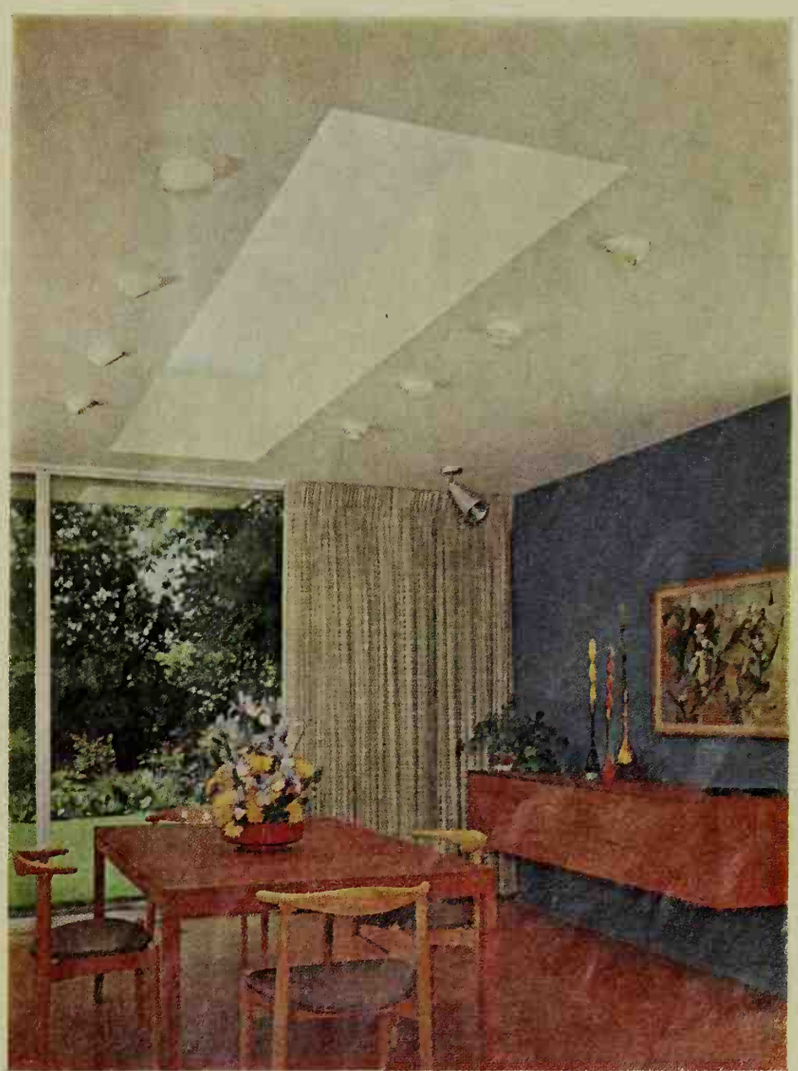
Let a big "window in the roof" make your day brighter. This skylight lets natural illumination flow on the dining table at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Farber, Los Angeles, California. They added the skylight when they remodeled an old porch.

At night, the two rows of adjustable spotlights blanket the table with light. A dimmer switch lets the Farbers dial the right amount of brightness for any evening occasion.



Photograph: George de Gennaro. Architect: Thornton M. Abell, A.I.A.

Photograph: Harold Gibhardt, Alderman Studios

Definition!

If you think your bedspread is attractive on th bed—try it on the wall! At left, a bold-patterne navy-and-white woven spread was hung on th wall to define a small snack area formerly use only as a passageway through the kitchen.

The bright blue of the deacon's bench an shuttered doors provides the color spark. Th small wood tables have delicate wrought-iro bases; pots of ferns lend an airy note.

Photograph: Charles Pearson. Decorator: Jim Halverson, A.I.D. Data: Margery Phillips

Ornament!

The unusual—not the expensive—did it! Thre handsome decorations turned an ordinary dinin room into an elegant one (left) for Mr. and Mrs Jim Halverson, Seattle, Washington.

The travertine shelf, the now-electrical ga light fixture, and a section from an old ornat door make the transformation. Of course yo can't duplicate this treatment exactly, but to giv your dining room a whirl, use your imaginatio to come up with something just as striking.

Light!

Eating here is as exciting as dining in a farawa villa. The small dining area at right was adde by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Tucker to their Sain Louis, Missouri, home. Steel posts support th projection's flat roof; small panes of glass hel give the light, delicate effect.

You could plan an addition like this (it' exactly a half-circle) wherever it's convenien for serving. How large yours should be depend on the size of your biggest company dinner!

Photograph: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessin Designer: Robert J. McClenahan. Data: Lois R

Photograph: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing. Data: Jessie Walker

Exaggeration!

An overstated use of Japanese lanterns create daring decorative and lighting effects. Nine o the lamps (left) are hung on an unused door i the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chalfant Chicago.

The door was masked with a sheet of plywood which was covered with a Japanese tea-ches paper. The lamps were wired to standard pin-u brackets and attached to the board. When th door is opened from the other side, wiring for th lanterns is easily accessible.

Accent!

Here's how to raise your basement one whole level (left). Start with white paint to give it an airy, above-ground quality, then splash it with accent colors as bright as a strawberry soda.

The wall behind the L-shaped snack bar, and the soffit (it hides heat ducts) overhead are plasterboard with bold black battens to separate the colors. The rest of the ceiling is finished with noise-absorbing tile. The board-on-board paneling is rough-sawed cedar.

Character!

Seclusion!

Just beyond the hollow block wall is a busy street, but it never keeps Mr. and Mrs. C. Whitney Bouden from enjoying the outdoors—and their tropical garden—at their Sarasota, Florida, home (left). The plants grow in bricked-up planter around all three sides of nearly enclosed patio.

The overhead beams are aluminum. They support fiberglass screening which is also attached to the outside of the block wall. The floor is colored concrete, scored into 18-inch squares.

Innovation!

Exterior aluminum siding marches inside and blends its quiet glow with the warmth of walnut on this striking wall (right). Left unpainted, the siding is corrugated and embossed for a pleasing texture. The walnut strips are 1x2s.

The handsome storage cabinet is a simple box. Its sliding doors are hardboard covered with an aluminum foil wallpaper. It stores a wide range of living room paraphernalia—and becomes a serving bar for informal entertaining.

Flow!

There's not a trace of a chained-to-the-sink feeling in this kitchen (right). Activities here and in the family room just naturally melt together —because a wall was left out completely. Both rooms seem a lot bigger, too.

Left The gray part of the plan shows the big new space Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Green added to their San Francisco home. It changed the boxy 925-square-f rectangle into a bright, roomy L of 1,620 square feet. The old part of the house remained exactly the same as it was except for the switch the old living room made. The new mas bedroom is buffered from the living areas by the bath and the wall of closets

Small house

Right The 9½-foot-tall windows of the new living room offer a tree-top view because of the sharp slope of the Greens' lot. The end wall (right) extends past the glass on each side of the room to complete the privacy both indoors and outdoors. The soaring ceiling is tongue-and-groove fir, with a wipe-off paint finish. The deck is four feet wide—it stretches across both the living room and bedroom on the view side of the wing.

Left The entry court and the small porch were always here; the raised wood deck was built when the new wing was added. The mature plantings around the court seclude it from the street and the neighbors. The new roof line and roof material exactly match the old—the difference is inside where the ceiling follows the pitch of the roof. French doors on both sides of the fireplace swing open like this to let deck and living room flow together.

Right Furniture is easily grouped around the new fireplace. Beige slip covers on all the upholstered pieces give the Green's old furniture the new airy look of the room itself. Draperies aren't needed because of the complete privacy of the entry court outside. The old living room is now a family room—it opens to the new wing through the wide door at right and is used for informal activities.

In this second article in a new Better Homes & Gardens series, Family Features Editor Neil Kuehnl talks with Dr. E. M. Jellinek, member of the Co-operative Commission on the Study of Alcoholism located at Stanford University. Dr. Jellinek was formerly head of the Yale Center of Alcohol Studies, and he later spent seven years appraising alcohol problems for the World Health Organization.

WHY won't a problem drinker listen to his wife?

Neil Kuehnl. In recent years, Dr. Jellinek, the editors of Better Homes & Gardens have noted an increasing concern over family problems related to alcohol. We receive many letters raising specific questions, or asking for informative articles on the subject. This one question stands out: "My husband drinks too much, but he won't listen to me when I try to help. All I ever get is an alibi. What can I do?"

Dr. E. M. Jellinek. A man who drinks excessively often develops a marvelous alibi system to keep from facing facts. Such a man must be confronted with the truth he tries to avoid: that his trouble is a result of alcohol, and not that alcohol is a result of his trouble. Someone who knows the man well can engineer a situation in which his alibi system breaks down. For example, the best time to talk to a heavy drinker is when he is recovering from a "bender." Then he feels great remorse. But his guard is up, too, and one must use the element of surprise. Approach him then with understanding and sympathy—just when he expects nagging accusations—and his whole chain of defense may break down.

Kuehnl. So then his wife can help him see the light?

Dr. Jellinek. Unfortunately, the wife of a heavy drinker a not very readily accomplish anything herself. Their mai may be jeopardized by the attempt, and she may de any possibility of his ever accepting help. Even if a wife perfectly reasonable things to her drinking husband, he re them because he knows it is in her self-interest to say t Yet he may accept those same suggestions from a ther or other neutral party, because that person has no per interest in changing the drinker's behavior.

Kuehnl. Isn't the problem complicated by the fact tha standards on drinking vary so much? I know some s situations in which almost any drinking behavior is accep short of becoming amorous with another man's wife.

Dr. Jellinek. In America, the range of standards on drir is extremely broad. Considering only religious views moment, some Protestant denominations believe the u alcohol as a beverage to be sinful. Other Protestants con its use with varying restrictions. Among Catholics, drir is not a sin—but drunkenness is. Yet no matter how ferv an individual holds his opinion on alcohol, he prob socializes with persons who have very different views. people accommodate to a group standard at those time

Kuehnl. In your research on the use of alcohol in countries, Dr. Jellinek, did you find any significant su in handling drinking problems?

Dr. Jellinek. Most non-English-speaking countries have definite rules on the use of alcohol. Americans are very v by comparison. In France, for example, wine drinking b at breakfast and continues all day—but there is never large accumulation of alcohol in the body. According survey in 1954, the average Frenchman believes a daily sumption of nearly two quarts of wine is a tolerable l Such lifetime heavy drinking is, of course, highly undesir but it has created for the French a different kind of alc problem than we are used to. The "all-day drinker" exists in the United States, but he escapes our notice cause he rarely creates a scene or loses his self-control.

Kuehnl. Americans specialize in what might be called "sh drinking—a rapid intake of strong liquor, often on an er stomach, and usually in a socially stimulating situa Isn't that kind of drinking especially dangerous?

Dr. Jellinek. Yes, and the problem is intensified because Americans are rather lenient—too lenient—about inebria Here, the party drunk usually is regarded with patience good humor. In wine-drinking Italy, on the other hand, slight intoxication is regarded as "piggish." Com drunkenness there is a serious breach of custom, and drin in order to have a "wild time" is almost unknown.

Kuehnl. Some men tend to drink heavily in connection their jobs. Is combining business and alcohol a good ide

Dr. Jellinek. Many businessmen apparently think it neces to work alcohol into the pattern of the day. Though n really drunk, such men have a continuous supply of alc in their blood stream from lunchtime until they go to bed. type of drinking is becoming much more common. It ra causes the drinker to lose his self-control, but he may soo unable to stop drinking—or even cut back on the amoun

Kuehnl. You mean regular daily drinking, even wit noticeable symptoms, can bring about a kind of alcoholi

Dr. Jellinek. Certainly. This alcoholic nibbling all day lor a serious matter, because it can lead to body cell co tioning. The "liquid lunch" at first is just a business cust er on, however, a man becomes psychologically pampered alcohol. "For 75c," he says in effect, "I get something t otherwise would demand a great effort from me."

hnl. What about the husband and wife who do not touch or, keep no alcoholic beverages in the house, and forbid r children to drink? Does that approach guarantee that amily members will ever become alcoholic?

Jellinek. Teetotaling is a good safeguard, but it is far from uarantee. Every year, our alcohol clinics take in many ents whose parents never drank. Fewer children of tee- lers use alcohol in high school or college, but once those ng people leave the protective environment of the home, r attitudes may change radically. And I might add that n only one parent is a teetotaler, there is often a very nful conflict of standards. A wife who disapproves of king may nag her husband bitterly over two glasses of —and possibly drive him to drink six more. You can well gine the effect of such a quarrel on the children.

hnl. Can family members recognize the early signs of a eloping alcohol problem?

Jellinek. His actions mark the "candidate for alcoholism" ; before he becomes an alcoholic. Each sign, by itself, ns little, but their progression is like a gathering of black ds on the horizon. Not every heavy drinker becomes lcoholic. But all excessive drinking is harmful to family tionships. When you start with a small trouble and pour hol on it, it becomes bigger trouble.

hnl. Does a person's party behavior provide any warning?

Jellinek. Take the fellow who is afraid there won't be gh liquor at the party. He pours himself a few stiff shots re leaving his own house. Later, at the party, he sneaks the kitchen for an extra drink nobody else knows about. hol has become important to him for its own sake—and is definitely a bad sign. Mind you, the man is still only candidate," but if I were an insurance agent I wouldn't re him against alcoholism for any premium.

hnl. How about the alcohol "blackout"? I understand it lso quite a serious matter.

Jellinek. The alcohol blackout occurs when a drinker has nemory the next day of what he did during certain periods he night's revelry. Once in a great while, a blackout may r to anyone who drinks too much. But if it happens ularly or frequently, then the blackout becomes very ificant—and he should seek professional counsel.

hnl. Then there's the man who becomes loud or boisterous le drinking. Is he on the road to alcoholism?

Jellinek. It depends upon the standards of his social group. is friends are behaving the same way, they will probably ay things they'll regret later, but the situation is not yet ous. However, if a drinker consistently goes beyond the dards of his own group, then his liquor is more important the people he lives and works with.

hnl. Some men take a strange pride in how much alcohol can consume. I recall a news item about a fellow in cago who walked into a bar and announced he would set w world's record for martinis. He drank 17 in an hour, and r the last one, he fell off the bar stool and died.

Jellinek. It is particularly bad when a man "shows off" alcohol—and I don't just mean extreme cases like that In many countries, drinking to impress others would be idered madness. It is peculiarly American to believe that an hold my liquor—it's the other follow who can't." hing could be further from the truth; alcohol affects us all, and individual differences in our reactions to it are smaller than the wishful thinkers believe.

Kuehnl. Many readers ask about alcohol problems with teenagers. Don't young people often drink for prestige?

Dr. Jellinek. With young people, we must again ask whether their behavior goes beyond the standards of their fellows. And that means the total group—their school or community—not just the particular crowd they associate with. Usually the standards of the larger group are pretty sensible, and if parents insist their children obey those rules, no problem should develop. But when a small clique of young people decides to break the group standards, trouble begins. A teenager who starts drinking to show off has a much greater chance of later becoming an alcoholic.

Kuehnl. Now and then, a man will claim his wife's nagging drove him to drink. Do you think that is possible?

Dr. Jellinek. I doubt it very much. Often it is true that the wife fails to understand why her husband turned to alcohol. Her attitude may then reinforce his drinking habits. In other words, she's probably not the reason he started to drink, but she may well be the reason he doesn't stop.

Kuehnl. I know it is hard to offer general advice on alcohol problems, but what steps can a concerned family take?

Dr. Jellinek. Let me list some approaches I have seen work for families in the past.

1. Go to a recognized source of help. There are Alcoholics Anonymous groups in most middle-sized or larger communities. State alcoholism agencies have been set up in at least 40 states, and county or municipal agencies are becoming quite common. Affiliates of the National Council on Alcoholism maintain information centers in more than 50 communities. And in quite a few areas, there are physicians and psychiatrists noted for their work with alcohol problems.
2. Show confidence, even if you don't really feel it. If he says, "I'm going out for cigarettes," don't rush to the window to see where he really goes. His family needs to show confidence precisely because the drinker doesn't have it. Finding strength in others may help him to regain his own.
3. Make the man suffer the consequences of his own actions. This is not a contradiction of what I just said. You may cover up for a drinker once or twice, but don't continually bail him out of tight situations to save his job or keep him from being arrested. After a while, he's not even grateful for that. He needs a situation where no alibis can save him.
4. Unless you mean them, don't make threats like "I'm going to leave you if you don't stop this drinking." He'll soon know your words are empty, and won't believe anything you say.
5. Stop being shocked when the drinker won't listen to reason. Even the imminent loss of wife, children, and job—no matter how much they mean to him—may not stop his drinking. A man must give up alcohol for his own sake. He must decide that being drunk is not really living at all.
6. Place the responsibility for stopping squarely on the drinker's shoulders. Say, in effect, "You must do this job. I can't. All I can do is walk with you every step of the way."
7. Be willing to make changes in your lives. After the drinking is behind him, something else must fill its place. New family activities—meaningful ones—are a good beginning.
8. Never give up hope. If one AA group or counselor or doctor doesn't help, another may. Perhaps no one has yet pushed the right button. There's no guarantee anyone will ever find the right button, but it is always possible—and often when things look darkest. END

The room that comes in a package

By Noel Seney and Frank R. Glass, A.I.A.

Great news! This new package lets you add a room with only eight tools, once foundation and floor are finished. Everything comes in large parts; all you do is put up the framework, fasten in the big one-piece sections. Heating, cooling, electrical service are handled in much the same way as in an ordinary room addition.

This room is 12x16 feet; it's also available in 8x12, 12x12, and 12x20 sizes—all styled to blend with any house. Any of the fixed panels can be glass—or fully or partially enclosed.

Ready? Just sharpen your screwdriver!

NEEDED: More building ideas this good

Just on the market, this room addition crashes through all kinds of building and remodeling barriers. Better Homes & Gardens believes that it is a long stride in the right direction toward a building technique that can mean better, cheaper houses for all of us.

It's proof that American industry can produce houses with the same efficiency that brings us automobiles and appliances. The story of how two companies—an aluminum fabricator and a nation-wide retailer—hatched the idea, designed and manufactured the room, and then put it on the market shows both that it can be done and that it takes a certain amount of "corporate guts" to do it.

A big stumbling block is the maze of building codes facing a company that wants to mass-produce even this "part" of a house. In cities where old-fashioned specification codes are in effect, this room would be illegal. The structural system is completely new and therefore could not have been listed in the specifications.

Modern performance codes now in use in many progressive cities are more adaptable, because they don't specify material; instead, they set standards of strength and capacity that a designer can make his product meet.

But even in the case of performance codes, final acceptance isn't given to a structure like this until an actual sample can be proved in tests. For a mass-produced product, this means that the manufacturer must put his assembly line in operation before he is completely assured the product will be accepted. To get to this step, the company that makes this room addition had to invest a half-million dollars in designers' and consultants' fees, tooling, increased plant facilities, and testing costs—before they had that first factory-built sample. This is the challenge that faces American industry.

We pay tribute to this wonderful building idea —and to the courage that made it a reality. Until more companies take the challenge—and until our restrictive laws are changed—reasonably priced quality housing just isn't in the cards.

FRENCH PROVINCIAL

TWO CENTURIES OF GLORIOUS FABRICS AND FURNITURE

The flavor of French Provincial never changes. It embodies within a house of today the same warmth, the same abundance of pattern and blending of styles as it did in a rustic French cottage of 200 years ago.

Unfortunately, to many people, French Provincial means a roomful of furniture all with identical curved legs. Actually, French Provincial can't be defined as any one style, for it is furniture spanning two hundred years of change and countless miles of rural France, from the Riviera to Alsace-Lorraine to Normandy.

The term Provincial simply means furniture used in the provinces—from crude furnishings of peasant farmers to regional copies of furniture from the royal palaces. Furniture of the northern provinces was heavy like that of Germany. In the south, it took on the characteristics of Italy and Spain. In all cases, it is furniture of informality and livability. And, French Provincial is probably the most versatile furniture in the world; it blends perfectly with other styles—because it was created to be used that way.

The attractive family room at right, for instance, might be considered a hodgepodge of styles and finishes, but that's its beauty—and what makes it typically French. The tall painted cabinet, the dining table, chairs, and rush-seat stool are all copies of old French pieces. The combination of a textured brick wall painted white, the wood-paneled walls, and the brick floor gives this room still more Provincial atmosphere.

Samuel Chamberlain (far left), famed writer, artist, gourmet, and owner of one of the outstanding collections of French Provincial furniture in this country.

"In the 18th century, when the provincial butcher's wife visited Paris, she saw fine furniture and went home and had something similar made by local workmen. The woods were local, rather than imported, and the work was often crude."

Among Mr. Chamberlain's furnishings is the panetiere on the wall beside him. "This panetiere (from pain—French for "bread") was used to store fresh bread as it cooled and grew crusty."

The French have always been conscious of good design and pattern, too. The decorated pottery, in the group of accessories and fabrics (left) is faience, a fine grade of painted and glazed pottery or porcelain.

The lamp is tole, or painted metal, a popular decorative art of France. Because tole was designed for provincial living, the shapes of the objects are simple. All ornamentation was painted on by hand.

Fabrics are other extremely good examples of France's contribution to the world of fine furnishings.

William Hopkins

In fact, it was a French fabric printer who, in 1783, introduced an invention that revolutionized home decorating. The man, Christophe-Philippe Oberkampf, invented an engraved roller which mass produced printed patterns in color on fabric at the rate of 100 meters per day.

Of course, long before M. Oberkampf's invention, France had excelled in fabrics. Silks and velvets from Lyons, and wool tapestries from Arras decorated palaces of kings. Linen thread was developed by lace makers of Alencon; looms were being improved.

But bright, colorful fabrics were almost unknown. The linen cloth was drab gray, with colored thread woven into the selvage like today's dish toweling.

Then in about 1700, colorful cottons, hand-painted with exotic flowers and birds, were imported from India by Dutch and Portuguese traders. Prices were exorbitant, so in 1719, French businessmen competed by organizing their own French import company. One of the company's stockholders was Madame de Pompadour, who recognized beauty and set styles. Soon, in the great chateaux of France, silks and velvets were replaced by imported cottons, called Indienne. ("Calico" was a French mispronunciation for the city of Calicut; "chintz" came from the Hindu word chint.)

As a result, business suffered for the weavers of silk, velvet, and wool, and they cried for government protection. Louis XV, then King of France, gave in and ruled that no cotton could enter France and no cotton cloth could be woven on French looms. But the very next day, his mistress, Madame de Pompadour, appeared in a cotton dress; in 1759, the ban was lifted—women and cotton won!

At this time, young M. Oberkampf was using carved wooden blocks to print patterns on cloth. It was a slow process, like doing homemade Christmas cards today; ink the block, place it, thump it with a hammer. Oberkampf's factory was at Jouy, near Versailles; the French word for fabric is toile—thus the cloth was called Toile de Jouy.

By 1783, Oberkampf replaced separate wooden blocks with his engraved copper cylinder invention. First patterns were small flowers, but soon he tried larger pictures. He even produced a fabric with scenes of the Oberkampf factory. The fabric on this page is a modern copy of Les Travaux de la Manufacture; the framed area shows his original invention.

There were other French makers of printed textiles, too, located around Mulhouse, close to the Swiss border. In 1853, a group of these young manufacturers traveled around the world in search of new designs and inspiration. In 1858, they established a highly specialized museum, the Musee de l'Impression sur Etoffes, literally the "museum for prints on stuff." It housed thousands of fabric samples and drawings. The history of the century was told in pattern: a toile pictured the "astronauts" of 1783 who traveled 27 miles in a hydrogen balloon; another print commemorated the fall of the Bastille.

When the Nazis took Mulhouse, the museum staff hid their treasures in farm houses. In 1944, the Musee was bombed, but the collection was safe. Now it has been reassembled, and a new museum will open soon.

Recently, photographs of the collection were brought to the United States, and reproductions are now being made. The priceless old designs are being created with the finest new fabrics and dyes, to bring the beauty of authentic French Provincial decor into today's homes.

The bedroom below was given a French flair with fabric, wallpaper, and some carefully chosen furniture. At the windows, there's a Musee fabric with daisies printed on sheer, sturdy polyester fiber. Turn the bed flat against the wall, French-style, add a paper border and shallow alcove of fabric—et voila, the mood of France! The new table is both writing table and poudreuse—there's a lift-up mirror in the top.

Comfort is the keynote in French-styled rooms. The tea table at the left, for instance, is much more comfortable than low coffee tables. Comfortable chairs with feather-filled cushions were a French innovation, too.

French Provincial

In the extreme differences of style within French Provincial, you can almost read a great chapter in the country's history. With the end of the religious wars in the 17th century, home building boomed. A prosperous middle class arose. Louis XIV built the Palace at Versailles and had its Great Hall paneled with newly available mirrors.

Extravagance continued under Louis XV, but was guided by the excellent tastes of Madame de Pompadour. Textile makers (at Jouy and Mulhouse) were encouraged, and a porcelain factory was started at Sevres. A sign of the times was the chairs with wide seats, designed to accommodate bouffant skirts. Later, when skirts were slimmer, chairs became small and narrow.

When Louis XVI came into power in 1774, finances were strained; there were revolutions in both government and style. A combination of the country's financial condition and the influence of the Pompeian excavations of classical forms seemed to dictate simpler furniture in place of the ornate, extravagant pieces of the earlier period.

So you can easily see how wide the range of French Provincial became when craftsmen throughout the provinces created their own interpretations of court furniture.

Now, all these styles are available from today's manufacturers; you can blend, mix, or match furniture and be as French as you like.

If you want to add the flavor of France to your home, take heart from Mrs. George Rehill who created this charming room. When she started redecorating her dining room, all she had was a beautiful set of chairs and a dream of a French room. The dream came to life when she selected a Musee fabric and a wallpaper. The combination of patterned fabric and striped paper is very French but needs careful choosing, especially with a patterned rug. The Rehills splurged on an antique buffet and luster fixture but kept the dining table.

Fake beams of rough boards and parquet-tone stain on the light oak floor are inexpensive details that add tremendous authenticity and create a charm that whispers, "this is French Provincial—1962."

Weekends of work for years of play

By Barbara Cathcart

Cal and Jane Howell, who do their everyday living in Redwood City, California, often weekended at Squaw Valley. They soon fell in love with the area and began thinking about a place all their own that would be ready and waiting for them every weekend. But for people with ordinary incomes (Cal is an engineer), there was only one way they could get it—go to work and build it themselves.

Cal had already built one house, so they weren't beginners. And their 17-year-old son, Carl, was a big help. The two younger children, Page and Kirk, who were still preschoolers, didn't help matters at all—only seriously delayed progress once in a while. One day, when Jane was tarring the septic tank, daughter Page took a liking to the tar and painted herself thoroughly with it. Then she promptly took a tumble in some gravel. "It took longer to clean her up," Jane says, "than it did to paint the tank."

Plans were finished in early 1956. That summer, working on his vacation and a few weekends, Cal laid the foundation. The Howells lived in a tent on their cabin site. The fair weather of 1957 saw them finish the deck and floor. This step enclosed the tiny basement. But it was bigger than the tent, so they "camped" in it.

Their handiwork got a severe test that winter—a record-breaking snow stacked up 16 feet high on the cabin's platform. And the structure took it without a single crack or sag.

The Howells began the framing during their 1958 vacation—and connected their electricity and water line. About this time, they learned that the 1960 Winter Olympics would be held in "their" valley—so they set their sights on that opening date.

The Howells turned on the steam and worked most every weekend from then on—even scraping snow off the roof once to put on the last layer of rolled roofing. And they made it—they set the last tile in the shower the day the Olympics opened.

A picnic everywhere you go!

By Myrna Johnston and Foods Staff

There's one thing about the happy art of picnickery. Not only can it be part of your vacation, it can extend those few carefree weeks by as many pretty Saturdays and Sundays and workday evenings as there are in a summer. A trip to the mountains or the shore calls for a picnic. So does an at-home garden or velvety lawn. Going fishing? Riding around to see the sights? Just stop at the store for the picnic foods you see in the picture, and be on your way. With a station wagon, the tailgate opens to make a kitchen counter and buffet. The grill shown is a folding model—everyone chefs his own In-a-minute Steak and hot dog. The picnic table of featherweight aluminum is another fold-away. Watermelon rides uncut in crushed ice, ready for wedging on location. Cold drinks stay that way in the ice bucket. This meal on wheels is just one of our hamperful of ideas for easygoing pickup picnics (a mere raid of the refrigerator does the job), potlucks (everybody loves 'em —aunts, cousins, neighbors), and party picnics (not really fussy, just a little dressed up). So look over all the new gear to make family junkets the pleasantest yet and choose one of these suppers or lunches as a traveling companion. Then hit the trail!

Herbed Chicken en Casserole

An ideal company casserole. Tastes like a million, no last-minute fuss—

3 large chicken breasts, cut in half
Salt and pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine

1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
¾ cup cooking sauterne
1 5-ounce can (⅔ cup) water chestnuts, drained and sliced

1 3-ounce can (⅔ cup) broiled sliced mushrooms, drained
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
¼ teaspoon crushed thyme

Lightly season chicken with salt and pepper; brown slowly in butter in skillet. Arrange browned chicken, skin side up, in 11½x7½x1½-inch baking dish. For the sauce, add soup to drippings in skillet; slowly add sauterne, stirring smooth. Add remaining ingredients; heat to boiling. Pour sauce over chicken. Cover with foil and bake in moderate oven (350°) 25 minutes. Uncover; continue baking 25 to 35 minutes or till chicken is tender. Serve with hot fluffy rice, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Sarah's Salad

A most unusual salad! It goes together in layers, chills several hours to mellow and make its own dressing—

2 cups torn head lettuce
2 cups torn curly endive
2 cups torn romaine lettuce

6 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 medium red or white onion, thinly sliced

1½ cups drained cooked peas
1 cup julienne strips natural Swiss cheese
6 slices bacon, crisp-cooked and crumbled

Place a third of the salad greens into a bowl; dot with several tablespoons of the mayonnaise. Top with a third of the onion slices; sprinkle with sugar (about 1 teaspoon). Dash with salt (about ¼ teaspoon) and freshly ground pepper. Add a third of the peas and cheese. Repeat layers, seasoning each. Do not toss. Cover; chill 2 hours. Just before serving, top with bacon and toss. Makes 6 servings.

Sunday-best roasts, cereal cookies

WHEN IT comes to family favorites, Sunday roasts and cereal cookies just can't be beat. We'd like to know what kind you serve at your house. So, send in a recipe for each. Two Cooks-of-the-Month will receive $20 each. Nineteen other winners will receive $5 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured in the Prize Tested Recipes pages next February. The winners of these 21 prizes will receive a framed Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Hints to help you

Sunday-best roasts—beef, pork, veal, or lamb. Your specialty could be a stuffing, glaze, gravy, marinade, or way of seasoning. Don't forget those less-tender beef cuts, cooked as pot roasts or treated with meat tenderizer. Suggestions:

apple-buttered pork loin horseradish-stuffed rolled rib roast beef spread with blue cheese pork crown with corn stuffing leg of lamb with mint sauce caraway pot roast sauerbraten

Cereal cookies can be old-time favorites—perhaps made with rolled oats, bran cereal, wheat or corn flakes. Or, bake up a new cooky with one of the presweetened cereals or with packaged cornflake crumbs. Use cereal as an ingredient, a crisp coating or topper. Ideas:

crunch-top apple-sauce bars bran brownies cereal macaroons
corn-flake jumbles
no-bake chocolate drops cherry tea cookies your most unusual oatmeal cooky

Fancy cats for cat fanciers

ıe Siamese is an agile and tive cat that loves human ımpany. He is easy to train ıd enjoys retrieving and ılking on a leash.
The Siamese's voice is ıite raucous, and he will ely use it to advantage ıen demanding his rights. His slanted blue eyes ıd beautiful markings, or ›oints," make him a very ndsome animal. The two pes are Blue Point and al Point Siamese.

Supposedly a direct descendant of the sacred cats of ancient Egypt, the Abyssinian has a certain regal reserve. He has a quiet, bell-toned voice, seldom used.
Unlike most cats, he loves water, and will play in it for hours. He has a short but silky coat with distinctive black and gray markings.
Because breed is so rare, kittens cost up to $300.

Photographs: Chandoha

ıe Manx is quite an ordiry-looking tiger cat until stands up. Then it beımes apparent that someing quite important is ıssing—his tail.
Besides being tailless, his ck legs are longer than his ›nt legs, so he hops when nning. He is aggressive d extremely tough.

The Burmese is the rarest of all cat breeds. Although he closely resembles the Siamese, his coat is darker and more nearly solid in color.
His eyes are golden and round, unlike the slanted eyes of the Siamese. He has a short coat with fine fur, very close to the body.
This long, slim cat is very graceful and dainty. He is also intelligent, with a happy and affectionate nature.

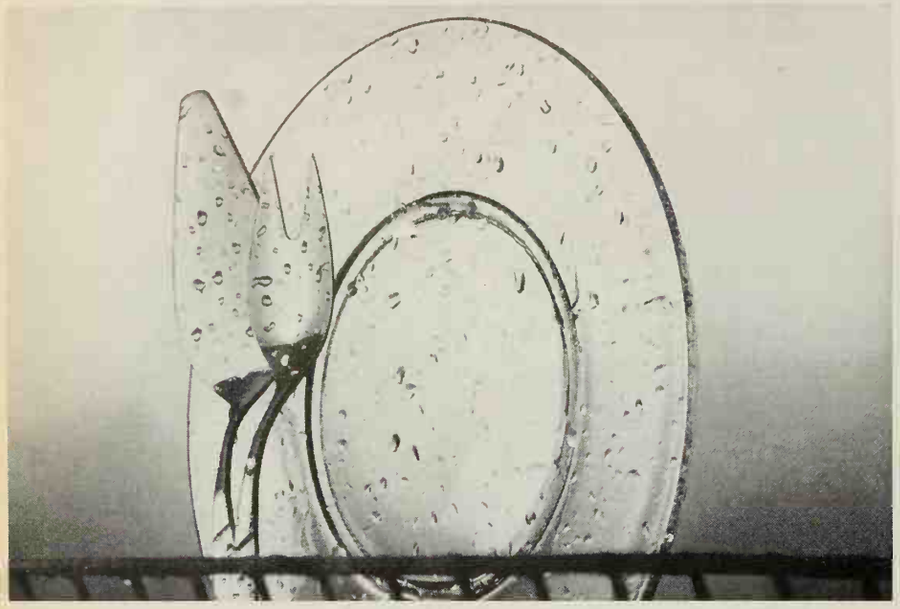
Here's why more dishwasher owners use Cascade than any other product...

Cascade eliminates drops that dry into spots!



WATER DROPS See what happens when even clean water is sprayed on glassware, silver. This test shows how drops form. These dry into ugly spots.

CASCADE But with Cascade no drops form! Just as in your dishwasher, water slides off in clear-rinsing "sheets." Dishes, silver dry spotless, sparkling.

No other dishwasher detergent cleans so well...

Cascade is absolutely unsurpassed at stopping spots (your toughest problem in automatic dishwashing). That's because Cascade has Chlorosheen . . . an exclusive formula that eliminates the drops that cause spots. No drops left to hold grease and food particles or dry into cloudy streaks or messy spots. You've never seen dishes cleaner, silver brighter! For best results, give your dishwasher the best—Cascade.

...yet is so safe for fine china!

Only Cascade is rated safe for today's loveliest china patterns by the American Fine China Guild, whose members make Castleton, Flintridge, Franciscan, Lenox and Syracuse china. Their exclusive recommendation was given Cascade after testing every leading dishwasher detergent. Look for their seal of approval on every Cascade package.

1 can frozen condensed cream of shrimp soup
¾ cup boiling water
⅔ cup packaged precooked rice
1 7-ounce package (1 cup) frozen cleaned shrimp
½ cup diced celery
½ cup diced green pepper
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ cup sliced ripe olives
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Place soup in skillet; pour boiling water over. Cover; bring just to boiling. Stir in rice, shrimp, celery, green pepper, salt, and pepper. Cover and bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes or till rice and shrimp are done, stirring occasionally. Just before serving, add olives. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Makes 4 servings.

Bean Banquet

Accordions of canned luncheon meat take atop canned pork and beans—

2 1-pound cans (4 cups) pork and beans in tomato sauce
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 to 1½ teaspoons liquid smoke
2 12-ounce cans luncheon meat

In a 10x6x1½-inch baking dish, combine beans, catsup, and seasonings. Cut meat in half lengthwise. Cutting not quite through, slice each half in 7 crosswise slices. Arrange meat "accordions" on beans. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 25 to 30 minutes, or till beans are bubbling hot. Place in broiler a few minutes to brown meat; brush meat with melted butter. Trim with parsley. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Tuna-Lima Casserole

1 10-ounce package frozen green Limas
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ cup chopped pimiento
1 6½-, 7-, or 9¼-ounce can tuna, drained
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Cook Limas in boiling unsalted water till tender; drain. Combine soup, milk, lemon juice, and paprika. Stir in beans and pimiento. Break tuna in chunks; toss lightly with bean mixture. Pour into greased 1-quart casserole. Top with bread crumbs; dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 30 minutes or till heated through and crumbs are golden. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Deviled Ham 'n Potatoes

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 1-pound can (2 cups) tiny whole potatoes, drained
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
1 4½-ounce can deviled ham

Melt butter in skillet; add potatoes turning to coat. Sprinkle celery and onion over. Drop deviled ham by teaspoon in between potatoes; heat 10 minutes or till hot. Snip parsley over top. Makes 2 or 3 servings.

Jiffy Cheese Rabbit

1 package corn-bread mix
1 can condensed cheese soup
2 tablespoons milk
Few drops Tabasco sauce
¼ cup ripe-olive slices

Bake corn bread according to package directions. Combine soup, milk, and Tabasco. Heat slowly, stirring frequently, until hot. Add olives; heat just to boiling. Cut hot corn bread in squares; split in half and spoon rabbit over. Pass extra corn-bread squares and plenty of butter. Makes 3 servings.

Ham-salad Mold

A fluffy souffle salad made hearty with ham and cheese. Nice for Dutch lunch—

1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
½ cup cold water
½ cup mayonnaise
1 to 2 teaspoons vinegar
1 to 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
¾ teaspoon salt
Few drops Tabasco sauce
1 cup diced canned or cooked ham
½ cup shredded sharp process American cheese
¼ cup diced green pepper
2 tablespoons diced pimiento
1 teaspoon grated onion

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cold water, mayonnaise, vinegar, horseradish, salt, and Tabasco; blend well with electric or rotary beater. Pour into refrigerator tray. Quick-chill in freezing unit 15 to 20 mintues, or till firm about 1 inch from edge, but soft in center. Turn into bowl and beat till fluffy. Fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill till firm, 30 to 60 minutes. Unmold on platter. Makes 6 servings.

JULY GARDENING WHERE YOU LIVE!

With
Better Homes and Gardens
WESTERN FIELD EDITOR
Norvell Gillespie

What can you tell me about lawn moths and how to get rid of them? S.G., Pomona, California

Lawn moths are the adult stage of the sod webworm, and are worse during warm weather. The lawn moths lay their eggs on the crown of a grass plant and within three weeks hatch into brownish-gray worms, often the thickness of a pencil. These worms chew off grass roots, causing the plant to brown and die. The best way to fight them is with chemicals. Water the lawn thoroughly 24 hours before you apply dieldrin or chlordane—no more water for two or three days. A single treatment is supposed to last for the whole season, but in actual practice, I find it's necessary to repeat with another shot a couple of months later.

My camphor trees drop leaves constantly. Is it O.K. to put these in my compost? C.L., Sacramento, California

They do not make good compost by themselves. They become very slimy. However, it is all right to mix some of them in with other compost. Be sure to "turn" the heap a couple of times to hasten decomposition.

Should asters and zinnias be pinched back to make them branch? S.Z.L., Salt Lake City, Utah

Asters are self-branching, so pinching is not necessary. Zinnias should have their tops pinched out when the plants are about 6 inches high. You still have time to plant seed of State Fair hybrid zinnias. They'll give you blooms in sparkling clear colors up to 6 inches across.

Will camellias do well in a spot where they get a couple of hours of sun each day? L.O., Longview, Washington

No. Camellias must have at least four hours of sun if they are to flower well. They will grow, develop rich, dark green foliage, but you won't get any blooms.

What is the best fertilizer for upright and hanging fuchsias growing in pots? Mrs. F.B., Eureka, California

Fuchsias are so downright hungry that I think they'll "eat" anything. It is most important to see that they are kept well fed. I have noticed that many prize winners in shows were fed liquid fish plant food. Thoroughly soak the soil the day before you apply the fertilizer. Never put fertilizer on dry soil around a plant.

Is it good practice to let grass clippings remain on the lawn? F.C., Idaho Falls, Idaho

Letting the lawn clippings lie where they fall is an inexpensive method of adding organic matter to the soil and returning some of the food the grass used. If you want to make a practice of this, be sure you mow the lawn often enough so the clippings are short. The main thing is not to let a thick thatch accumulate to provide a breeding ground for disease organisms.

I want to plant a vigorous hedge which will provide goo screening, grow at least 5 feet high, and do well witho much attention. T.W., Phoenix, Arizon

The oleander is the answer to your problem. It's so toug that even your Arizona highway people laud it. Why not t for a colorful effect? Plant three rose-colored oleande then a white one. Repeat this planting pattern across lo

What do the books mean when they recommend "hal shade" for plants? Mrs. M.T., San Bernardino, Californ

This term usually means that these plants can take ear morning and late afternoon sun, but not the intense ligh of midday that cooks the more tender foliage. Branches trees and taller shrubs filter the light, or the east or nort side of a building offers protection.

What causes the yellowing or rusting on bean leaves whe plants get about a foot high? B.T., Seattle, Washingto

A common cause of young bean plants turning yellow too much water. This trouble is most likely to occur i heavy soil. The continuous wet condition causes the lowe leaves to die. The soil should be moist to a good depth a the time of planting and then watered deeply only whe the soil gets quite dry.

Would it be sensible to grow herbs near our barbecue are for built-in seasoning? A.L.K., Tacoma, Washingto

Sure—fresh herbs have a tang of their own and can b grown in barrels, boxes, or in open ground near the ba becue. From your nursery, you can get plants of garli marjoram, rosemary, mint, sage, dill, savory, and other The new All-America winner, Dark Opal basil, is both tast and good to look at, so include some plants of it.

We've heard that young beet leaves are good to eat. D you agree? C.T., Nampa, Idah

I think you'll find these "greens" an unexpected deligh The old standard variety Detroit Dark Red beet is espe cially tasty. Cook these leaves just as you would spinac They're such an excellent dish, that some gourmet garde ers grow extra rows of beets just for the tops. You can sti plant beet seeds in July for a fall crop.

How does one kill poison oak? What can be planted on slope to control erosion? S.K., Santa Paula, Californi

Poison oak can be killed by spraying the plants wit 2,4,5-T, a chemical brush killer. I've fought the same battl on my Berkeley hillside. Not very pleasant.

Your second question is much more involved, and mus take in such factors as soil, drainage, soil chemistry, and su exposure. A partial list of hillside ground covers shoul include prostrate rock-rose, Mediterranean rock-rose, bus sunflower, wild buckwheat, burnet, Spanish broom, an vinca. Shrubs planted as erosion preventives include th Nevin barberry, prostrate juniper, purple rock-rose, toyon hollyleaf cherry, and laurel sumac. Your nurseryman ca tell you which ones are best for your particular needs.

Games to make the miles go!

Planning a vacation by family car this summer? Even with the comforts of today's automobile, there are times when long stretches of driving grate on everyone's nerves. Squabbling and roughhousing by children are dangerous—and can distract your attention from driving. So keep yourself cool and collected—and the children happy—with these look-and-talk games. Mom or Dad at the wheel will be amused, but not diverted from the job of safe driving.

Signboard strategy: Although billboards are on the decline, there are still plenty left around with mouth-watering, gourmet suggestions. Try this game when you want luncheon deferred for awhile. Put together a complete menu from road signs. You can use restaurant ads, too, if you choose. When a menu, from soup to nuts, has been assembled, every member of the family has to eat at least one dish on the bill of fare. Someone will always want to cover a few more miles in search of some special dish. Drive on, McDuff! You've just added painless miles and much gaicty to the day's trip!

Pick your profession game: "What will I be when I grow up?" is a subject that fascinates youngsters. The sights along the road—policemen, pony riders, and picnic areas serve as jumping-off places. (Have you ever thought of being a professional picnicker? It opens up whole new vistas!) Each person has only a few minutes to develop the money-making possibilities of their blue-sky profession. Most unusual career wins. Suggested time: half an hour.

The cars from Mars!: There is a Martian spy loose on the highway! Find him forthwith! Unusual hats and clothing are pretty valid clues . . . because Martians don't know the protocol of proper dress. You'll be surprised at the vividness of your small fry's imagination. And if you meet up with the convicted Martian candidate at some motel or restaurant along the way, and your child says in a loud piping voice, "Look! Daddy, there's the man from Mars," just move on quickly. Don't try to explain. It's futile.

Car color game: Collect car colors amid the streams of traffic. Suggested scoring: white cars count five, any pastel shade is ten, pink, red, and yellow each give 15 points. Score of 50 wins.

The purple cow game: This is best played on rural roads with slightly zany families. Cows and horses come in many assorted colors. Sometimes they're eating, sometimes racing around fields, sometimes pulling plows. Make up the rules as you go along . . . anybody who sees a man falling off a white horse wins the game!

Roadside alphabet: Pack a trunk for your trip in alphabetical order, taking your ABC's from the sights and signs you see along the road. Repeat the whole list each time. "Apples," "boys," and "cars" are simple, but "zebra" is not allowed unless you're passing a carnival. It gets harder as your list builds up.

Road map radar: This is a guessing game played with road maps. Any map showing a section of the country will do. Each person in turn picks out names within a two-inch area on the map, others guess in what state these hard-to-identify towns are situated. If they can't guess, increase the radius till a big city is named.

Plates from states: This is an excellent memory game, particularly on long hauls. Name the state, the color of the background, and colors of the numerals. Anybody who spies a fresh state names it first, then has to go back and remember all the other ones mentioned. If you miss a state, the turn goes to the next person.

Where are they going?: Guess everything you can about a car by the contents and the look of the passengers. Lots of baggage means a long trip; a canoe strapped overhead suggests they're heading for the lake area. Tanned faces and sun-streaked hair could mean the family is returning from a vacation. Anybody who sees a car trimmed with ribbon and old shoes receives a bonus!

In-a-minute Steaks

Meat marinates on way to picnic, picking up a savory blend of flavors—

½ teaspoon instant minced onion
3 tablespoons wine vinegar
½ cup salad oil
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
Dash freshly ground pepper
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

6 cube steaks
6 slices sharp process American cheese
6 hamburger buns, toasted and buttered

Soak onion in vinegar a few minutes; add oil and seasonings, mixing well. Place meat in container that has a lid; pour the marinade over the steaks, coating all. Cover and let stand an hour or so—spoon marinade over meat once or twice and keep it cool. Grill over very hot coals about 2 minutes per side. Last minute, lay a cheese slice atop each steak to melt. Serve on hot toasted buns. Makes 6 servings.

Olive Dressing

A new twist for bottled dressing—

1 cup Italian or clear French dressing
½ 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
¼ teaspoon paprika
⅓ cup chopped stuffed green olives

Gradually add dressing to cream cheese, beating till smooth. Stir in paprika and olives. Serve with green salad or over tomato and green-pepper slices. Makes 1⅓ cups.

Outdoor Steaks

Choose tender steaks, about 1 inch thick. (Rib steaks are easier than T-bones on your budget.) Remove meat from refrigerator or cooler an hour or so before broiling so it is at room temperature. Slash fat edge at intervals to keep steaks flat. When coals are hot, tap off gray ash with fire tongs. Let grill top heat, then grease it and put on the steaks (orders for "rare" go on last). When you see little bubbles on top side of steaks they are ready to turn (heat forces the juices to the uncooked surface). Flip steaks with tongs and pancake turner—piercing with a fork wastes good meat juices. Broil second side less long than first—turn only once. For 1-inch steaks cooked medium-rare, allow about 13 to 15 minutes total broiling time.

To season: Salt and pepper each browned side of steak right after turning, or season steaks as they come from the grill. Serve sputtering hot, each with a pat of butter melting atop.

For char flavor: If you like steak with a deep-brown, crusty coat, try this. Sear one side by lowering grill top close to coals for 2 or 3 minutes, then raise grill to finish same side. Turn steak, and sear second side; again raise grill and complete the cooking.

Roasted Corn on the Cob

Nothing says "summer" more than a cookout with corn on the cob—

Turn back husks and strip off silk. Lay husks back in position. Line ears up on grill over hot co Keep turning ears 15 or 20 m utes, or till husks are dry a browned. (Corn will look s tanned. For browner, sweeter co continue roasting to suit yourse To serve, break off husks (use gl or towel). Now on with plenty butter, salt, and pepper.

Parmesan Dressing Italiano

This salad dressing tastes "expensiv A snap to make—

1 envelope Parmesan salad-dressing mix
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar
⅔ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 teaspoons anchovy paste

Shake salad-dressing mix with w ter in covered jar. Add remaini ingredients and shake to ble Serve on lettuce-and-tomato sal Makes 1 cup.

Cantaloupe Alamode

Offer picnickers a choice of juicy me all by itself or filled sky-high with vanilla ice cream—

Have melon icy-cold. Cut half, remove seeds. Pile center hi with scoops of vanilla ice crea Each melon makes 2 servings.

Hawaiian Lemonade

This sparkling triple-fruit combinat is cooling as an island breeze—

1 6-ounce can frozen lemonade concentrate
1 12-ounce can (1½ cups) apri nectar, chilled
1 12-ounce can (1½ cups) un-sweetened pineapple juice, chilled
2 7-ounce bottles (about 2 cup ginger ale, chilled

Empty lemonade concentrate i cold vacuum jug and add 1 c water; mix in fruit juices. A ginger ale* and ice cubes; seal j tightly. Makes 8 servings.

*Or, for more fizz, carry ging ale in ice chest, and add just l fore serving.

Chilled Fruit Toddy

Aromatic bitters adds a touch of soph tication to this tangerine-pear combo

Add water to one 6-ounce c frozen tangerine concentrate cording to label directions. Stir one 11-ounce can (1½ cups) p nectar, chilled, and 1 teaspoon a matic bitters (or more to tast Serve over ice cubes. Makes ½-cup servings.

Roast Chicken

Roast a brace of birds to serve 4 couples

Rinse a 3- to 4-pound ready cook broiler-fryer; pat dry w paper towels. Sprinkle cavity w 1 teaspoon salt. For flavor, tuck some celery leaves and chopp onion if you like. Push ends drumsticks under strip of skin, present, or tie to tail. Fold n skin over back, fasten with skew Fold wings across back and tips together with cord.

Place breast up on rack in sh low roasting pan (or breast do if using V-rack). Brush with melt butter or margarine. Roast u covered in hot oven (400°) 1½

2¼ hours or till tender, basting occasionally with drippings.

When bird is ⅔ done, snip strip of skin or cord. (If roasted breast down, turn breast up to brown.) Continue roasting till done—thickest part of thigh meat will feel very soft when pressed between fingers (protect with paper towels) and you can move drumstick up and down easily. For cold chicken to take on picnic, cool slightly, then chill promptly. Makes 4 servings.

Curried Picnic Salad

Sour cream and a subtle curry flavor turn potato salad into a gourmet dish—

6 cups diced cooked potatoes
¼ cup chopped green onions and tops
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon celery seed
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
4 hard-cooked eggs

1 teaspoon curry powder
1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 6-ounce jar marinated artichoke hearts*, drained

Combine potatoes, onions, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, celery seed, salt, and pepper. Separate whites and yolks of hard-cooked eggs; chop whites and add to potatoes. Toss lightly and chill. Mash 2 of the yolks; blend in curry powder, sour cream, mayonnaise, and 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Pour dressing over potatoes; toss lightly. Sieve remaining yolks over top. Garnish with border of marinated artichoke hearts. Keep chilled. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

*Or cook a 10-ounce package frozen artichoke hearts; drain. Chill in Italian dressing.

Lined Pineapple-in-the-Shell

One of the most refreshing summer desserts you've ever tasted—

Leaving the leafy top of pineapple intact, cut a slice off the top to use as lid. Scoop out fruit, leaving shell, about ½ inch thick. Cut pineapple in chunks (discard core) and mix with ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup lime juice. Spoon back into shell, top with "lid"—hold in place with a skewer. Chill 3 to 4 hours or overnight. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Crisp Fried Chicken

Can't have an old-time picnic without fried chicken. Good hot or cold—

¾ cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon paprika
¼ teaspoon pepper

1 2½- to 3-pound ready-to-cook broiler-fryer, cut up
Fat

Combine the flour and seasonings in a paper or plastic bag; add 2 or 3 pieces of chicken at a time and shake. Place on rack to let coating dry. Heat fat (¼ inch deep in skillet) till it will sizzle a drop of water. Brown meaty pieces first; then slip others in. Don't crowd (use two skillets, if needed). Brown one side slowly; turn—use tongs so not to pierce. When all is lightly browned, 15 to 20 minutes, reduce heat; cover. (If cover isn't tight, add 1 tablespoon water.) Cook until tender, 30 to 40 minutes. Uncover last 10 minutes to crisp. Makes 4 servings.

Better Homes & Gardens Test-Kitchen note: For extra crustiness, add ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs to flour for coating.

Potluck Potato Salad

We call it "perfect"—and there's no dressing to make—

5 cups sliced cooked potatoes
2 teaspoons vinegar
2½ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 cup chopped onion
1½ cups mayonnaise or salad dressing
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Sprinkle potatoes with vinegar and seasonings. Add onion (and, if you wish, 1 cup sliced celery and ½ cup sliced sweet pickle). Add mayonnaise; toss to mix. Fold in eggs. Chill well. Makes 8 servings.

Garden Coleslaw

Cut cabbage very fine for easy eating—

3 cups crisp finely shredded cabbage
½ cup snipped parsley
½ cup sliced green onions
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

2 to 3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 teaspoon salt

Combine the chilled vegetables. Mix remaining ingredients for dressing, stirring to dissolve sugar. Pour over vegetables. Toss lightly. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Better Homes & Gardens Test-Kitchen note: To make extra-fine cabbage shreds, cut cabbage with a chef's knife.

Deviled Eggs

For extra flavor and color, add chopped pimiento, olives, or green onions to the yolk mixture—

6 hard-cooked eggs, halved lengthwise
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Remove egg yolks; mash and combine with remaining ingredients. Refill egg whites, using pastry tube if desired. (For plump stuffed eggs, refill only 8 of the whites; chop extras for salad garnish next day.) Chill.

Good Times Yellow Cake

This rich, buttery cake makes the perfect base for a fluffy coconut frosting—

⅔ cup butter or margarine
1¾ cups sugar
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons vanilla
3 cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1¼ cups milk

Cream butter, add sugar, eggs, and vanilla and beat till fluffy (beat 5 minutes at high speed on mixer, scraping bowl occasionally to guide batter into beaters, or beat 5 minutes by hand). Sift flour with baking powder and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with milk; beat after each addition. Beat 1 minute longer. Bake in 2 paper-lined 9x1½-inch round pans in moderate oven (350°) 30 to 35 minutes or till done. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pans. Frost thoroughly cooled cake with Coconut Frosting.

Coconut Frosting

A delicious not-so-sweet frosting you whisk up with your electric mixer—

1 cup sugar
Dash salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup water
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 3½ ounce can (1¼ cups) flaked coconut

Combine sugar, salt, cream of tartar, and water; bring to boiling and cook and stir till sugar dissolves. Place egg whites in small bowl of electric mixer. Pour boiling syrup in a thin stream over unbeaten egg whites, beating at high speed till of spreading consistency. Add vanilla. Spread on cooled cake and sprinkle with coconut. Frosts top and sides of two 8- or 9-inch layers.

Devil's Food Cake

A feathery moist cake for lovers of mild chocolate—

⅔ cup shortening
1⅔ cups sifted cake flour
1¼ cups sugar
1 teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup cocoa (regular-type, dry)
1 cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Stir shortening to soften. Sift in flour, sugar, soda, and salt. Add cocoa and ⅔ cup of the buttermilk. Mix till all flour is dampened. Beat vigorously 2 minutes. Add remaining buttermilk, the eggs, and vanilla. Beat vigorously 2 minutes longer. Bake in 2 paper-lined 8x1½-inch round pans in moderate oven (350°) 25 to 30 minutes or till done. Frost with Fast Fudge Frosting and garnish with a ring of walnut halves.

Fast Fudge Frosting

1 1-pound package confectioners' sugar, sifted (4½ cups sifted)
½ cup cocoa (regular-type, dry)
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup boiling water
⅓ cup soft butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, cocoa and salt, mixing well. Add boiling water and butter; blend. Add vanilla. Beat till of spreading consistency. (If frosting stiffens too quickly while spreading, stir in a few drops hot water.) Frosts tops and sides of two 8-inch layers.

Fresh Peach Ice Cream

It can travel to yard or park right in the ice-cream freezer—no melting!—

1 cup mashed ripe peaches
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup chilled evaporated milk
3 tablespoons water
2 to 3 drops almond extract (optional)

Blend peaches, sugar, and lemon juice. Combine milk, water, and almond extract; stir in peach mixture. Freeze in a 1-quart ice-cream freezer, using 6 parts ice to 1 part coarse salt. Remove dasher. Cover top of freezer can with several thicknesses of waxed paper; replace lid. Pack in ice and salt using 4 parts ice to 1 part salt. Allow to ripen 1 hour. Or store ice cream in refrigerator tray. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Submarine Sandwiches

You take all the makings to the picnic site; guests combine them on the spot to suit their appetites—

Wrap individual (miniature) French loaves to carry on picnic. Take along prepared mustard, garlic butter and/or mayonnaise with curry powder for spreading on split loaves. In ice chest, take baked ham, Swiss cheese, tomatoes, cucumber—all to be sliced at picnic; also lettuce, olives, pickles —what-have-you. Let everyone stack up his own submarine.

Piccalilli Baked Beans

The tang of pickle in a picnic favorite. Serve cold on a hot summer day—

6 slices bacon
⅓ cup finely chopped onion
2 1-pound cans (4 cups) pork and beans
½ cup drained sweet-pickle relish
2 tablespoons molasses
½ teaspoon salt

Fry bacon till crisp; drain and crumble. Cook onion in 2 tablespoons bacon drippings till tender but not brown; add to beans. Add relish, molasses, salt, and bacon. Turn into 1½-quart casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350°) about 50 minutes. Serve hot, or chill. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Chocolate Chippers

The favorite of all ages for indoor or outdoor eating—

½ cup butter, margarine, or shortening
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semisweet chocolate pieces
½ cup chopped California walnuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream together butter and sugars. Add egg; beat well. Sift together dry ingredients; stir into creamed

Always treat to eat

HE LIKES TO cook

There's more to fishing than just hauling 'em in. Here, our author-chef, who makes a career of the outdoors, tells you how to get them from your creel to the plate

Our guest columnist this month is Bradford Angier, who now lives—and writes—in a log cabin on the remote headwaters of the Peace River in northern British Columbia. A former newspaperman and editor of a Boston trade magazine, Brad resigned to devote himself to freelancing and outdoor living. He has authored six books for outdoorsmen, including a guide to cooking in the wilderness.

About the only cooking odors that even come close to approaching the good fresh aroma of fish frying outdoors are the sizzling smell of grilled bacon, coffee bubbling in the heat of a campfire, and biscuits browning over the evening's apple-red coals. Fortunately, all fish are eminently suited to the frying pan.

If you've been lucky or exceptionally skillful (in that order) during a day's fishing, you will return to the camp or your kitchen with a full creel. Open and clean your catch as soon after landing as possible. Leave on the head and tail where the sweetest meats lie.

To scale a fish, scrape from tail toward head—the edge of an ordinary dime-store tablespoon does the job, or use knife or scaler.

To clean a fish, slit the belly and discard entrails as soon as you conveniently can. Rinse the cavity. If you don't intend to cook the fish immediately, it's preferable to wipe it out well with paper towels. Keep the fish dry, cool, loosely covered.

To fillet a fish, with a sharp-pointed knife, cut through the flesh along the back, from head to tail. Now turn the knife flat, and letting the blade slide over the ribs, cut along the spine to the tail. Lift off the side of the fish in one piece. Turn fish, remove other fillet.

To keep your catch moist and tender, and to bring out its delicate flavor, cook only till the fish loses its translucent look.

Before the fish goes in the pan, salt inside and out. The taste will be further enhanced if you also sprinkle the inside with pepper and lemon juice.

Get your fry pan just hot enough that its enrichment of butter or margarine (about ¼ inch deep) barely begins to tan. Roll the fish in crumbs, flour, or corn meal, if you want, although many of us prefer the crispy skin unadorned.

Brown fish on both sides. Fry the first side a few minutes longer than the second—total time depends on thickness. Test with a fork—once the fish is easily flaked, it is done. Don't overcook. Best final topping? Good fresh butter!

Simple, yes, yet this is the fish fry of the dedicated purists. And with the sun and mountain ridge upon ridge reflected in the water as you eat, and a breeze starting to trumpet a cool blue note, this is food you're never going to forget.

In eating fish, some people appear to have bitten into a porcupine. But there is a way to tackle that fish on your plate. Anchor it with your fork, and then with tip of knife, make a "dotted line" the full length, about ½ inch in from the back and down to the spine. Now ease this strip back. Following the same cut, slither your knife flat along the spine to loosen the flesh and gently fold this piece down so both sides are spread out.

Sever head; carefully lift out the spine, leaving the fine bones attached to it. Pick out any strays. Now flip the fish back together, hotel-style, and eat in comfort.

For a modern frontier fish fry that will whet appetites to a wonderful edge alongside a friendly fire, dip the fillets, steaks, or cleaned pan fish into evaporated milk. For a richer crust, immerse next in beaten eggs. Finally roll in cracker or bread crumbs. This seals the flavor in and the fat out.

Have the fat ¼ inch deep in a heavy skillet and thoroughly hot, just short of smoking, so that a protective coating will be quickly formed. Do not let the fat get any hotter; this will cause dryness and loss of flavor. Turn each piece once. When the meat flakes easily, it's ready. You can almost hear the creak and splash of trolling fur-brigade canoes when you sit down to fish like this.

The greatest delicacy this continent's waters have to provide, for my money, is subtly flavored ling liver. If you bring in a mess of ling or other type of cod and wish to prepare something special, get a couple of frying pans going. In th first, fry the vitamin-rich liver very lightly. In the other, fry abou half as much diced onion. Onc the onion is soft but not brown, ad it to the livers. Stir together gentl and cook a minute longer. Whe you spoon this over hot butter toast, no one will want any los fishermen wandering hungrily int the firelight for a while.

Let's face it. The fishing can b too good! Some weeks we gorg ourselves so nobly with brook trou and such that the day arrives whe we guiltily realize we'd almos rather reach for a plebeian ham burger. When this happens, th following recipe is a passport t further piscatorial pleasure.

Trout with Almonds: In a small skillet, heat 2 tablespoon butter and toss in 3 tablespoon sliced almonds (you can buy then that way). When almonds ar lightly browned, stir in 1 teaspoo paprika, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley (Powdered lemon juice and parsle flakes are handy if you are cookin in the wild wood back of beyond.

In a skillet large enough not t crowd 6 trout, melt 3 tablespoon butter, and when hot, fry the salte and peppered catches over mediu heat until their undersides flak readily. Then turn them, tip th little skillet of sizzling almond butter over, and finish cooking.

Here's one more recipe I gen erally reserve until the tag end of a successful season when, although he may not admit it, even the mos devoted Waltonian would just a soon sit down to something beside poached fish, steamed fish, bake fish, broiled fish, and, of course ordinary fried fish.

Fisherman's Reprieve: Rub 8 pan fish inside and out with a mix ture of 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ tea spoon each paprika and pepper. I your skillet, heat a stick of butte (½ cup) with ¼ teaspoon thyme 2 tablespoons each lemon juice an chopped parsley. Lay in the catch and fry over medium heat, turning once, until flaky. And get ready t go fishing again tomorrow, and th next day, and the day after that.

A dream come true!

YOU can't ignore the warm reception you get as you enter this remodeled kitchen. It has all the charm of yesteryear with today's efficiency. Although large by ordinary standards, the old kitchen was hemmed in. Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Kelce of St. Louis, Missouri, wanted to open it up and absorb the butler's pantry.

Three rooms, minus walls (c or), become one large kitch

Photographs: Hedrich-Blessing. Designer: Glen Alspaugh. Decorator: Lucille Covington Winter. Data: Lois Rea

New brick wall boasts a fireplace with raised hearth, built-in ovens, and alcoved cooking center—with barbecue grill and cooking top. Two ventilators and strip lighting hide behind the brick arch. Handsome accessories which the Kelces collected through the years on their travels help to give this kitchen distinction, beauty, and personality.

Colorful tiles with fruit designs enhance decor of the kitchen, provide a clean-easy backsplash. The factory-made cabinets have metal interiors and shelves, fruit-wood fronts and doors. The far corner of the kitchen was the old butler's pantry, is now a super flower-arranging center—with its own sink and storage for containers and bowls.

Hard-working peninsula is a perfect snack and work area. A planning center is on the other side. The interesting stools were copied from old bar stools seen in southern France. The built-in food warmer and the refrigerator-freezer offer the "ultimate utmost" in meal preparation and service.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

STOPS ITCH—RELIEVES PAIN

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Gardening should be fun! And it will, with Better Homes & Gardens Garden Ideas book. Available wherever books are sold. Or send check or money order for $1.25 to Department 7707, Meredith Publishing Company, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

"I don't know—you just looked suspicious."

"Courage, friends!" orated neighbor Ken Flowers at our patio party a short time ago. "We old folks have only a few more days to run the world. Then, if I heard the commencement speakers correctly, the Class of 1962 takes over."

Can't help admiring Rosie and Jerry Detwiler. Each earned and used a $2,000 scholarship at University of Southern California. Now married and prospering, they are gradually paying it all back, to help other needy students. Don't tell me our modern young people all lack moral stature.

For heaven's sake, drive carefully, sir, and do not insist on having your rites.

I see nothing astounding in the fact that our school children have trouble with Modern History. So do the people who are making it.

Mrs. Harper says she finds it difficult to believe that people really do the awful things she tells about them.

"Is the-ah-female of the species in?"

Our 16-year-old Rosemary reports that boy friend Jimmy has a new skin diving outfit at $5 down and $5 a week. "It's proof he's growing up," said she, with unsuspected wisdom. "He has gone into debt."

My unreasonable facsimile, Burton Hillis, Jr., age 12, got to tour the White House with his school class, and the young rascal wrote back: "I really enjoyed this opportunity to visit my future home."

"The probability of life originating by accident," says Biologist Edwin Conklin, "is comparable to the probability of the unabridged dictionary originating from an explosion in a print shop."

"Our workers in Washington," says neighbor Paul Fannin, "need our disciplinary guidance as constantly as do any children. We must listen respectfully to their ideas, but reserve the right to make the final decisions ourselves."

Somehow, daughters are easier to talk to than sons. I can speak to my beloved girl children at length about what a whiz I used to be in baseball, and they never demand a demonstration.

Had to go down to our church at 9 o'clock Saturday night, and caught our new assistant pastor, Charles Ehrhardt, in the dark sanctuary rehearsing his sermon to empty pews. Which helps me understand how he is such an inspiring speaker. It's like excellence in the pole vault, the classical drama, or the piano recital—the gifted ones practice long and hard before the public sees them.

What would we parents do if our children consistently brought home grades of 68 per cent on tests in their school work? But that's the average score adults make when tested on automobile driving reflexes and knowledge! Very few wrecks are accidents; the car goes where the driver puts it.

There's an understandable touch of bitterness about this sign we saw at a filling station during our vacation trip: "We collect taxes—federal, state, and county. As a side line, we also sell gasoline."

I note with sadness that a dollar won't do as much for me as it used to. But then, I won't do as much for a dollar as I used to, either.

Now that his wife has bought that nice new set of garden furniture, Ed Hale has been sitting out in the sunshine, thinking about the family budget. "It's all a matter of reciprocal education," he told me as he rocked gently in his chair. "You teach your wife to buy only what she absolutely needs—and she'll teach you what you've absolutely got to get along without."

"This is the power era," declares Brant C. Bracken, in a letter from his New Mexico home. "As never before in history, we have power. Electric power. Water power. Judicial power. Mechanical power. Atomic power. Jet power. Rocket power. We also have The Power to solve a great many of the problems of present-day living, if we'd only draw on it."

Inklings of maturity have invaded the consciousness of 12-year-old Burt. "Do you know," he asks, "I was the oldest guy there?" referring to the waiting room of Doctor Padula, our family pediatrician.

I told Doc about this and said that Burt shouldn't have to wait his turn.

"Doesn't seniority count for anything in your shop?" I inquired.

"No," he said, "but it's apparently the system you use in picking which bills to pay."

He was kidding, of course, but I went home and looked over the check stubs just to make sure all the kids were paid for.

Before you buy, see this new Waste King Universal range. You'll like its looks, as well as the way it cooks.

Like this: You set a dial for "done-ness" and one for dinner time. Programatic control and the Meat Minder inside have your food cooked just right, right on time.

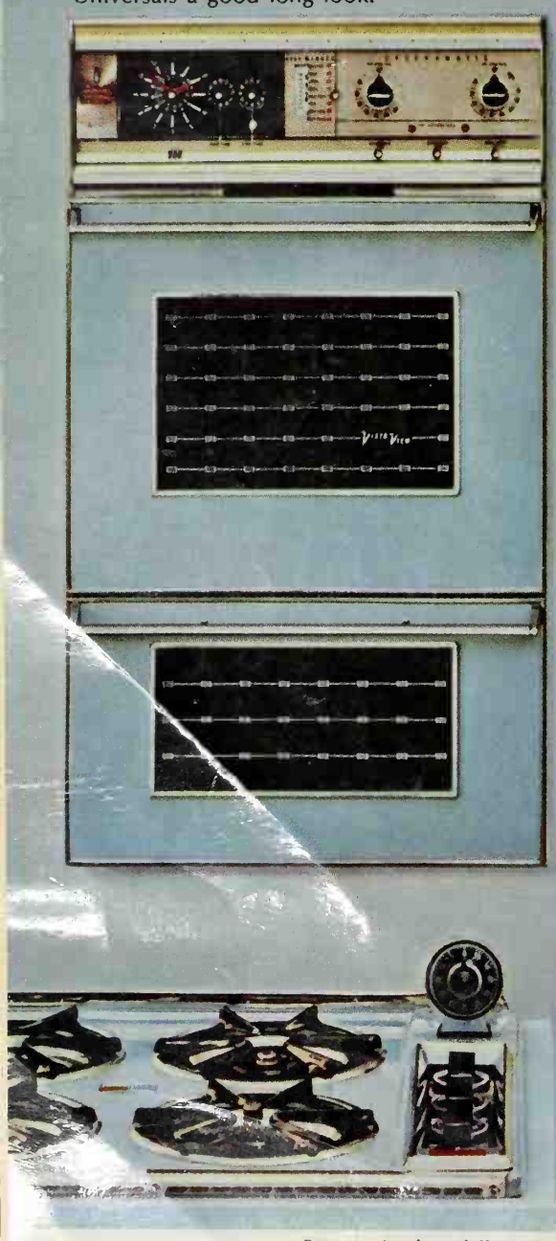
And by then, if you're not ready, the oven has turned itself down to keep food warm indefinitely, without over-cooking.

You could put a 25-pound turkey plus rolls, casserole, and dessert on the 603 square inches of rack space in this huge oven. Yet it fits a standard 24-inch space.

(Turn on the oven light and you'd see the motorized triple rotisserie, included in the price of this "Imperial 928.")

The surface unit has its own timer! And the whole unit is this easy to clean: Top lifts off for washing in your sink; plate-size burner bowls lift off for washing in your dishwasher.

Our full line of modern, easy-to-install gas and electric ranges has 90 years of know-how built in. Better give the new Waste King Universals a good long look.



Other dishwashers can't hold everything on this counter, much less wash it clean and dry it shining.

This new Waste King Universal just did.

Everything, including big frying pan, tall coffee pot, and deep mixing bowl.

Load a Waste King Universal any way you like. (Even lift out the top basket, leaving a roomy roll-out rack for washing extra-large pots and pans.) Two full-width full-power wash arms send water over and under and into everything inside.

This machine heats its own water to a super-cleansing and sanitizing 165°; pumps washing action into it; and continuously filters out everything else.

Choose wood panels, stainless, chrome, or any of 14 colors. Choose the best dishwasher made—this new "Imperial 900," made to last by Waste King Universal.

Here is proof that a Waste King Universal disposes of all food waste fast—no matter how tough the grind.

Just look at these results of laboratory tests confirmed by Good Housekeeping:

Time in minutes for disposing of:	Rib bones (10 oz.)	Corncobs (Six, 3")	Corn husks (7 oz.)	Mixed garbage (10 oz.)
Mfr. A's best disposer	6.3	3.6	4.6	3.6
Mfr. B's best	7.0	3.7	4.0	6.5
Mfr. C's best	12.7	7.0	3.8	8.0
Waste King Universal Super Hush	3.6	1.4	2.4	2.7
Waste King Universal Imperial Hush	1.8	1.2	1.5	1.6

(In these repeated test runs, not one single jam developed in either of the Waste King Universal models!)

You can see why more than a third of all the families with food waste disposers have Waste King Universals (over two million of them): Because they are fastest, most trouble-free, longest-lasting.

Quiet, too. Listen. Precious little noise gets through Waste King Universal's Magic Sound Barrier. Doesn't this sound like the disposer you should have?

Troubles stay behind

By John D. Bloodgood

Where's that favorite relaxation spot of yours? Mountains? Seashore? Or is it a tranquil lake where the big ones never get away? Wherever it is, there's a place there to build your vacation home—one that will be waiting for you and your family every weekend you want to slip away.

When you find that place, make your second home as wonderful as this one: handsome, tough, completely carefree.

The exterior is as uncomplicated as vacation life itself—and so's the upkeep. That first staining of the tongue-and-groove redwood siding lets you forget it for years. The approach side is the same as the view side—it has no unwelcoming back to turn either way. Wide decks on each side stretch the living space to nearly crowd-size capacity.

Up goes the ceiling of the living room (below)—the peak inside follows the exterior roofline, to make the big living-dining-kitchen area more exciting. Construction is simple, and the exposed rafters create a cozy, relaxed atmosphere; it even makes cooking seem easier in the along-the-wall kitchen.

Simplicity—both in construction and in maintenance—particularly important when you build your vacation hous This one uses the same material inside as on the outside wa —tongue-and-groove redwood siding. Easy to apply bo places, it has a wax finish inside that doesn't turn play tin into housekeeping time.

Sliding glass doors do the entire ventilating and dayligh ing jobs, in addition to providing access to the outdoo They double as windows in the bedrooms (in the bath, to with obscured glass) and make the wall framing go fast.

Even the smallest bedroom—this one is just 7x9 feet—i completely comfortable when the outdoors is only inche away and in full view. And with the sliding glass oper you're cooled by a floor-to-ceiling breeze.

The wood paneling lends as much atmosphere to th bedrooms as it does to the daytime living areas.

Where do we stand on medicine's big three?

CANCER • HEART DISEASE • STROKE

By Gordon G. Greer

To those who draw conclusions from mortality tables alone, the outlook must seem bleaker than ever. Nearly 200,000 Americans will be killed this year by strokes. Cancer will claim 275,000. Heart disease, surpassing by far the other two put together, will approach three-quarters of a million. Each of these numbers, unfortunately, represents an all-time high.

The continuous population growth naturally accounts for some of this increase, but only for some of it: percentages also are up. For any given number of Americans, 52 per cent more will die of cancer this year than died of it in 1930; the corresponding increase in cardiovascular deaths, including all types of stroke, is 56 per cent. A longer lifetime, obviously, gives disease more time to operate, but not all who die are old. An appalling number of middle-aged men are being cut down today, and with the lone exception of accidents, cancer is now the first cause of death among this country's children. In the past 30 years, leukemia, an insidious cancer of the blood-forming tissues, has more than doubled the frequency with which it mutilates our youngsters.

Perhaps even grislier are these cold statistics: In a typical family made up of four people—if present trends prevail—three can expect to lose their lives to heart disease, cancer, or stroke. The odds against the entire family's escaping are currently 119 to 1, and rising every day.

A grim set of figures indeed. But the implications are perhaps less scary than they seem on first appearance.

"Looked at one way," a medical researcher recently remarked, "those numbers are even reassuring. They show our success in controlling other diseases. Everyone dies of *some*thing, after all, and what else is left to die of? Granted, when you're killed by heart disease or cancer, you're no better off than if you'd died of smallpox. But diseases are conquered one at a time. So far, we haven't done badly. You might say we've beaten our lesser opponents—subdued them, anyhow—and now we're tackling the big ones. Not long ago, we fled in panic at the mere thought of cancer or heart disease or 'being struck dead,' as stroke was described. Now there's a different attitude. Instead of running, we're fighting back, and each day with greater success."

Here is how things now stand:

Cancer

Partly because cancer is not the single disease people sometimes imagine, but a family of well over 100 basic types—the characteristic they hold in common is the abnormal growth of malignant cells—a single, simple cure is remote. Today, we use three weapons: surgery, radiation, and chemotherapy (drugs). Sometimes they work independently, sometimes in various combinations.

When trouble is spotted early enough in accessible locations, surgery does the best job. The body is opened and the malignancy removed. Two problems exist, however—aside from the fact that many tumors are inoperable to begin with. First is the danger that part of the cancer, overlooked in the course of the operation, will be left behind to erupt another day. Second is the chance that harmful cells, cut loose, will wander into the blood stream to be scattered throughout the body.

Progress in reducing each of these risks has been considerable. Largely because of new anesthetics, or new anesthetic techniques, surgeons today have more time to work. Cancers that only a few years ago would have been judged too large for removal are now tracked down and completely cut out in a single long operation. Smaller tumors are scrutinized more carefully than ever, then slowly, deliberately re-examined to insure that no shreds escape. Cancerous cells that stray from the scene can be destroyed by potent new drugs, administered during the operation. A recent study suggests that this treatment—surgery plus drugs—is twice as effective in curing breast cancer as surgery alone.

Radiation, too, has become more reliable. The danger that innocent tissues might be killed along with malignancies has been measurably diminished. For one thing, the rays are now aimed more precisely than they were a few years ago. For another, there are new high-power machines—several million volts—that spare noncancerous tissues. The risk is further limited by cross-fire radiation, a technique where rays attack the cancer from several different angles, so that no one healthy area is exposed to a dangerous dosage. And when these rays reach their targets today, they have a stronger effect: new methods of "pretreating" cancerous growths tend to rob them of their resistance, thus allowing a larger percentage of them to be shrunk to operable size.

An intriguing tool for future use, still largely unrefined, is the radioactive spy. By exposing certain chemicals to nuclear bombardment, scientists can turn them into radioactive isotopes, indistinguishable to the human body from their innocent counterparts. Thus, for instance, the thyroid gland, which houses the body's iodine, will attract and absorb without suspicion any iodine isotope injected into the body. Once inside the thyroid gland, the isotope releases its rays and kills any near-by cancer. Few regions of the body are quite so easily hit, but experts are looking for more.

Drugs are our other weapon. Except in two or three still doubtful cases, drugs have never cured cancer. They have, however, retarded its progress and alleviated its pain. Unquestionably, chemotherapy holds the brightest hopes for the future. It supplies the only available method for handling those cancers—and there are many—that defy all treatment by surgery and radiation.

Of the several hundred thousand that have so far been tested, about 20 drugs seem to work—perhaps not an overwhelming number, but enough to have lengthened hundreds of lifetimes for as much as several years. Encouragingly, leukemia, especially childhood leukemia, has been as responsive as any kind of cancer to chemotherapy—although, unhappily, it still must be added that leukemia is ultimately fatal.

The risk of chemotherapy, like that of radiation, lies in killing the good with the bad. Cancer drugs are extremely toxic, and in many cases their side effects render them too uncertain. Less dangerous compounds will undoubtedly be found, but until they are, available drugs are employed ingeniously. Sometimes a drug and its own antidote are both injected at once, so that side effects can be nullified almost before they occur. In another technique, called perfusion, a heart-lung machine, more commonly used in cardiac surgery, is linked to a detour in the circulatory system so that drugs employed against localized cancer can move in and out of the target zone without being carried beyond it; the risk is thus greatly diminished. Other times, teams of similar drugs, injected in sequence over periods of time, work better than one drug alone—both in the power with which they hit cancer and in the absence of side effects.

Today, curing cancer means finding it early, when surgery and X-rays can stop it. Through early detection and available treatments, the cancer cure rate could be improved by an estimated 50 per cent—from one case in three to one case in two. (These figures apply to all cancers combined, not to specific types.) Every doctor's office has the diagnostic tools. The Papanicolaou smear test, for instance, will almost always spot a uterine cancer in time for an absolute cure—sometimes ten years before symptoms appear. Wide-scale use of the proctoscopic examination, authorities believe, could uncover three-fourths of intestinal cancers before they got out of control. An X-ray technique called mammography localizes cancers of the breast, and Declomycin, an antibiotic, has recently showed an ability to find early stomach cancer. Similar tests are often used for other parts of the body, and have recently been improved.

The only difficulty with these diagnostic tools is that so few people use them. Their waste is one of the great disappointments of medical research. Over 14,000 women this year will die of uterine cancer. Yet uterine cancer is curable if found in its early stages, when the Pap smear easily finds it. These women marked for an early death are among the astonishing 90 per cent who won't spend five minutes once a year for a test that could save their lives.

"The patients I have the most trouble sympathizing with," one doctor said recently, "are women with cases of uterine cancer we could have cured years ago, and heavy smokers with cancer of the lung."

The alarming rise in the incidence of lung cancer among American men—500 per cent in 25 years—is thought to represent the greatest increase of any noninfectious disease in the history of the human race. To make the problem even graver, curing lung cancer, especially in its later stages, is extremely difficult. Barely six per cent of its victims survive.

This spring, England's Royal College of Physicians announced that heavy smokers may have 30 times the death rate from lung cancer that nonsmokers have, thereby adding another distinguished name to a growing list of organizations that have sounded a public alert, among them the United States Public Health Service, the World Health Organization, the International Union Against Cancer, the American Cancer Society, the British Ministry of Health, and the National Cancer Institute of Canada. The tobacco industry is concerned about these findings, and its own research institute is studying the effects of smoking on health, including the advantages of new filter materials.

Meanwhile, the search for causes and cures—and perhaps one day a preventive, a simple pill or vaccine—goes on without interruption. Each new idea is tested. Dozens of substances every day are thrust beneath microscopes. Thirteen kinds of viruses are known to cause cancer in mice. But in men? No one knows for certain. Is heredity a factor? In retinoblastoma, a rare eye cancer, it may be, probably is; in other types, probably not—though few things can be completely ruled out. Why, in the past quarter century, has stomach cancer in the United States declined fully 40 per cent? Experts would love to know. When will the first child be cured of leukemia? To this most persistently frustrating question, there simply is no answer. In the matter of finding a simple pill to end the whole problem forever, what results have there been? One man working in cancer research smiles wryly and quotes Thomas Edison: "Results? Why, I have gotten a lot of results. I know several thousand things that won't work."

Heart disease

The several dozen maladies that constitute "heart trouble" can be grouped, for simplicity, into four categories: congenital heart deformities, rheumatic heart disease, high blood pressure (or hypertension), and hardening of the arteries (atherosclerosis). Doctors today have greater success dealing with the first two types, which concentrate on children. Let's start with this happier news.

Congenitally defective hearts might broadly be described as those that enter the world with openings where none should exist or with insufficient openings where larger ones are called for. Normally, a heart comes equipped with strong walls that divide it into tight chambers, and with four efficient valves that direct the flow of blood. Impure ("blue") blood enters the right side, which sends it through the lungs—a short distance, requiring little pressure. Purified, the blood returns to the heart—to the left side this time—where a far greater pressure pumps it out to all other parts of the body.

A congenital defect—or, frequently, a combination of them—disrupts this delicate system. A hole may exist in the wall (or septum) that separates the heart's two sides. A narrowing of the main artery (the full-blown term is coarctation of the aorta) can gravely impede the progress of blood to the lower two-thirds of the body while raising the pressure in the upper one-third. A valve may close improperly or perhaps fail to open wide enough to allow the free passage of blood. Patent ductus arteriosus is among the most common defects. This means that a blood vessel just outside the heart, one very useful prior to birth but superfluous thereafter, has failed to close and shrivel up as nature intended it should; blood is consequently pumped back to the lungs, increasing the demand on the heart. An equally unhealthy condition exists when the main blood conduits attached to the heart are not hooked to the proper chambers.

Most of these defects, in one way or another, impose an added work load on the heart. Either it has to pump the same blood over again or it has to generate abnormal pressure to force it through narrowed openings. In time, the heart becomes overburdened and runs the risk of failing. Another consequence of some congenital defects is the mixing of pure blood with impure, and the distribution throughout the body of blood deficient in oxygen. This condition, termed cyanosis, is found in so-called "blue babies."

Not long ago, such problems were hopeless. Today, because of recent progress in the field of surgery—with special thanks to the heart-lung machine—most of them can be fixed. An elaborate and intricate piece of equipment, the heart-lung machine (or pump-oxygenator) can assume for several hours at a time the functions of both of those vital organs when the heart must be stopped for surgery. It permits repairs, for the first time in history, inside the heart itself—one of the most impressive achievements in modern medicine. The recent perfection of plastic blood vessels, synthetic patches for holes in the heart, and artificial valves that replace defective ones, represents another giant step toward relief of congenital defects.

Not all hearts with defective structures are suitable for mending, but more and more types of malformations are being corrected each day. No longer is it unusual for a young heart patient, described by his doctor as "blue as grape juice" when wheeled in for surgery, to be playing baseball six weeks later and outrunning most of his teammates.

Progress in the field of rheumatic heart disease provides an even greater hope. Alone among cardiovascular defects, this ailment, which strikes most frequently between the ages of 5 and 15, is not only treated more effectively now than ever but can actually be prevented.

In rheumatic fever, the trouble begins with a streptococcal infection, generally a sore throat. In more than 95 cases out of 100, the trouble also ends there. But sometimes these germs produce an inflammation known as rheumatic fever. When the heart is attacked, as it appears to be in the majority of cases, its valves can be damaged and its lining diseased. Mild attacks may never be detected; severe ones, however, may lead to a lifetime of restricted activity—or at least they did until recently, when surgery made corrections possible.

A sore throat caused by a streptococcus germ—not all of them are, of course—usually has certain symptoms: pain with swallowing, sore and swollen glands underneath the jaw, fevers that range from 101 to 104 degrees, headache, and nausea. These conditions suggest a visit to the doctor.

Unlike a number of other diseases, rheumatic fever produces no immunity; in fact, its victims are more vulnerable than ever to subsequent attacks. Such attacks, though, can be averted; regular doses of sulfa drugs or weakened penicillin—one shot a month or one or two pills a day—give adequate protection. If only more people would use them. A recent survey indicated that in one group of people who had once had rheumatic fever and were thus targets for second (and more damaging) attacks, not even one-seventh were taking advantage of this available preventive—even though public health departments or local Heart Associations often supply free or low-cost penicillin.

Heart disease among older people presents a stickier problem, but in that field, too, recent accomplishments have been considerable—especially in the treatment of hypertension, commonly known as high blood pressure.

Hypertension occurs when the heart muscle substantially increases its power in order to force blood through small arteries (or arterioles) whose openings are abnormally constricted. As with many types of congenital defects, some of which themselves cause hypertension, the dangers include an overworked heart that may grow larger and weaker, and the rupture of overstrained blood vessels. Hypertension also speeds the advance of atherosclerosis, complicates many kidney ailments, frequently leads to heart attacks, and tends in various other ways to limit the life expectancy.

In possibly 10 per cent of all cases—those in which causes can be reasonably determined—surgery may lead to correction. Nephritis or chronic kidney infection is one such curable cause. An obstruction in the renal artery, which joins the heart and kidneys, is a second; a kidney deprived of its quota of blood appears to release a substance in the body that somehow elevates pressure. A tumor in the adrenal gland is another cause of hypertension that surgery sometimes corrects.

Usually, however, no detectable cause exists, and physicians rely on drug therapy. Largely within the past few years, a veritable army of hypotensive (pressure-lowering) drugs has been put at the doctor's command. Whole families of them, working together, mount a formidable attack. Some move directly to dilate blood vessels. Others do the same thing more deviously. Ganglionic blocking agents prevent the passage of nervous impulses that might stimulate higher pressure. Certain diuretic agents cause salt to be excreted by the kidneys. (Hypertension is aggravated by excess salt in the body.) Among the promising newer weapons is an all-but-unpronounceable oral drug—dihydroxyphenylalanine, or alpha-methyl DOPA—that appears to regulate an adrenal hormone which in turn influences blood pressure.

When drugs don't work, a major operation on the sym-

athetic nervous system, called a sympathectomy, may interupt the delivery of pressure-raising messages. But so effective re the hypotensive compounds that rarely is surgery needed. n fact, the control of high blood pressure is handled so effectively by drugs today that the problem now is to find a reventive—so far, an elusive goal.

The final type of "heart trouble," atherosclerosis, roams rgely uncontrolled. A killer with several aliases—it is also nown as hardening of the arteries, arteriosclerosis, and, not uite correctly, as simply atheroma—this elusive, inscrutable irculatory ailment is thought by some medical authorities to ause or hasten fully half of the deaths that occur in this ountry today, possibly many more.

What causes this brutal disease? Efforts to ascribe it to a ngle offender have been so consistently futile that "a constelation of circumstances" has become the customary answer. Heredity certainly plays a part. A diet rich with animal fats is nother leading suspect. A sedentary life with emotional strain eems to help it along, and so does nicotine. So does diabetes. o does hypertension.

Once it was thought that atherosclerosis was a natural conequence of growing old, but that theory has been discarded. he disease may keep its presence hidden until middle age or eyond, but it starts its deadly work much earlier. No fewer han 77 per cent of the American servicemen killed in the Korean War and later autopsied were found to have had some egree of atherosclerosis.

Somewhat less bewildering—though far from sufficiently clear—is the manner in which the trouble takes shape. A axy substance, cholesterol, and other fatty substances that elp carry fats and proteins through the body, appear in too reat abundance. (This, at least, is one theory.) The excess is ometimes removed by the liver, but more often it shows up on ne arteries' inner walls. Irritated, those arteries try to rout ne intruder, but fail. Somewhat as a finger gets hard and vollen when it tries to expel a splinter, the arteries, in atempting to defend themselves, only complicate the problem; ne immediate area grows rigid and rough, inviting new deosits of fat. Slowly, a cushionlike bulge starts to form, jutting nto the blood stream.

Sometimes, over a period of years, the bulge expands in uch a way that the passage is wholly blocked—what doctors all an occlusion. A blood clot often forms at the site, with the me dismaying result: a total block of the artery. Such a clot called a thrombus. Occasionally, a piece of this substance reaks off to be carried away in the blood stream. This is nown as an embolism. Emboli, too, can plug arteries, though sually smaller ones.

For some strange reason, as yet undiscovered, these fatty ushions and clots of blood most often grow in risky locations, remost among them the coronary arteries. The coronary rteries, incidentally, are not the large arteries through which ll the body's blood flows; they are two smaller blood vessels nat crown the heart and feed its muscle cells. Obstructions in oronary arteries can bring death in a single minute—though y no means do they always do so. In various other parts of ne body, arterial blockage means strokes (in the head), angrene (in the legs), and Bright's disease (in the kidneys).

Of course, the treatment of this savage malady is today nore effective than ever. Thrombolytic agents and anticoagunt drugs, respectively, can dissolve clots or keep them from rming. Parts of thickened arteries in some areas of the body n be surgically replaced by synthetic substitutes. Thyroid ormones and estrogens have also showed good results.

But to each new hope an "if" is attached, or a "sometimes," "possibly." For often, these tricks prove totally useless, and

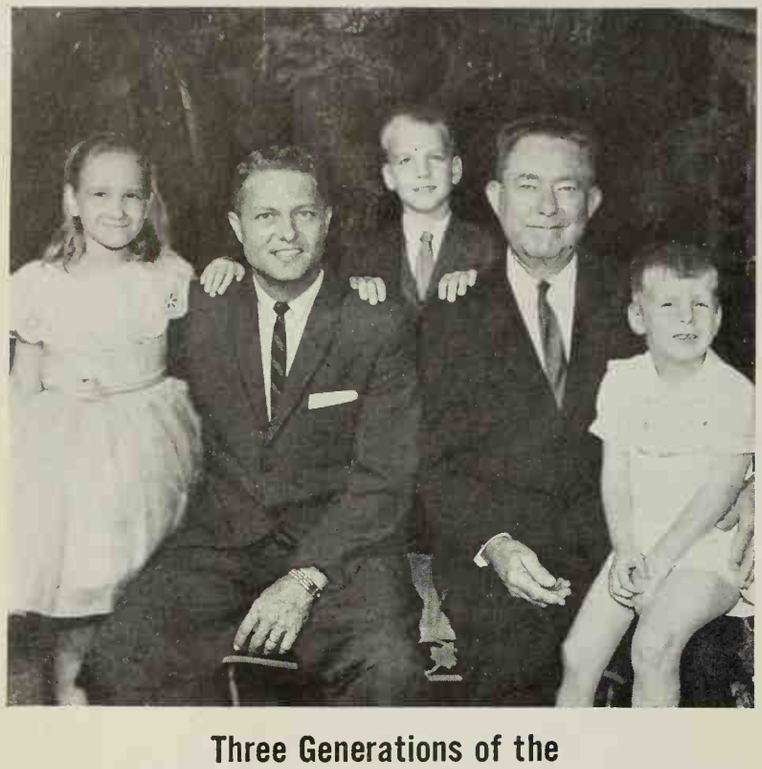
PORTRAIT OF FAMILY PROTECTION



Three Generations of the Aldes H. Cadwallader Family of San Antonio, Texas, Protected by Bankers Life of Des Moines!

Forty years of insurance protection for the Cadwallader family of San Antonio illustrates again the continuing confidence in Bankers Life Company of Des Moines. Three generations of this prominent Texas family—Mr. Aldes H. Cadwallader, Jr., investment banker, his son, Aldes III, and grandchildren, Jeffrey, Cynthia and Aldes IV—enjoy the security of Bankers Life insurance... with benefits fitted to both present and future needs.

Since 1922, when Mr. Cadwallader, Jr., bought his first policy, Bankers Life Company of Des Moines has brought new protection, greater security and new peace of mind to policyholders through many outstanding insurance innovations. They include policies planned and designed to help the family meet changing conditions, anticipated changes in situation, changes in income.

Guaranteed Insurability is one of the newer "firsts" initiated by Bankers Life of Des Moines. Thousands now enjoy its unique protection benefits. Here the policyholder is guaranteed the right to acquire additional insurance, over the years, without further medical examination.

Distinctive policies pioneered by Bankers Life are: Group Permanent Insurance, Special "Wife Protection," Flexible Policies, Widows Pension Benefits, Deductible Hospital and Surgical Policies. All are administered and serviced by this outstanding company that has brought security to millions since 1879.

never do they serve as cures. Doctors must still fight atherosclerosis with a series of delaying tactics. Until more research uncovers new secrets, nothing better is available.

Stroke

Strokes are often said to affect the brain much as coronary attacks affect the heart: by either the blockage or rupture of an artery or by some kind of malformation, one of the body's vital organs is deprived of oxygen. To that extent, the diseases are alike. But in many respects, they pose different problems, and deserve to be thought of separately.

The deadliest cause of apoplexy (another name for stroke) is a hemorrhage within the skull. Stiffened by atherosclerosis or weakened by an unknown factor, possibly hereditary or congenital, the wall of an artery suddenly bursts, often under the urging of high blood pressure. In perhaps 25 per cent of these cerebral hemorrhages, blood pouring out of the ruptured vessel is aimed away from the brain; with luck, a blood clot soon seals the hole, thus limiting the damage. But usually the flow is into the brain, with more severe consequences. Like a garden hose squirted full force at a sand pile, a stream of blood directed at the brain disfigures it at once. If the hemorrhage itself proves less than lethal, an attendant danger often lurks downstream, where clots begin forming when the interruption of the push behind it slows the normal flow of blood. Half of such cases, possibly more, are ultimately fatal, some within just a few seconds. Others spare their victims for future attacks or leave them paralyzed or disabled.

Even before such a hemorrhage occurs, one of the conditions leading to it may produce a smaller stroke. A weak spot on the arterial wall—properly called an aneurysm—responds to the pressure of blood inside it by swelling out like a balloon. As it grows, this bulge can put undue pressure on near-by tissues of the brain, killing or injuring them. The final effect is much like that created by a tumor pressing on brain tissue. In either case, since different parts of the brain control specific functions, the immediate risk depends, in large part, on where the swelling takes place.

Another, more frequent cause of strokes is arterial obstruction. An estimated two-thirds to three-fourths of all cases result from the perilous combination of atherosclerosis and clotting. Blood vessels in the brain are so very small, however, some no thicker than a thread, that all kinds of emboli traveling through the body—pieces of clot broken off from the heart, clumps of bacteria, tumorous tissue, tiny bubbles of air—are also capable of blocking them.

Until a few years ago, stroke constituted what some doctors speak of as a "wastebasket diagnosis." There was no way of dealing effectively with it, no matter what the cause—hemorrhage, tumor, embolism, or atherosclerosis—and no matter where it occurred, so the common symptoms were simply labeled "stroke," without further investigation. Not so at all today. New methods for treating each type of stroke, most of them developed within the last ten years, have made more exact diagnosis necessary, and new tools have made it possible.

To determine, first, the cause of a stroke and, second, its precise location, a number of techniques are now in common use. A spinal tap is among the most important because of its ability to detect hemorrhages. An examination of the small blood vessels that lie behind the eyes, made possible by a device called an ophthalmoscope, is also of great significance, as is a recording of brain-wave patterns on an electroencephalogram. Simply by feeling certain arteries in the neck and by listening with a stethoscope to the flow of blood inside them, doctors can sometimes define a stroke by both its cause and location. If the patient is conscious, what facts he remembers

NEW! FUN AND FOOLPROOF WITH SURE-JELL

PEACH JAM (25 minutes from peaches to batch)

2 cups (about 1½ pounds whole) fully ripe peaches, peeled and finely chopped
4 cups sugar • ¾ cup water
1 box SURE-JELL*

Stir peaches and sugar together in large bowl. (If desired, add ⅛ teaspoon ascorbic acid to sugar to prevent browning of fruit.) Bring water and SURE-JELL to boil; boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add to fruit and stir 3 minutes. (Some sugar crystals may remain.) Pour into 6 medium glasses. Cover tightly with lids. After 24 hours, place in refrigerator. If jam will not be used within 3 weeks, store in freezer.

*If using CERTO® liquid Pectin, increase sugar to 4½ cups and add 2 tablespoons lemon juice to fruit. Reduce water to 2 tablespoons and substitute ½ bottle CERTO for SURE-JELL. Bring pectin and water just to boil—do not boil 1 minute before adding to fruit.

about the abruptness of the attack and about any small "incidents" preceding it are also of vital concern.

Among the newest diagnostic tools are ventriculography and angiography. In the former, oxygen is injected at the base of the spinal column and rises to the brain. There, it provides an excellent background for X-ray pictures of that organ's inner channels. Rarely does a tumor or malformation escape this type of detection. In a similar manner, angiography is concerned with getting good X-ray photos of blood vessels serving the brain. These vessels, invisible on standard X-rays, are injected with a harmless opaque dye that clearly reveals their outlines. By taking a modified X-ray movie of the passage of dye through the brain, doctors then see exactly which vessels are impeding the progress of blood.

Before the advent of such diagnostic tools, the cause of a stroke was usually assumed to lie deep within the brain itself. Then, as now, those buried areas were inaccessible to doctors. The situation seemed gloomy. But the assumption was apparently false. Modern tools of observation reveal that many strokes—maybe 25 to 40 per cent—are caused by obstructions outside the skull. In the upper chest, or, more commonly, in the neck's carotid arteries, the passage of blood is interrupted before it ever reaches the head.

This news is most encouraging. It means that a sizable number of strokes will yield to surgical treatment. When the block is confined to a small area, the surgeon can simply slit the blood vessel, remove the obstruction, and suture the incision. Larger obstructions, too big to remove, indicate the use of a by-pass graft. By introducing a synthetic detour into the narrowed artery, the surgeon leads the blood around the obstruction, eliminating its threat.

Clots and tumors inside the brain—or at least those to which there is access—can also be removed today, thanks to surgical advances. Frequently, blood vessels that have already ruptured and are prone to rupture again, or others that appear on the verge of a rupture, are strategically tied off. Anticoagulants and hypotensive drugs, so helpful in combating atherosclerosis and elevated blood pressure, also work against strokes. Some of these weapons, used after-the-fact today, might also serve as preventive measures if the risk were identified soon enough—as it could be in many situations with modern diagnostic equipment and the warnings provided by small "incidents" that often precede an attack.

What about the future? The prospects are increasingly bright. As angiography is made even safer, pictures of blood vessels feeding the brain may enable doctors to detect potential strokes as easily as tuberculosis can now be spotted by X-rays taken of the chest. The further miniaturization of surgical equipment will give access to ever deeper areas of the brain, while refinements in a technique called hypothermia—the deliberate lowering of the brain's temperature to reduce its need for oxygen—will permit longer operations. Instead of tying off weakened blood vessels, doctors may surround them with plastic jackets to prevent their ballooning while retaining their usefulness.

In the meantime, there are an estimated two million stroke victims alive in the United States. For them, too, there is hope. At such fine rehabilitation institutions as the New York University Medical Center, 90 per cent of all paralyzed patients are learning to walk again: 40 per cent will return to gainful employment. Following a rigid program established by a team of specialists, these victims of stroke are bravely determined to recover their usefulness. "It's hard work," one of them recently said, "and to other people, we might seem pathetic when we struggle to tie our own shoe laces or relearn the alphabet. But compared to our only alternatives, it's a very rewarding life."

WHAT EVERY MAN SHOULD THINK ABOUT BEFORE PAINTING A HOUSE

Some people, it seems, still think "paint is paint"... that there really isn't much difference between one brand and another. This can be a mighty expensive idea.

The fact is, selecting the right brand of house paint—and making sure it is applied properly—can save you literally hundreds of dollars over a period of years. Here are some reasons why.

It costs just as much, in labor or time, to apply a lower grade "bargain" paint as for the best you can buy. Cheap paint may even cost more, because it often doesn't have enough pigment to give a good coverage job. So you have to use more paint or apply more coats.

The house paint that will last the longest—and look the best throughout its life—will save you the most money in the long run. Trying to "save" $5 or $10 or $20 by using lower priced house paint can cost you hundreds of dollars in needless repainting expense.

The average thickness of two coats of house paint is 4/1000th of an inch. You are depending on this thin film of paint to protect and beautify the exterior of your house for years—under extreme conditions of sun-heat, driving rain, snow and sleet. Certainly you want the finest protection that modern chemical science can provide.

Remember that the quality of a house paint is something you can't see when you buy the paint.

It only shows up months or years after you've done the painting job. So the important "hidden ingredient" to look for is the quality reputation of the maker.

Your Sherwin-Williams Dealer offers two types of house paint which give you the finest quality money can buy—SWP Oil-Base House Paint, used on more homes than any other brand in the world—and the amazing new easy-to-apply A-100* Latex House Paint. Their superior quality and durability have been proved on homes in all sections of the country—and by years of weather exposure tests by the Sherwin-Williams Paint Research Laboratories, largest in the world. Your dealer will gladly advise you which type is best for your house, whether you do the job yourself or hire a painting contractor.

Ask your Sherwin-Williams Dealer, too, for a copy of the free booklet—"How To Save Money When You Paint Your Home"—which gives you many useful house-painting tips. For the very best in paints and paint service, always look for this familiar sign...

AUGUST GARDENING WHERE YOU LIVE!

With
Better Homes and Gardens
WESTERN FIELD EDITOR
Norvell Gillespie

We live in a dry, rocky area abounding in native boulders. Could you suggest a few compatible cactus-type plants to give dramatic effects? Mrs. J.R.S., Tucson, Arizona

The yucca, agave, aloe, and cactus clan offer many fine varieties. They are hardy, drought-resistant, and rich in design value. And, for emphasis, don't hesitate to use a few twisted Chinese junipers. I've noticed their success in similar drought areas in Colorado.

What will kill the little black flies in dichondra? I.B.D., Phoenix, Arizona

The gnats that occur in dichondra—also a household pest—usually appear where sewage fertilizer has been used. They are not readily controlled, but the best treatment found so far has been the application of 1 pound of 5 percent dieldrin or chlordane powder to each 400 square feet. This can be applied with a fertilizer spreader or a hand duster. A second treatment should be given about two weeks after the first to control those that may have hatched after the first application.

We like the fast-growing qualities of our Chinese elm, but its large roots have lifted several slabs of concrete in our patio. Can we cut these large roots without endangering the tree? W.E., Portland, Oregon

It's true that shallow roots of elm trees often lift paving. But the same strong root systems adapt themselves quickly to root-pruning, so the tree won't be permanently injured. August is a good time to start. Do half the pruning now, the balance in early spring, as new growth starts.

How do you tip layer bush berries to get new plants? E.C., Sebastopol, California

Veteran gardeners have long practiced this method of propagation by pegging down the ends of the canes with a V-shaped piece of wire and then covering with soil. The pegged-down cane develops new roots and forms a plant that can be cut from the parent plant and transplanted the following spring. August is not too late to start. The same system works on azaleas and rhododendrons, although they are much slower in rooting.

How do the "pros" handle dahlia blossoms so they will hold up well after cutting? T.M., Boise, Idaho

The professional growers usually cut their dahlias in the evening or early morning. They carry buckets of water into the field so they can plunge the stems immediately into deep, cold water. Some even add cracked ice to the water. Then, they cut the stem again under water at a 45-degree angle with a sharp knife. A Washington grower uses a different method. He rubs salt on the cut and puts the tip of the stem into boiling water for a minute, then plunges it into cold water.

Gray, striped, ladybuglike insects ruined our peaches last year. Please tell me how to prevent a recurrence. I.B.D., Phoenix, Arizona

From your description, it sounds like one of the diabrotica tribe of beetles was at work. Spray the trees with a multipurpose fruit spray. It may take several applications. Do not spray within three weeks of picking the fruit.

Can the seeds of the common pepper trees be dried and ground in a pepper mill for table use? C.M.G., Sacramento, California

No. The Brazilian pepper tree is not the same as the one that yields the seed used as a condiment, but it is a great ornamental tree.

My cymbidium orchid didn't bloom this year. Could I be giving it too much shade? B.G., Oceanside, California

A site with sun filtered through a tree or lath house all day is best. Avoid reflected heat from a wall, since cymbidiums hate hot spots. They require lots of water while growing vigorously from late spring through summer, less when dormant during September and October. They like a light, well-drained soil with lots of oak-leaf mold. Recently, at a garden club meeting in Marin County, I heard that the secret of those wonderful Japanese-grown cymbidiums is lots of rice hulls around the roots.

Many new shoots on our roses wilted, then curled up and died in a few days. I split one stem open and found a white worm. My boysenberries have also been attacked. Any suggestion for control? E.L.D., Tacoma, Washington

Both plants are suffering from the same trouble—an infestation of the raspberry horn fly. They occasionally get into roses and bush berries, especially when both are planted in the same garden. The eggs of the flies are laid on the stem and the hatched worm enters one of the nodes of the new growth, causing the tips to wilt and die back. Once inside the stem, they are hard to control. The best thing to do is cut off the wilted tips as they show—several inches below the affected area—and burn them. Then dust or spray the rest of the plant with a multipurpose insecticide.

We intend to make an August sowing of sweet peas for winter color. What are the advantages of the early multiflora strain? B.P.S., Stockton, California

This is a strain which was developed about 10 years ago and became an overnight sensation because the long stems (up to 18 inches) hold five or six wavy-edged fragrant blossoms. And flowering is reasonably satisfactory during winter and early spring days when there may be little sun.

What does one do to keep the stems of strawflowers from drooping after they are dried? A.D., Salt Lake City, Utah

You probably don't allow them to dry out enough—all moisture must be out of the stems. Tie them together in small bundles and hang them upside down in an airy place. Even if they appear dry, let them hang for a month.

New freedom from painting: Flexalum Aluminum Siding announces a finish so long-lasting it comes with a bonded guarantee.

Put away your paintbrushes. Put up new Flexalum Aluminum Siding and get the strongest, most comprehensive guarantee in aluminum siding – backed by the bond of the Continental Casualty Company, one of America's leading insurance firms.

Every inch of the Flexalum finish is guaranteed against chipping, peeling, blistering – against any unsightly separation from metal under normal use – for ten full years. Actual life expectancy? Twenty years and more.

The entire siding – including the aluminum molding and trim – is similarly guaranteed against manufacturing defect. In the unlikely event of a complaint in the first year, repairs or replacements will be made without charge, including labor. Thereafter, costs are scheduled on a pro rata basis.

A unique guarantee. For a siding of unique quality. It insulates – it lowers fuel and air-conditioning costs. Upkeep? Wash with a garden hose. And you choose from a wide range of colors, in either horizontal or vertical paneling.

Don't repaint, don't order any siding before you look into Flexalum. Be an informed buyer – read "Straight Answers on Aluminum Siding." It's factual, honest, yours for the writing.

Carrier home air conditioning

The fact is, Carrier home air conditioning is one of the few quality products that has come down in price during recent years.

Today you can air condition an average three-bedroom home for only about $900. That's the installed price of adding cooling to a satisfactory forced warm air heating system.

Of course, the figure will likely be more for a larger house or less for a smaller one. But in any event, the cost of air conditioning is less than many other home improvements. And few others mean so much.

Air conditioning can change your whole outlook on life. Even in the hottest weather, you and your family sleep better, eat better, feel better. Allergies are fewer. Rooms are cleaner. Entertaining is easier.

Carrier does all this quietly, dependably and at low operating cost. That is why Carrier equipment air conditions more homes than any other make. Your nearby Carrier dealer offers convenient terms. Call him. He's listed in the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory.

Aluminum potmarks—and how to remove them better: You've seen them stare up at you from your kitchen sink—full of fight and resistance. They team up with stubborn food stains to wear down your cleanser, your sponge, your spirit. Then along comes Comet—the stain-removing cleanser. You sprinkle, rub, and Wow! Food stains fade away. Potmarks turn pale—then disappear. Your sink is white again—and disinfected, too. Comet with Chlorinol gets out stains better than any other leading cleanser. Why use anything less?

Four fabulous new colors

AND HOW TO USE THEM CONFIDENTLY

Color is universal! The greens of the earth are the same in Rhode Island as they are in China—the same hot oranges of the sun can be seen in Africa or New York City. Throughout the world, color is the same, and the language it speaks is the same, creating its mood for all to see. We've selected four colors we feel are the most exciting you've ever seen—and we've used them in three different ways—alone in "one-color" schemes, in neutral surroundings for "one-color-with-neutral" schemes, even blended with their opposites on the color wheel in complementary schemes. We've played color on color—used them bright and blaring, shouted them in accent areas, whispered them on walls; put color in furniture, in carpeting, at windows—everywhere! Our four color families—the cool reds, true blues, hot oranges, and warm greens—are the important colors in the news right now. Keep your eye on them. They're on the way to even greater importance in the coming months. Names may differ, but the flavor of the color is basically the same. You might find our bluish-red called magenta, hot pink, shocking red, American beauty, raspberry, or fuchsia. Warm greens might appear under names like avocado, bitter green, light olive, nomad, or fern green. Horizon blue, delphinium blue, and bristol blue are other names for our true blue. Oranges might be labeled tangerine, burnt orange, apricot, or butterscotch. The next 12 pages are alive with these wonderful colors that we predict will brighten your home—and your life. Stand by—there's color ahead.

The Blues of the Sea

Blue has never been so blue—nor so cool and refreshing. It's like a fresh sea breeze or an early morning swim. Our blue runs from a fragile, pale tint to a deep, dark shade, but it's always a true poster blue, without traces of green or red in it.

This quiet study corner (left) shows you how restful blue can be—and what it does to bring out the warmth of woods. One blue has been used throughout, but to avoid monotony, it has been varied in lightness and darkness, and varied in texture and brilliance of fabric. White becomes our accent here to let the blues really take the spotlight and set the mood in this serene, relaxing room.

Below, you meet our favorite blue in an Early American setting, where color has been used to strengthen architectural features, such as the woodwork and shutters. When surrounded by white in a "one-color-with-neutral" scheme, such as this one, the blue looks more intense than it really is. Actually, this blue has been grayed to quite a subtle, shadowy tone.

Touches of blue show up in the chair cushions and in accessories throughout the room. Hutch and chairs are examples of painted finishes available.

The Reds of the Sky

Here's a red that's as bold and brilliant as a summer sunset, when strong streaks of red blend with cool, blue sky tones. And like a sunset, our red ranges from blush pink to shocking American beauty red.

Red goes all the way to glamorize the dining room at the right. Paint, wallpaper, carpet, and draperies are all in our cool, red family, but there's enough variety of textures to keep this room from looking dull.

When combining wallpaper and paint, as we did here, choose your paper first and match the paint to it. It's difficult to find just the right paper to match a paint color you may have selected.

The bedroom-study (below) shows you our versatile red in a masculine setting. Used against neutral walls, it becomes the surge of color that brings life to the room and showcases the beauty of the woods.

These greens are warm and alive—like that first spring day you notice the crocuses are up. And our green can bring that same springtime feeling right inside your home.

This reading corner (left) uses green with green to unify the area and camouflage the jog in the wall. The warmth and luster of our yellow green is seen in the carpeting, upholstered chair, and curtains. It has been used in various shades and patterns, but it's still the same green.

If you prefer just a hint of green to a one-color room, the living room above is your answer. Here, green performs effectively as an accent—in the screen, window treatment, and sofa pillows.

The Oranges of the Sun

Here's an inviting orange for anyone who likes the shimmering brilliance of a tropical sun. But if you prefer a color more subtle than orange-at-high-noon, our orange family also includes subdued variations, such as butterscotch and caramel, for use in large areas.

In the living room-family room below, you see strong orange used with its neighboring colors. It sparkles from the drapery fabric and the sofa pillows on the floor—and combines with yellows, beige, and even green.

Our orange is used full force in the living room at the right. Here, color spotlights the fireplace and sets off the accessories above the mantel.

There's no monotony in this one-color scheme, because of the variety of textures in upholstery of the chairs and sofa, in the drapery fabric and Venetian blinds.

This hot orange blends beautifully with the neutrals in the room—the soft toned carpeting, the wood table, and the fireplace marble.

If you're a sun worshiper, you'll want to bring the oranges of the sun into your home—with a quick coat of paint, by reupholstering a chair, or by adding some accessories in our "hot news" hot orange.

Blue takes on a friendly glow in this living room where it has been used with warm colors. The orange and red upholstered pieces used with the blue walls prove our colors can be used with their close neighbors or with colors from the opposite side of the color wheel. When choosing a wall color, select one that's duller and grayer than you want it to appear—it will brighten on the wall. If you like serenity, use an all-one-color scheme; for clarity, a one-color-with-neutral scheme; for warmth, try blending complementary colors.

Red—our cool, blue red—used with white makes this bedroom frankly feminine. The delicately detailed rattan chair and headboard have been painted a light, but strong, shade of red, and their color is brought out by the crisp plaid chair cushion and white linen bedspread. The spread repeats the red with bands of velvet ribbon trimming the bolster and coverlet. More intense tones of red are used as accents in the table cover, lamp shade, and pillow. The painting, too, echoes the color that sets the pace in this red-with-white room.

Orange walls create a cheery warmth in this bright bedroom. Here, we've used our "news" color in a one-color scheme. You can see it in a strong, bold form in the pattern of the print fabric and in the accessories. It's used in a lighter, softer tone on the walls. The carpeting is part of the orange color family, too. Here's proof our hot orange is available right now; the bedspread and draperies are ready-mades—just buy them and use them. Black and white come through as accent colors. The chair, light fixture, and headboard have been painted black. Whites come from chair and table tops.

Green—a vibrant, warm green like this—enriches a home. Used in a strong, vivid shade, it creates a dazzling, lighthearted mood in this dining area—and it contrasts with the white brick and blends with the wood tones as though it were meant to do only this. Actually, our warm green can go anywhere—with any color—any time. The secret of enjoying color in your home is knowing how to use it. Plan your color scheme carefully, select the color family that creates the mood you want to establish, then move ahead confidently. This is the year to let color become your way of life!

But here, just let me say, if a man loves a woman and she loves him, then they are friends—willing to lay down their lives for each other. Or, equally, willing to live their lives for each other, in the truest sense.

Kuehnl. But let's say, Rev. Stauffer, that the relationship between husband and wife has deteriorated to the point where they are hardly able to talk to each other. Can your way help such a marriage?

Rev. Stauffer. It is never too late for a husband and wife to save what they seem on the verge of losing. Most couples want very much not to fail in life's biggest enterprise. Again and again I see couples—who thought their love was dead—manage to revive something real and vital once again.

Kuehnl. Can you be more specific about ways in which that can be accomplished?

Rev. Stauffer. I believe a husband or wife must start by reaffirming the sacredness of the human personality—their own and every other. Disrespect for other persons is behind the vast majority of marriage problems. Some people fight simply because they haven't learned any other way to get through to one another. But it is all such a tragic waste. Be nice to one another, I tell them. Life has so much more to it that way.

Kuehnl. But even though a person respects his spouse, there are times when he feels slighted or insulted without cause. The natural tendency is to fight back. How can a man or wife react otherwise?

Rev. Stauffer. It is still absolutely sound advice to "turn the other cheek" when a quarrel seems imminent. Turning the other cheek is not a cowardly act. It is one of the bravest things anyone can do. It means you stand up there, face the situation, and deal with it in a rational manner. You respond to harsh words with kind ones, and you never get angry—especially when you think you have every right to be angry. You appeal to the other person's sense of fair play, and try to work out a solution you both can live with. I have seen this approach work for husbands and wives literally hundreds of times, and often after they first tried it with almost no hope of success.

Kuehnl. Don't you think it takes a rather special kind of person always to turn the other cheek? Surely you don't expect a married couple to be completely unselfish in their relationship?

Rev. Stauffer. Certainly not. As a matter of fact, it is a great mistake to think of all self-interest as wrong or sinful. Married life involves continual compromise and adjustment—but that implies the existence of individual needs and wants in both parties. If one spouse has no self-interest at all, he is like a chameleon, taking all his color from his environment. He offers nothing himself. Yet the richness of the experience of marriage depends upon full contributions from both man and wife.

Kuehnl. What kinds of contributions do you mean?

Rev. Stauffer. One of the most wonderful aspects of marriage is that it brings together two different kinds of people—a man and a woman. Each has certain qualities to offer. And when a couple stops and thinks about that fact, it is astonishing how often they find that their qualities are complementary ones. Each marriage is an individual case, of course, but in general the man brings to it his strength, his ambition, and his leadership—in other words, his best masculine traits. The wife, meanwhile, stresses her feminine nature, and creates the kind of environment that makes a warm and happy home for her husband and children.

Kuehnl. That's a very positive way of looking at marriage. Could one carry it further and suggest a husband and wife deliberately try to strengthen each other in many large and small ways?

Rev. Stauffer. How often in the past I have found that strategy to be both a builder and a rebuilder of marriages! I suggest to the wife, say, that she study her husband's needs, and begin meeting them as fast as he is able to accept her in that way. A husband who has previously withdrawn into himself almost always responds to such an approach—and it makes both husband and wife realize what reserves of love are waiting to be tapped. One wife I know used to argue constantly with her husband about how messy his study was. I suggested that she quietly begin putting the room in order every day without ever criticizing his lack of tidiness. He not only noticed and appreciated what she was doing; he also voluntarily began taking greater care with his things so that she would not have to do the job for him.

Kuehnl. Is it accurate to say, then, that the antidote to bickering and quarreling in marriage is a long-term change in the attitudes of the husband and wife toward each other?

Rev. Stauffer. That's it exactly. When two people have been hurting each other for quite a while, it's as though each one is wearing a pair of ill-fitting shoes. And even when the shoes are exchanged for ones that fit, the corns and blisters still will be tender for some time to come. It takes patience, as well as a better, more thorough understanding of marriage, to change such a relationship. But the giving of yourself generates a giving in your spouse—perhaps not immediately, but inevitably. Such is the inexhaustible power of love. END

Dear editors: How would you make our ordinary house live like a Better Homes & Gardens house?

Here's exactly how we'd do it. We receive so many letters asking this question that we searched out a good but very average house in a Des Moines, Iowa, suburb. Then we prescribed color, comfort, and efficiency to cure its ills and provide the finishing touches that make a real Better Homes & Gardens house. We kept your budget in mind as we planned each part of the entire project, and no matter what your home is like —old or new, large or small—these ten pages will show you dozens of distinctive ideas, and how to carry them out. The emphasis is on practical answers to your problems. Take the front, for instance. It's now friendly and finished looking. Plantings, a quart of white paint, a new door ($22.50), and a pebbled concrete landing strip and wider walkway do the job.

A NEW LIFE FOR OUTDOORS

BACK HALF OF THE LOT WAS WASTED. The high cost of land makes it important to get as much benefit and use as possible from a yard. The investment in this one was not paying off in any way. For relaxation and play, the back offered nothing—it was hard to get outside from the house, and every activity was easily seen by the neighbors. The lack of storage for outdoor gear and shelter for the car were big problems, too—everything from trash cans to toys had to be hauled to the basement or parked under the overhang.

WHAT WE DID. First, we planned the location of the carport and the terrace area so that privacy from all neighbors could be obtained easily and so that the traffic in and out of the house would be more convenient. Then we worked our carport investment as hard as possible—it shields the car all year round, effectively screens that side of the lot, stores everything ever used outdoors; and its wide roof shelters part of the terrace. The small redwood deck serves the new sliding glass door—an important and well-worth-the-money change we made in the house itself. This solved the access problem and makes the whole area enjoyable from the new family room-kitchen inside. Project-by-project, here's how to go about it:

Carport. The flat roof, supported by the laminated beams, takes any kind of a snow load. With construction like this, the roof can extend beyond the posts to shelter the 8x20-foot part of the terrace. Costs for the carport, not including labor, were $1200.

Terrace. Here's a lesson in making a large concrete area pleasant: cut it into rectangles and vary its textu There's a hard sense aspect, too: if you do the w yourself, you can tackle it in easy stages, and the sn slabs are much less likely to crack.

Costs for concrete here averaged about 60c a squ foot, including labor and forms. On a do-it-your basis, using ready-mixed concrete, costs average ab 25c in many parts of the country. A cubic yard of c crete will cover an 8x10-foot area with a 4-inch th ness—use this to estimate the concrete you'd need, get a price quotation from your dealer.

The pebble texturing of some of the rectangles h (and on the landing strip in front) is a good exampl the kind of job you should do yourself if at all possibl it takes a professional as long to do it as it would y and you'll take the extra pains to get it done at t just-right stage, with no extra cost!

Sliding glass door and deck. These two parts of the o all improvement blend the inside with the outdoor a We chose an aluminum door with ⅝-inch insula glass. Including installation, the total cost for this was $345; smaller, lighter, noninsulated doors star about $135. The deck, which bridges the difference tween inside and outside levels, uses redwood 2x4s edge—materials cost about $45.

Privacy screens. We used the same exterior hardbo siding for the screens that we used to enclose the sto unit—redwood 4x4 posts and 2x4 stringers comp each 8-foot section. The materials for a section like cost approximately $28—and they're easily built on driveway, then set in place as a unit.

NEW COMFORT AND COLOR

TRAFFIC WENT EVERY WHICH WAY. The living room was the center of all activity: children's play, adult relaxation, entertaining guests, just about everything. Furniture arrangement was almost impossible—the room was too big for one conversation grouping, too small to split into separate formal and informal areas.

The furniture itself was generally good quality, but it had been chosen a piece at a time, without a long-range plan. Some of the upholstery fabrics were too delicate for a room that must take the rough, tumble wear of children.

WHAT WE DID. We changed the traffic situation and the character of the living room at the same time. Now it's an adult retreat, with youngsters welcome when they act like grownups. This new role wouldn't have been possible without the changes in the dining room and kitchen you'll see on following pages. Here are the individual projects:

New fireplace. This see-through prefabricated unit effectively creates an entry, yet its openness lets the living area appear as big as before. The fireplace cost about $650 (including chimney assembly) and was installed in one day by two professionals—but the family handyman and a neighbor could do it easily in a weekend.

Folding door and paneling. Three sheets of prefinished plywood paneling more than pay their way with extra depth and character they give to the once-boxy room. The folding door is prefinished, too; it opens or closes at a touch, to confine the din of the family room. The paneling costs about $11 per 4x8 sheet; the walnut door, including hardware was $170. Labor to install them was about $120. This doesn't include the changes in the wall—the cost of those is shown on the next page.

Carpet and drapery. Both were very high quality and doing their jobs well, so we left them and built the new color scheme around them. Soft neutral walls give the room a feeling of more space than there actually is.

New paint. We invested $15 in the new off-white color for both walls and ceiling. Paints on the market now are easier than ever to apply—and they don't require the time-consuming cleanup of equipment.

Furniture and accessories. Here's proof that careful shopping can stretch a limited budget. One chair was slip-covered; the rest of the furniture is all new—we spent a total of only $463. The $149 sofa can double as a bed; both it and the larger chair's slip cover are treated to repel stains and dirt. The two fireside chairs and the triangular table are small enough to fit space that one larger chair and table would need. These chairs cost $49.50 each. Accessories add the finishing touch; use things you have or collect them a few at a time.

NEW EASE AND EFFICIENCY

THE KITCHEN WAS ALL WORK. Like many of the kitchens in built-for-sale houses, this one was average. Equipment was of excellent quality with years of service left—but there was no dishwasher or a place for one. Work area and storage space were adequate, but no more. The oven was on a blank wall with not one square inch of counter space within three steps. Floor covering was hard to keep clean. And, the kitchen lacked a planning desk. The only place to sit was at the table, whether for a telephone call, coffee break, or to pay bills.

WHAT WE DID. The floor plans show how we combined the old kitchen and dining room into a bigger, better kitchen-family room. The change began with the removal of the non-loadbearing wall. Counter top area and cabinet storage were increased, and we made a place for that dishwasher and an automatic appliance center. The new floor-to-ceiling island was located to put the refrigerator into a compact work triangle, provide extra storage space and a serving counter, and make a spot for a desk.

And look what we did to that blank wall around the oven—it's now an attractive baking center, with room to work and a convenient place to set down a hot-from-the-oven casserole.

The biggest difference between old and new is the changed atmosphere of the whole room. Now it's much more pleasant and serves as the family headquarters all day long. The old dining room space more than pays its way, too (photographs next page). The dining room table is used three times a day; chairs have new vinyl seat covers. We even found room for two new chairs, coffee table, and television—it's now on casters so it can roll into the living room, too.

New ceiling. This new system of suspended aluminum channels and 2x2-foot squares of foamed polystyrene are simple enough for anybody to install. For lighting, translucent plastic squares can be placed wherever you need them, with an inexpensive fixture above. We used a dimmer switch to control the lights over the table—it sets the mood of the family area when the work area lights are out. The ceiling material averages about 30c per square foot.

Cabinet changes and new island. The construction here—taking out a wall and adding cabinets—is an example of the type usually best done by a reliable contractor. This part of the job, including labor and all materials—even the $350 dishwasher—cost about $1,180. Another $88 was spent for the automatic appliance center. Since extra circuits were already available for its wiring, costs were minimum.

Oven wall. In contrast to the other cabinet work, this is the kind easily done by a handyman—the perforated hardboard goes up quickly, and the cabinet can be built in a basement, installed without upsetting the kitchen routine. The materials for this wall and cabinet cost about $35.

Vinyl floor. This new tile looks like slate, but is easy on the feet and easy to care for. You can install it yourself for about 45c per square foot.

DINING AREA LACKED SIZE. Just big enough for the table and chairs, the dining area could be used only an hour or two a day. The rest of the time, it was wasted. Had it been larger, smart furnishings could have adapted it for other uses, too.

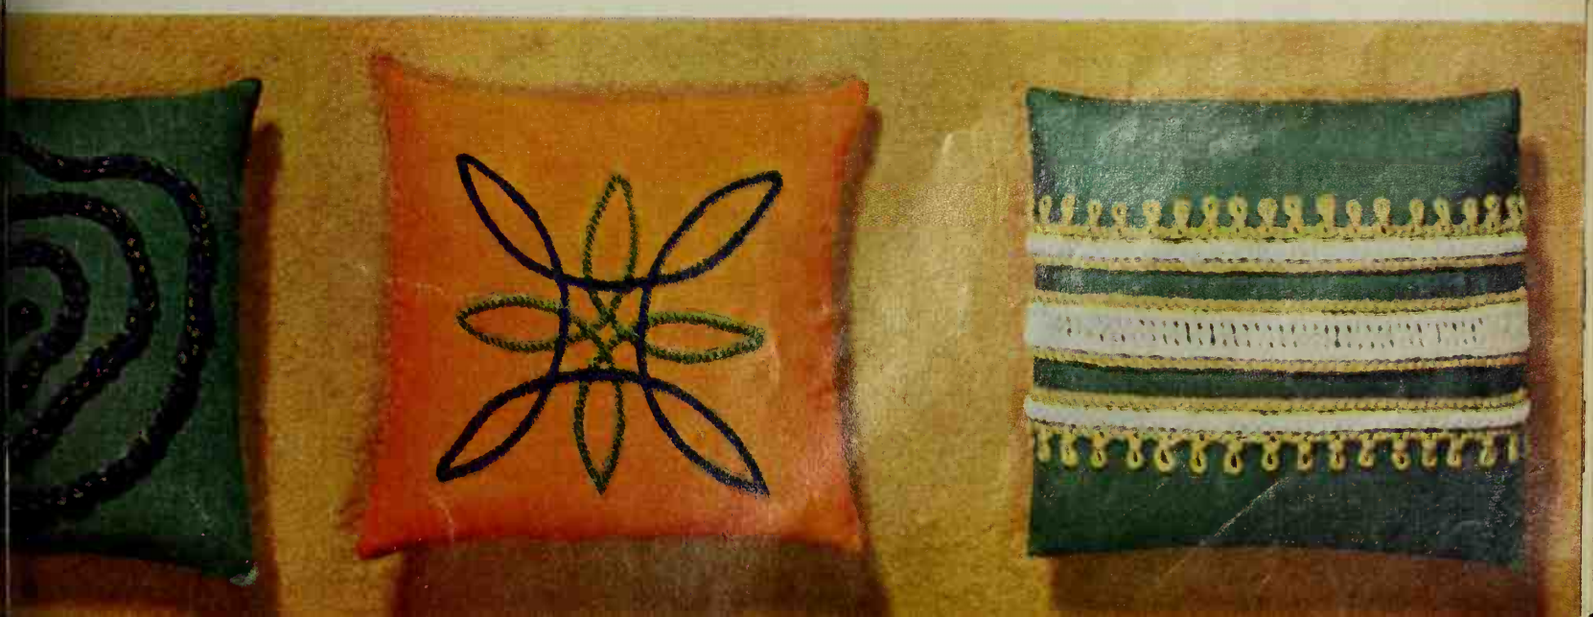
A traditional table cover of washable linen is just right for a setting of any season. The design we show here is placed on either end. It could also be used on a bedspread. It requires about 30 yards of single crochet chain. The scroll border, which disguises seams, could also be used to dress up place mats. A simple design in the corner of the napkins complements and unifies the set.

Photographs: Wm. Hopkins

For a scroll border on draperies or place mats, crochet a simple fringe from soft, bulky yarn. Make stitches over a wooden ruler. Stitch or glue fringe on lines drawn around a tea cup or bowl. Ours was left uncut, just as it comes off the ruler. For cut fringe, simply slit loops with scissors. The amount of fringe you need will equal about double the length of the border you wish to make.



IDEA BATHROOMS

Photographs: Hopkins

By Frank R. Glass, AIA, and Donald Popplestone

These bathrooms, designed by Better Homes and Gardens editors, truly are idea bathrooms. We built them especially to solve the kinds of problems we know exist. And, with the wide variety of materials available today, the job couldn't have been easier. There's more beautiful linen, more attractive fixtures—more of everything to make your bathrooms both pretty and practical. On the following pages, you'll find our examples of the kind of face lifting your bathroom deserves. With just a little time and money, you can give it a budget beauty treatment with smart new towels and curtains. The choice is unlimited—whimsically beautiful prints, luxurious Jacquard weaves, elegant schiffli embroidery—all in a rainbow range of colors. For a little larger investment, new fixtures make a world of difference. Or, if you're building, plan to add a luxurious bath-dressing room like the one at right. It would also be a worth-while addition to build on your present house, or if your master bedroom is large enough, one end could be walled off to make the space. In this striking addition, the warmth and mood of the bedroom are carried into the bathroom with the use of soft yellow fixtures, a natural wood cabinet, and a beautiful array of towels which repeat the colors of the bedspread, carpeting, and walls. With the lighted ceiling (fluorescent tubes behind plastic panels), the antique lamps become purely decorative. The translucent panel keeps both dressing room and bath light without sacrificing privacy.

HOT & QUICK

If you're tempted to spend the day in a hammock, then do it. These recipes are so quick to fix, that you can be downright lazy and still have a nice meal ready when the family comes home.

Midsummer Chicken Soup

Select a cream-style chicken soup, and prepare it according to directions on the label. Just before serving, stir in 1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Serve hot or icy cold to 4, with a thin, parsley-bordered lemon slice afloat in each bowl. Perfect prologue to a supper of cold cuts, deviled eggs, cheese, sliced tomatoes, stuffed olives, and a dessert of Spiced Pineapple.

More Hot & Quick recipes on page 88

COLD & QUICK

Some like it hot, some like it cold. If a cold supper beguiles your taste buds, you'll find here those practical, realistic summer dishes that will almost make themselves.

Swedish Eggs & Shrimp

6 hard-cooked eggs, chilled
2 to 3 cups cooked cleaned shrimp, chilled
½ cup whipping cream
½ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon shredded lemon peel
Fresh dill or chives

Cut eggs in half and arrange in center of serving dish. Circle the eggs with a generous rim of shrimp. Whip cream to soft peaks; combine with mayonnaise and lemon peel. Spoon over eggs. Garnish with little bouquets of dill or with chopped chives. Serves 4. Good with pickled beets and rye bread, followed by vanilla ice cream with a sprinkle of salted peanuts.

FRESH & QUICK

Help yourself to the wonderful fresh fruits available right now. And hurry up, because this is the all-too-brief season when everything from garden and orchard is sun-ripened, bountiful, succulent. So help yourself to these tasty recipes—and watch family appetites go quickly up and up!

Fruit Picture Salad

Mix dry cottage cheese with a little sour cream—just enough to moisten the cheese nicely. Add a bit of finely snipped mint or grated lemon peel. Arrange on platter with fresh or canned peaches, strawberries or raspberries, thin slices of avocado and orange. (Fresh peaches and avocado keep their color if sprinkled with lemon juice.) Trim with endive, chicory, watercress, or nasturtium leaves. So tempting, and especially good with toasted saltines and hot or iced tea.

SWEET & QUICK

Everybody (well, almost everybody) likes to top off a meal with dessert. For weight-watchers, melon is a refreshing low-calorie dessert. So is our Spiced Pineapple. But if you have an aggressive sweet tooth, you'll find a number of easy and quick and (we feel compelled to add) delicious sweet sweets.

Cantaloupe Stars

Stand a large cantaloupe on end. To halve melon so the edge looks like giant rickrack braid, thrust a sharp knife into the center at an angle; pull it out and make the next cut at the opposite angle. Repeat around melon and pull the halves apart. Remove seeds. Fill centers with a mixture of fresh fruits—strawberries, raspberries, pitted cherries or grapes, melon balls or pineapple chunks. Now drizzle thawed frozen lemonade concentrate (undiluted) over the fruit. One cantaloupe serves 2. Serve chilled.

Corn-winning ways

File under Vegetables

Western Corn-on-the-Cob

The butter is the specialty. It's gently flavored with horseradish and mustard. Next time, try it with green beans or cauliflower—

4 or 5 ears sweet corn
½ cup soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground pepper
Snipped parsley

Husk corn and strip off the silk;* spread each ear with a little Horseradish Butter. Wrap each loosely in foil and bake in very hot oven (450°) 20 to 25 minutes. Horseradish Butter: Combine butter, mustard, horseradish, salt, and pepper; cream till light and fluffy. Sprinkle extra butter with parsley and pass with corn.

*Or, roast in foil or in the husks, Indian style, over hot coals on grill.

Gelatin desserts

Swiss Pudding Mold

It's fresh fruit and cream for dessert. Here, there are two kinds of cream—served as a mold with sugared strawberries—

¾ cup sugar
1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
Dash salt
1¼ cups cold water
2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon shredded lemon peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup whipping cream

Thoroughly mix sugar, gelatin, salt, and cold water. Place over medium heat, stirring constantly, till gelatin dissolves. Chill till partially set. Add egg whites, lemon peel, and juice; beat till fluffy. Chill till partially set. Fold sour cream into gelatin mixture. Whip cream and fold in. Pile into a 6-cup mold or 9 or 10 individual molds. Chill till firm, 6 hours or overnight. Unmold. Serve with sweetened fresh berries, peaches, or other fruit. Makes 9 or 10 servings.

Jewel Squares

1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) crushed pineapple
1 3-ounce package strawberry-flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅓ cup chopped California walnuts
18 graham-cracker squares
Canned pineapple tidbits

Drain crushed pineapple, reserving syrup. For top layer, dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add syrup and lemon juice. Chill till partially set. For cream layer, whip cream with sugar and vanilla; fold in crushed pineapple and nuts. For crust, line bottom of 8x8x2-inch baking dish with 9 graham crackers; spread with cream layer. Gently press remaining crackers over top. Arrange halved pineapple tidbits on each cracker. Spoon gelatin over. Chill firm. Top with whipped cream. Cut between crackers.

Mrs. Walter O. Sohre, Saint Paul, Minnesota

Summertime Apple Pie

1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin
1¾ cups boiling water
1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) apple-pie filling
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 9-inch graham-cracker crumb crust
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup shredded sharp American cheese
½ cup whipping cream, whipped

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; chill till partially set. Combine pie filling, spices, and peel. Reserve ¼ cup of the partially set gelatin; stir remainder into apple mixture; pour into crust. For "meringue," fold reserved gelatin, the sugar, and cheese into whipped cream. Spread over pie; chill till firm.

Chocolate Chiffon Dessert

1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
⅔ cup chocolate-flavored syrup
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup evaporated milk, chilled icy cold

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat syrup; add gelatin and stir till gelatin dissolves. Cool to room temperature. Add vanilla. In chilled bowl, whip milk; fold in chocolate mixture. Chill till mixture mounds slightly when spooned. Pour over Crust. Chill firm. Cut in 9 squares. Crust: Mix 1 cup vanilla-wafer crumbs, ¼ cup chopped walnuts, and 3 tablespoons melted butter; press in 8x8x2-inch pan. Chill. Mrs. E. W. Harder, Denver, Colorado

Corn Curry

Bet you've never had corn fixed this way! Delicious with ham or chicken—

3 tablespoons butter
1½ to 2 cups cut fresh or frozen corn*
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
¼ to ½ teaspoon curry powder
½ cup dairy sour cream
Salt and pepper

Melt butter in skillet. Add vegetables and curry. Cover; cook over low heat till vegetables are just tender, 8 to 10 minutes. Stir in sour cream; season to taste. Heat, stirring constantly. Four servings.

*Or, use drained canned whole-kernel corn or leftover corn cut off the cob; add with sour cream.

Scalloped Corn and Oysters

¼ cup finely chopped celery
1 can frozen condensed oyster stew, thawed
1 1-pound can (2 cups) cream-style corn
1½ cups medium cracker crumbs
1 cup milk
1 slightly beaten egg
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons butter, melted
½ cup medium cracker crumbs

Combine first 8 ingredients. Pour into greased 1½-quart casserole. Mix butter with ½ cup cracker crumbs; sprinkle over top. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour or till knife inserted halfway to center comes out clean. Makes 6 servings.

Mrs. S. L. Strieber, Charleston, West Virginia

Corn-belt Chowder

This hearty chowder gets its start with a package of soup mix. Flavor in a hurry—

6 slices bacon
½ cup chopped onion
1 envelope green-pea-soup mix
2 cups water
1 cup milk
1 1-pound can cream-style corn
1½ to 2 cups cut fresh or frozen corn*
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
Dash pepper

Fry bacon till crisp; remove bacon. Pour all but 1 tablespoon drippings from skillet and add onion; cook until lightly browned. Stir in remaining ingredients. Simmer uncovered about 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Crumble bacon on top. Makes 6 servings.

*Or, use drained canned whole-kernel corn or leftover cooked corn cut off the cob.

HE LIKES TO cook

Our guest chef is the noted actor, Alfred Lunt, who says he has "No Time for Comedy" when staging a meal. Here he gives good-humored—and expert—advi

Alfred Lunt began acting (pantomime) at the age of three and cooking (fudge) at the age of seven. When he first went on stage, he received five dollars a week; to keep body and soul together, he learned to make stews over the gas jet in his bedroom. He began cooking in earnest—a different breakfast and dinner every Sunday—after he married actress Lynn Fontanne who wanted to gain a few pounds. She did. The renowned theater team of Lunt and Fontanne is also a partnership in gourmet cookery. Lunt has even delved into the intricacies of baking bread, cake, and puff pastry. Relaxing for the summer at their home in Wisconsin's lake country, Lunt still comes up with some curtain-raisers in the kitchen, where hangs his diploma from the Cordon Bleu of Paris.

If you are indifferent to the taste, texture, and looks of food, if your time is limited to minutes, if you pale at the very thought of washing dishes—don't cook. Stick to instant coffee, frozen dinners, and a brick of ice cream. Let your wife (or with luck, your maid) clean up, and you'll be much better off, as will the rest of your family. Better still, draw out your savings and go to a restaurant.

If, on the other hand, you're tired of "store-bought victuals" and have an urge to whip up a real homemade meal, the following cooking prompts may save you time, money, hysteria—possibly a divorce.

Suppose you want to put on a Sunday brunch or dinner, plan ahead a day at least. Take a pad and pencil and sit alone in your car in the garage to write down everything you intend to serve and in what order. And see to it that all the ingredients are in the house the night before, so you won't have to wake your wife to ask where she keeps the mustard, or isn't there any? It's even a good idea to set out the pots and pans. That will save a lot of crawling around and banging through those lower cupboards the next morning.

Keep your knives razor-sharp (few women understand this). Easy with an electric sharpener, but if you haven't one, work up technique with a steel. A sharp knife in the kitchen is what wit is to Noel Coward.

Another piece of old-fashioned advice: Spread out, on your counter or table, three or four layers of newspaper and work over them—you can roll up potato peelings, pea pods, fish heads, etc., in a sheet or two and chuck the whole thing.

Because I've noticed that other men who share my cooking enthusiasm have the least trouble in turning out a tolerable steak, chop, or roast, I'll concentrate on a somewhat weaker area of male expertise—the accompanying potato.

Baked Potatoes are sure-fire. Use uniform bakers, scrub them, set on middle rack of the oven preheated to 400°. In an hour, they're done. If you prick them with a 2-tined kitchen fork at the end of the first half-hour, they'll be less waxy. Serve the usual way—split and topped with butter, salt and pepper. Or, when they're cool, stow in the refrigerator overnight for the following specialty of mine.

Creamed Baked Potatoes. Peel the chilled potatoes you baked the day before and cut in cubes the size of parcheesi dice. Put the dice in the top of a double boiler over hot water, pour on cream till it barely covers them, and let steam away 1½ hours, lid on. Stir gently twice (same old fork), but do not salt until just before eating. These potatoes will have a slight nutty flavor and are delicious with broiled chicken or lamb chops. If you are cooking outdoors, take the pots along and set them on the grill.

Double boilers are a comfort, and you'll never regret owning two, especially when preparing a dinner or a late supper. Use them as they do a steam table at an automat. With them, you can have your whole meal ready and hot, even if your timing has been off. If something gets done earlier than you expected, keep it over your bain-marie till you can put on the full production.

For dinner, here's the trick: Boil your vegetables in the double-boiler tops; when tender, drain and season, then put over the lower sections to stay at serving tempe- ture. Don't fill the lowers too ful water, though. It's the steam t does the work.

If you have mashed potatoes seasoned and whipped up with b ter and milk, and the rest of meal still has to catch up, try t Assuming the mashed potatoes in a double boiler, smooth the s face and pour over a very thin co ing of milk, cover with lid and steam. Stir well before dishing When I'm cooking a main dish t requires last-minute attention, sauteed tenderloin strips, I p ahead to do the potatoes this w

Fruit pies; international main dishes

THIS MONTH, ask your husband to name his favorite fruit pie. Then send us the recipe. And, if you're famous for a foreign-style main dish, tell us about that, too. Two Cooks-of-the-Month will receive $20 each. Nineteen other winners will receive $5 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured in the Prize Tested Recipes pages next March. The winners of these 21 prizes will receive a framed Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Hints to help you

Fruit pies—your husband's choice this time. Is it apple pie, spiced the way he likes it? Or, do you bake a cherry pie or a two-fruit combination that rates? Don't forget fruit-flavored chiffon pies, too. Use fresh, frozen, canned, or dried fruit; or fruit juice.

Contest rules

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper and mark it "March Fruit Pies" or "March International Main Dishes." If you wish, send a recipe for each of the two categories.
2. Print your full name and address in upper right corner of paper.
3. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, teaspoons.
4. Specify brand names of the nationally known food products you use as ingredients so we can test your recipe with the same brands.
5. Include 50 to 100 words about the origin of the recipe you submit.
6. Recipes submitted become property of Better Homes & Gardens.
7. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, August 31. In cases where duplicate recipes are submitted, the one with the earliest postmark will be judged. All judges' decisions will be final.
8. We reserve the right to adjust and edit winning recipes.
9. Address the recipes you enter to 3508 Test Kitchen, Better Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

TOWELS to dry and decorate

By Margaret Casserly

Towels are more than just thirsty bits of terry. When you go towel shopping these days, you don't look for just a drying cloth but for a decorating item as well.

It takes only a half a dozen washcloths, bath towels, and hand towels to give a bathroom new color spark. Color coordinated ensembles, on display in most stores, consist of flowered or patterned prints and matching solid-color towels and washcloths. Open stock towels can be matched—stripes and solids, blending or contrasting colors.

Between the bargain basement and custom towel, there is almost an endless selection of colors, patterns, styles, and weaves. Once you have deciphered the hodgepodge of prices, sizes, and g[illegible] fits your pocketbook[illegible]

In d[illegible] wea[illegible] an[illegible] le[illegible]

the most costly of all the weaves. The huckaback weave has a pebbly surface and is very absorbent. "Huck" towels are most often hand or face towels.

The most popular bath-size towels measure 22x44 inches and 24x46 inches, and range in price from $.59 to $3.00.

Quality primarily, is responsible for this wide price range. In selecting a long-wearing towel, three quality elements are important: underweave, loops, and selvages. The underweave is the backbone of the towel and gets the most wear, so it should be tightly woven to hold the loops securely. Loops should be close together so that the underweave is not readily seen. And the longer the loops, the more absorbent the towel. Selvages get a lot of wear, so they should be tightly woven.

Some towels have nylon-reinforced centers and selvages for longer wear. These cost $1.50 to $2.50 and should last for several years or more under normal use. Luxurious, outsize towels, 25x50 inches, and the terry bath sheets, 36x72 inches are ideal for the man of the house, and range in price from $1.95 to $5.00.

If you have an eye for durability, then the thick, luxurious bath towel is just for you. And you can buy it with a monogram or schiffli embroidery. This is the ultimate in quality and costs $5.00 or $6.00.

Or, you may be the quick-color-change artist and find that the bargain basement towels for $.69 will last just as [illegible] as your taste for the color does. Since they are not a [illegible]ment, you can allow yourself a frequent change [illegible]em to other uses after a year or two. WASHED 500 HOURS IN CASCADE

Test results like these from Procter & Gamble, confirmed by the American Fine China Guild's own tests, show why the Guild exclusively recommends Cascade for safety over all other dishwasher detergents. See plate at left, faded after being washed 500 hours in another detergent. But right, washed 500 hours with Cascade, the pattern is still clear and beautiful—even the gold border. No wonder only Cascade is rated safe for today's loveliest patterns by the American Fine China Guild, whose members make Castleton, Flintridge, Franciscan, Lenox and Syracuse china. The Guild seal of approval is on each Cascade package.

How to pick a wall color

1. What you intend to paint determines the paint card you'll consult. For a kitchen or bathroom, choose the enamel paint card; for the living room, a flat-finish paint card.

2. Consider the lighting in the room. Choose paint colors under approximately the same lighting conditions you have at home. Double-check under both daylight and artificial light. If you have fluorescent lighting in a room, choose paint chips for that room under fluorescents of the same color type. The best time you can go paint shopping is during good daylight hours.

3. Color is affected by its neighbors. Suppose you're looking for a subtle grayed-blue. The hue you prefer may seem less lively than you would want when you see it next to a bright blue on the paint card. Tip: segregate a color from other paint chips and view it against a white background to make sure the paint color you have selected is just the shade you want in the room.

4. Color grows stronger when it's applied to a large surface—especially a wall. A hue, no matter how muted, reflects from wall to wall, and seems more intense. So work with the largest color chips you can get. Then deliberately select one that is slightly softer and more subdued than the final effect you desire in your room.

5. To match a solid-colored fabric or carpet, keep in mind that the weave or texture makes a difference in light reflection. Use a drapery sample large enough to drape in folds. Lay carpet samples on the floor on white paper—not directly over some other colored flooring. Then place the paint sample in an upright position.

6. To match a tweedy carpet or a tiny all-over pattern in fabric or wallpaper, stand back at least six feet. At that distance, a carpet woven of blue and green tufts merges into turquoise, or a chintz printed in brown and bright red becomes a dull brick red. Don't try to match one yarn or a tiny color spot. Blend the color with the over-all effect. It's easier—and foolproof.

7. To match a wall color in a magazine photo, first study all the variations of color in the high lights and shadows. Then pick a hue midway between light and shadow. Avoid laying paint chips directly on the photo; lay each on white paper, widely separated. Choose the one which will give the effect of the photo. Don't try to match the printed page or you'll be disappointed in the result.

8. Consider the window exposure of your room. For a south exposure, choose a cooler, grayer tone; for a room with north light, pick a warmer color.

½ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon pepper
Flour
3 tablespoons salad oil
1 1-pound can (2 cups) tiny whole carrots
1 3-ounce can (⅔ cup) broiled sliced mushrooms
1 1-pound can (2 cups) whole onions, drained

Thoroughly combine first 7 ingredients; shape in walnut-sized meat balls (about 30). Dust lightly with flour, and brown on all sides in hot oil (about 10 minutes). Add carrots (with liquid) and mushrooms (with liquid), and the drained onions; cover and heat through. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Supper Platter

A colorful combination to perk up warm-weather appetites—

Heat packaged frozen creamed spinach according to label directions. Meanwhile, fix scrambled eggs in your usual way. To serve, spoon the fluffy scrambled eggs in center of platter; arrange creamed spinach at one end and slices of chilled smoked salmon or boiled ham at the other. Excellent with buttered pumpernickel bread, tomato and cucumber salad, and a dessert of Angel Cake with Coffee Cream.

Quick Italian Supper

Just heat garlic bread and toss a salad to complete the meal—

4 slices bacon
⅓ cup chopped celery
⅓ cup chopped onion
1 3-ounce can (⅔ cup) broiled sliced mushrooms, drained
1 1-pound can spaghetti in tomato sauce

Fry bacon till crisp. Remove from skillet and drain on paper towels; crumble. Pour all but 1 tablespoon drippings from skillet and add celery and onion; cook till tender but not brown. Add mushrooms and spaghetti; mix carefully. Heat to bubbling. Sprinkle bacon over top. Makes 3 servings.

New idea: Baked beans barbecue style!

Clip this page for 3 surprising ways to combine B&M Baked Beans with Open Pit Barbecue Sauce for that old-time barbecue flavor.

1. RANCH BEANS. Cook 6 slices bacon in skillet until crisp. Drain and crumble. Sauté 1 large onion thinly sliced, 1 clove garlic, crushed, and ½ c. thinly sliced green pepper until tender in 3 tbsp. bacon drippings. Add 28-oz. can or 27-oz. pot B&M Baked Beans, ½ cup Open Pit, and 2 tbsp. molasses. Mix well. Pour into 1-quart casserole. Bake in 350°F. oven, 30 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

2. BARBECUED BEANS. Stir ¼ c. Open Pit Barbecue Sauce into 28-oz. can or 27-oz. pot B&M Baked Beans in saucepan. Heat and stir until beans are hot and bubbly. Add more Open Pit if desired. Makes 4 to 6 servings. NOTE: For meat loaf, stews and casseroles, use Open Pit as an ingredient. Also, for basting roasts and spareribs. And as a sauce for leftovers and hors d'oeuvres.

3. SAUCY BEANS. Sauté ½ cup finely chopped onions, 3 slices bacon, quartered, in saucepan until onions are tender. Stir in 28-oz. can or 27-oz. pot B&M Baked Beans, ½ c. Open Pit, ¼ c. firmly packed brown sugar and 1 tbsp. prepared mustard. Bring to boil. Simmer over low heat, 15 min.; stir occasionally. Makes 4 to 6 servings. Open Pit Barbecue Sauce gives any dish old-time barbecue flavor.

Now there are two kinds of Open Pit Barbecue Sauce: Open Pit Regular (below) and new Open Pit Smoky—made with real liquid hickory smoke for that hickory smoke flavor (not available yet in all areas). For other different ways to serve B&M Brick Oven Baked Beans, write to Burnham & Morrill Co., Portland, Maine.

The Open Pit is a trade-mark of General Foods Corporation. Registered U. S. Pat. Off.

1 Pick-of-the-Garden Salad
2 Grape Frosted Pear
3 Corn-stuffed Tomato
4 Fruit Picture Salad
(recipe on page 71)

Pick-of-the-Garden Salad

To keep the fresh flavor and texture, cook vegetables till just barely done—

- 5 or 6 whole young carrots, cooked
- 1 cup whole baby beets, cooked
- 1 small cauliflower, sliced and cooked
- 1 cup whole green beans, cooked
- 1 cup shelled green peas, cooked
- 1 small head Boston lettuce
- 1 recipe Chili Mayonnaise

Drain and chill cooked vegetables. Slice carrots diagonally in half. Gently open up the leaves of lettuce without separating them from the core, and place in center of salad platter. Around the lettuce, arrange mounds of each vegetable. Pass a bowl of Chili Mayonnaise. Makes 6 servings.

Chili Mayonnaise: Combine 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, ½ cup chili sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon crushed tarragon, and a dash each paprika and celery salt.

Grape Frosted Pears

This could be a lovely salad-dessert—

- 3 ripe Bartlett pears
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup light cream
- Salad greens
- Large bunch seedless green grapes

Cut pears in half lengthwise; pare and core. Sprinkle pears with lemon juice to keep color light. Blend cream cheese, sugar, vanilla, and cream. Arrange a bed of salad greens on individual plates, and place a pear half, cut side down on each. Spread an even coating of the cream-cheese mixture over each pear. Stud the cheese frosting with grapes, either whole or cut in half, arranging them as close together as possible. Makes 6 servings.

Corn-stuffed Tomatoes

Goes with dinner, or stars in a luncheon. Serve with hot rolls, iced tea, and a simple dessert—

- 4 large firm-ripe tomatoes
- 2 medium ears sweet corn, cooked and cut off cob (1 cup kernels)
- ¼ cup chopped green onions
- ⅓ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- ½ teaspoon salt

• • •

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- Salt and fresh-ground pepper to taste

Cut out tomato cores. Cut each tomato, not quite all the way through, into wedges. Spoon out and reserve most of the centers. Invert tomatoes over cups to drain; chill. Chop tomato pulp fine; drain. Mix corn, chopped tomato, onions, green pepper, pimiento, and ½ teaspoon salt. Combine remaining ingredients for dressing; pour over vegetables and mix well. Chill thoroughly. At serving time, spoon mixture into chilled tomato cups. Serve on salad greens; pass mayonnaise. Makes 4 servings.

Parmesan Blue-cheese Dressing

Both cheese flavors come through this tasty topping for fresh vegetable salads—

- 2 cups mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1 8-ounce can (1 cup) seasoned tomato sauce
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 ounce blue cheese, crumbled (¼ cup)
- 2 tablespoons cooking sherry
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon paprika

Mix all ingredients. (For a smooth dressing, whiz in blender for 10 to 15 seconds.) Chill. Serve with lettuce wedges or sliced tomatoes. Makes about 3½ cups.

Continental Cucumbers

Next time try the sauce as a chip dip or a topping for baked potatoes—

- 1 large or 2 medium cucumbers
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt

Leave peel on cucumbers; slice very thin. Combine remaining ingredients. Layer the cucumber slices and sour-cream mixture in a serving dish. Cover and chill well. Serve on individual salad plates on a bed of lettuce or in center of a tomato aspic ring. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Cantaloupe Cooler

Halve and seed a cantaloupe or honeydew melon (if quite large, cut in serving-size wedges). Spoon dairy sour cream into center and sprinkle with brown sugar.

August Fruit Medley

Tastes as good as it looks. Could be appetizer, could be dessert—

- 2 cups sliced, peeled ripe peaches
- 1 cup diced pared ripe pears
- ½ to 1 cup fresh blueberries
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ½ cup sugar
- Dash salt

Mix the fruits in a bowl. Combine remaining ingredients, stirring to dissolve sugar; pour over fruit. Toss lightly; chill. Makes 5 servings.

Fresh fruit tip: You can cut up pastel fruits ahead for salads and desserts if you use a color keeper (ascorbic-acid mixture).

ball point pen directly on fabric.

For fringe use a soft, bulky yarn. One 2 ounce skein makes about 2 yards when worked over a 1½ inch width of wood, such as a wooden ruler. (Sand wood if necessary to smooth.)

Fringe: Crochet a chain about as long as fringe needed. Do not cut yarn until you are sure how much is needed. With another ball of yarn, begin at the start of the chain. Make starting loop on hook. Insert hook in first chain, wrap yarn behind and around stick. Pull yarn through chain and loop on hook as you would a slip stitch. For heavy fringe, make two such loops in each chain. Allow fringe to slide off stick.

When gluing fringe on, twist it alternately left and right a half turn. Loops of fringe always radiate out from curves.

Divider panel: If panel is to be viewed from both sides and fabric is sheer, use two lengths. Each length measures 50x90 inches. Motifs are glued on front; second length serves as lining (you may wish to glue motifs on both sides). If heavy fabric is used, adhesive will not ordinarily show through.

For motifs, use a bulky homespun yarn which is spun with alternating thick and thin places about every 3 inches. With a No. 6 or G hook, Chain 16, turn. Insert hook in last chain from hook. Reach for first thin spot in yarn, allowing the heavy 3 inches between to form a loop on back side. Pull yarn through; complete stitch as single crochet. Repeat, working a single crochet in each chain stitch with a 3 inch loop of yarn between each one (15 loops in all). Turn, single crochet across. Repeat these 2 rows as many times as specified below.

To make row of long fringelike loops: Skip first thin place in yarn; reach for a second one about 6 in. down yarn. Make a single crochet as before, but with a loop twice as long between each one.

Rows on divider are placed 10 inches apart; motifs are graduated in size. For bottom two rows, motifs start with a chain of 16 with 3 rows of 3-inch loops and 1 row of 6-inch loops.

Rows 3 and 4: Start with a chain of 14; have two rows of 3-inch loops, and one row of 6-inch loops.

Rows 5 and 6: Start with a chain of 12; have one row of 3-inch loops, and one row of 6-inch loops.

Rows 7 and 8: Start with a chain of 10 and a row of 6-inch loops.

Sunburst pillow: Using cotton rug yarn, make about 2 yards of Chain Stitch crochet. Starting at center of pillow, glue chains in circles. Make length of Picot Chain to go around outside circle.

Abstract designed pillow: This is more or less like a doodle. Make large chain by combining several strands of yarn in close vibrant shades. Place it directly on pillow until you get the composition you like. Glue in place.

Intersecting arcs: With a compass draw design on paper to fit size of pillow. Transfer design to pillow as we suggested for drapery. Using the colors you choose, Chainstitch any four-ply yarn.

Striped Pillow: This design uses a series of Chain Stitch, Single Crochet Braid, Ladder Braid, and Picot Chain. They were done in cotton rug yarn then mounted on a green pillow cover.

"May I try something a little farther from the pavement?"

Strange but true—the people who sit back and watch the world go by usually see less of it than those in the parade.

Christine and I are taking separate vacations this year. I will be in the front seat with Rosemary, and she will be in the back seat with Burt and Judy.

Elaine Cowan, our divorcee friend, points out that it is easier to attract men than it is a man.

Grandpa Hillis maintains that his idea of a perfect summer vacation trip is to climb into the old family hammock in the back yard, cool the engine with lemonade, and go for a long drive among the white fleecy clouds of fair weather.

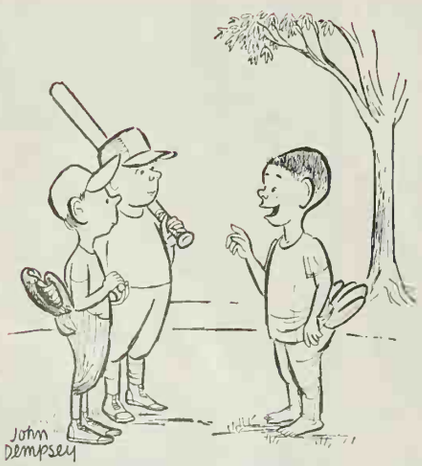
Old Mr. Willis says his best hope for the kids of today is that all the older folks are as wrong about their chances as they were when he was a kid.



"It's called 'work-up' and it's just like baseball except you don't have parents, managers, coaches, umpires, uniforms, schedules, practice. . . ."

Mr. Olds, our high-school principal, has written a summer letter to juniors and seniors reminding them that the future of the space age belongs to those who keep their noses to the grindstone.

The best course a modern girl could follow, says Grandmother Hillis, is to pick out a good young man and then NOT try to make the best of him.

According to my Christine, you can tell that today's women are taking a more active interest in international affairs. At bridge clubs and other women's functions, you get a lot more lasagne, beef stroganoff, smorgasbord, and chicken molokai than you used to.

Dr. George Hall, our pastor, says that the only foolproof way to give advice is to ask people what they think they should do.

Katy Daly, who is only six, has taught her dog to sit, speak, and hide when he doesn't want any more lessons.

Sam Vaughn recently quit his job as hotshot police reporter for a big city daily to take over as editor-reporter of our neighborhood weekly newspaper. But he is still on the run. He had to leave the fellowship hour following the Men's Club meeting at church last Tuesday evening to cover a protest meeting on the widening of Oak Street and then hurry to get to the Thompsons' golden wedding celebration before the champagne ran out.

Mr. Bell, our bachelor friend, says he particularly enjoys summer social activity because it gives a man a chance to see more of the ladies in their best places.

One reason very young people are rushing into marriage these days is that the down payment is small and there is a whole lifetime to pay.

I found a stray radish growing in a r of peas the other day and got to wond ing how the same soil and water came produce something sweet and somethi bitter side by side.

The other morning, riding downto with my neighbor, Patrick O'Leary, were momentarily held up by an elect traffic light. Pat remarked that it is agai the nature of man to be dictated to by mechanical contraption that lacks kno edge or judgment. Warming up, he clared that being ordered around by a ro is an outrageous violation of a man's f nature and probably of the Constitution well.

A little farther on, at an intersecti where a policeman was on duty, Pat s he believed every citizen has a fundamen duty to refuse to submit to the delibera offensive, and dictatorial tyranny of stupid and ignorant minion of the la who, in addition to his other faults, v obviously biased in favor of north-so traffic over us hard-pressed, decent, t paying travelers who were moving in east-west direction.

At an intersection where there was control of any kind, Pat's blood boi again. There could be no excuse for t and he was going down to City Hall p sonally and demand the kind of tra regulation and protection that we t payers are entitled to.

When he had cooled down, which does almost as quickly as he heats up suggested that there might be some inc sistency in his attacks on imperson personal, and nonexistent traffic contr But he shook it off. "One does not h to be in favor of one injustice to be agai another," he said and continued on do town, his bright, blue eyes alert for furt suppressions of the human spirit.

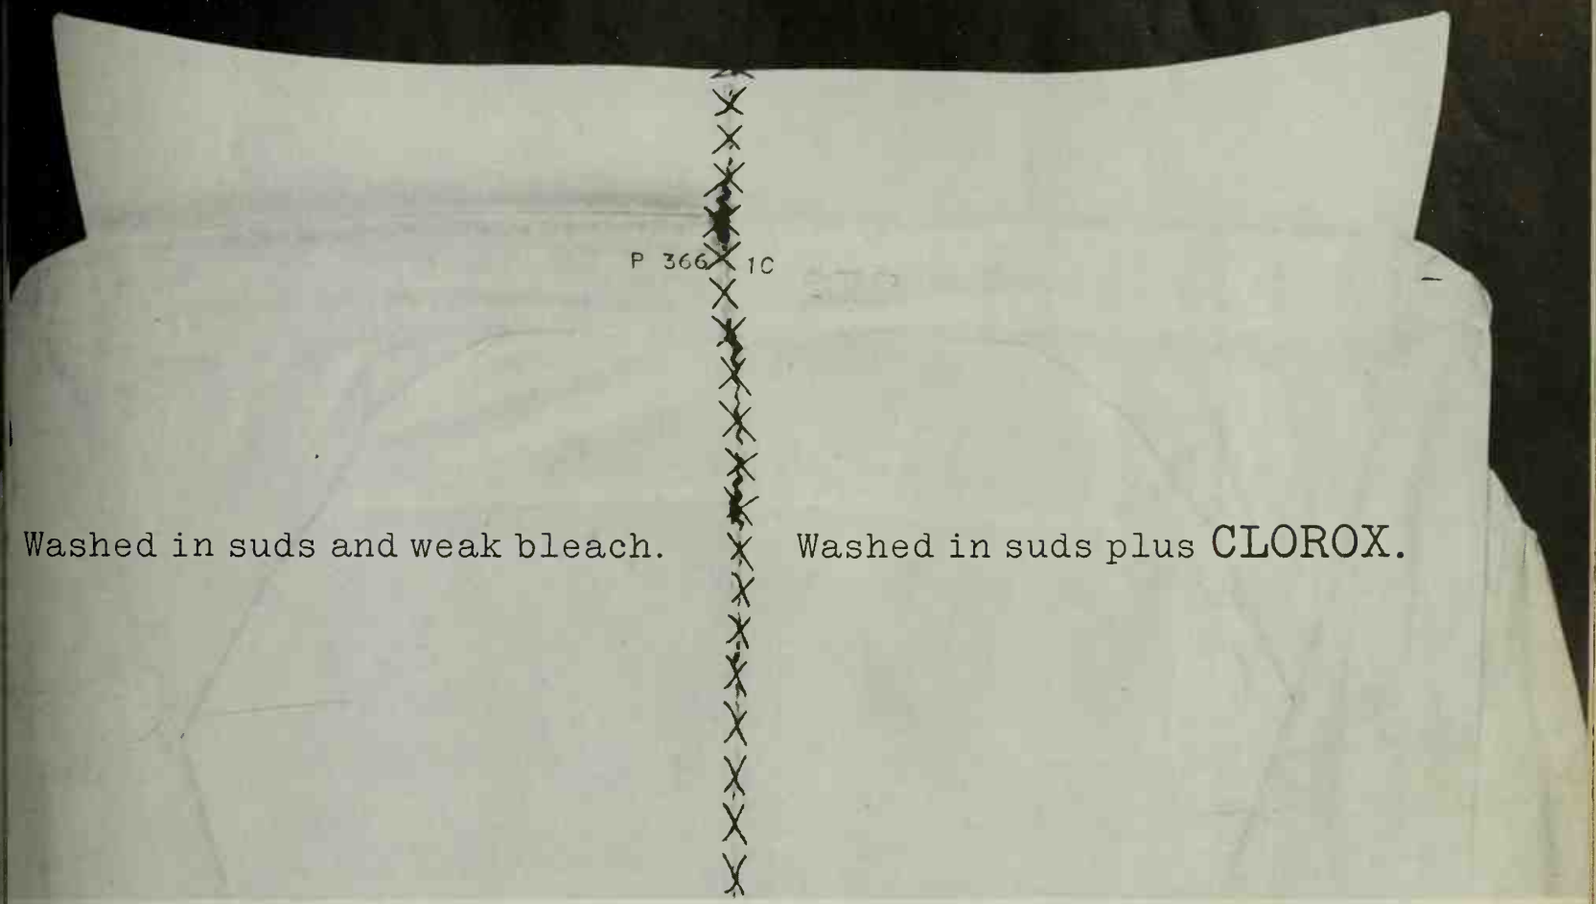
Split-shirt test shows why your suds need the added cleaning power of CLOROX®



Washed in suds and weak bleach.

Washed in suds plus CLOROX.

You can see the difference!

The shirt above was normally worn and washed several times. After the last wearing, it was cut in two. Half was laundered with detergent and a weak bleach; the other half with the same detergent... plus Clorox bleach.

The results demonstrate why you should launder with Clorox every time: the added cleaning power of Clorox gets out dirt that suds and weak bleach leave in. You'll find that your whole family wash, from shirts to bed sheets, comes out cleaner with Clorox.

Not surprising if the young ladies at right look familiar to you. They're the famous "Lennon Sisters" seen and heard by millions on the Lawrence Welk Show, ABC-TV.

"We had 11 good reasons for buying a Maytag"

"And they ranged from a 10-month-old baby boy to a full-grown daughter," says Mrs. William Lennon, of Venice, Calif. "That's why I had to have an automatic washer that I could count on to do four or five loads a day, seven days a week.

"My first Maytag automatic was like that for 8 years and 10 children. When I traded it in to get all the new features, naturally I picked a Maytag. Now, 2 years and 1 child later, I say that Maytag still makes washers like they used to. Not a single service problem on the automatic."

That's one case. Maytag has built more than 13,000,000 washers and dryers since 1907 with an outstanding record for dependability.

So, if you've got one, two, or eleven good reasons for needing an automatic you can depend on, be practical. Pick the automatic that can do a day's work every day. Ask any Maytag owner which one that is.

Today, Maytag offers you all these features right along with dependability: Unsurpassed Big-Load Capacity, Automatic Bleach Dispenser, Automatic Dispenser for fabric conditioner, underwater Automatic Lint-Filter Agitator, money-saving Automatic Water-Level Control, a Safety Lid that stops action in seconds when opened—and a Zinc-Coated Steel Cabinet that protects against rust!

COMING IN OCTOBER . . .

A GUIDE TO HOME OWNERSHIP

As a guide to the thousands who will be buying new homes, the National Association of Home Builders has published a booklet which will be included with the October issue of Better Homes & Gardens. Entitled, "Better Living Begins When You Own a New Home," the booklet describes the advancement in home building during the past decade. It dramatizes the advantages of home ownership and tells how easy it is to buy a new home today.

Today's New Home Offers Low Cost, High Quality

The time has never been better to give your family the comfort, beauty, efficiency, and economic stability that go with owning a new home. Throughout America this month and next, the nation's home builders will be opening model homes dramatizing the technical revolution which has occurred in home building during the past ten years. This revolution has resulted in the lowest cost in the history of housing for the highest quality in efficient space planning, materials, and construction. Value predominates in today's new homes.

National Home Week: Sept. 30-Oct. 6

Better Homes & Gardens salutes the nearly 50,000 members of the NAHB who have made this booklet possible and who will be showing the finest examples of today's new homes during National Home Week, September 30 through October 6.

News! Recent tests of leading dishwasher detergents show...

Cascade protects china patterns best!

washed 500 hours
in another detergent

washed 500 hours
in Cascade

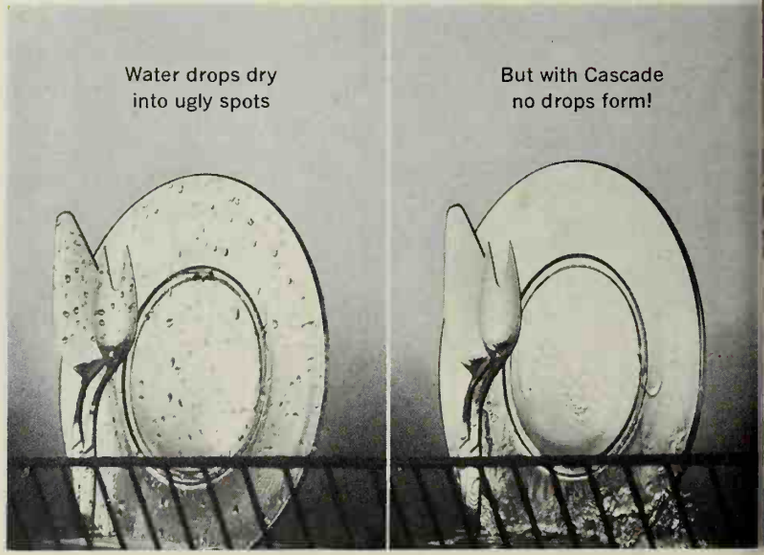
that's why only Cascade is endorsed for safety by the American Fine China Guild

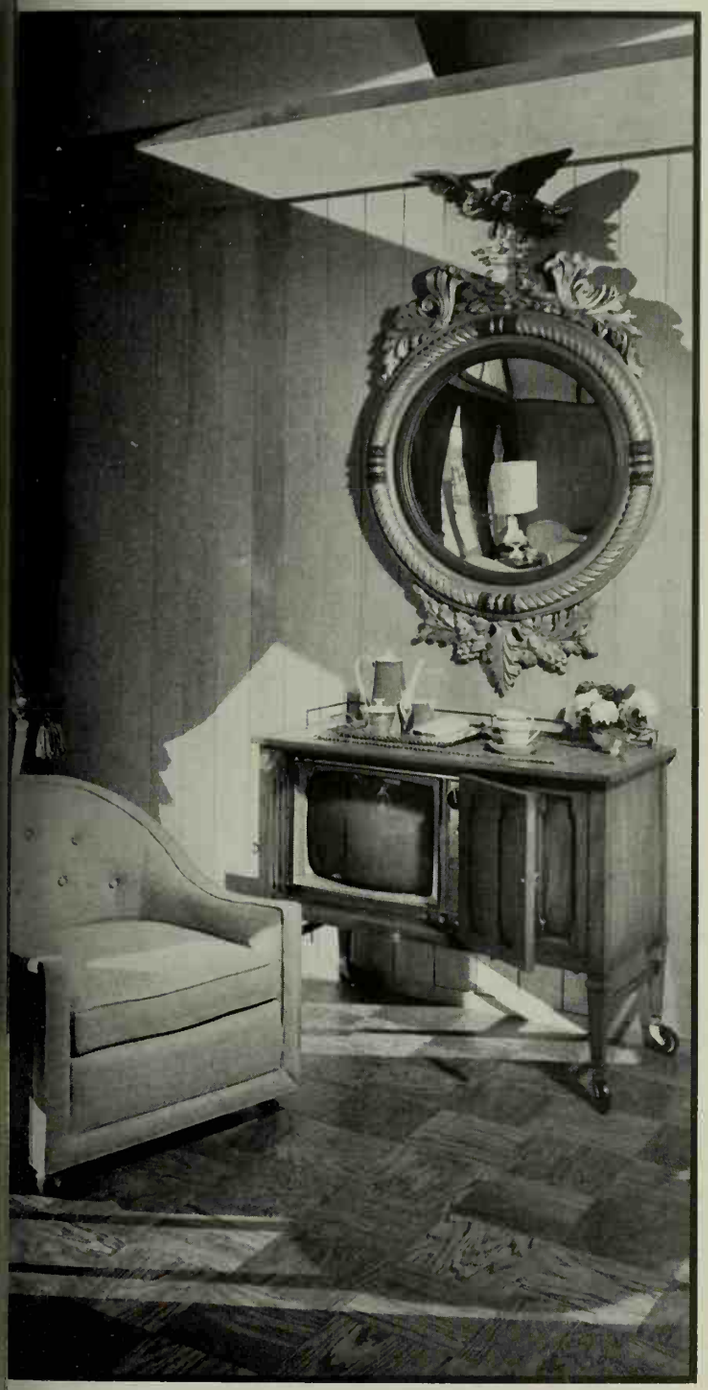
If your china shows signs of fading, chances are it's your detergent. So change to Cascade, the only dishwasher detergent rated safe for china patterns by the American Fine China Guild. (You'll recognize Guild members by the fine china they make: Castleton, Flintridge, Franciscan, Lenox and Syracuse.) Test results like those photographed above from Procter & Gamble, confirmed by the Guild's own tests, show how Cascade helps keep patterns bright and clear far longer, preserves gold borders far better! Cascade's special "safety" ingredients help guard the beauty of dishes for years. Why not give your good china this protection? Put Cascade in your dishwasher.

Unsurpassed for cleaning, too! See at right what happens when even clean water is sprayed on glassware, silver. Drops form that dry into messy spots. But Cascade, with exclusive Chlorosheen, makes water slide off in clear-rinsing "sheets." No drops form to hold tiny food particles or dry into streaky spots. You've never seen cleaner dishes, brighter glasses and silver than you get with Cascade—try it.

Procter & Gamble's Cascade is used by more dishwasher owners than any other product and is endorsed by every leading dishwasher maker

CASCADE ELIMINATES DROPS THAT DRY INTO SPOTS





Good ideas come on wheels—both the chair and this television cabinet have handsome casters that let you get into that most comfortable position.

The television doubles as a serving cart (it even has a storage compartment) and when football game viewing time comes, it rolls to any part of the house. The cabinet's design and finish are like any high-quality furniture. You can see how well it blends into the living room of our largest Idea Home on page 42.

Here's a practical way to build flexibility into the bedroom wing of any house. We used a ceiling-high folding door to divide these two child-size rooms—the door can be opened at a touch to change them into one big room. The door is a tough, washable vinyl in a grass-cloth pattern.

When you plan, be sure to give each "room" a door from the hall, like this—and decorate the rooms to go together. We used one large carpet in these rooms; it adds a feeling of size and ties the color schemes together.

Distilled from grain
then mellowed in wood

Such a big difference in flavor-

Such a little difference in price!

HEINZ DISTILLS their pure White Vinegar from grain—then mellows it in wood, as wine is mellowed. The results are a finer aroma—a far superior flavor for your salads, cooked vegetables and marinade sauces. Yet this extra quality and flavor cost you only pennies more! Heinz perfected this White Vinegar for their own pickling, and it's by far the best that you can use for yours!

IDEA HOME IDEAS

Got a closet but no workshop? Here's the answer we foun for our smallest Idea Home. This movable bench fits in th 3-foot-wide utility closet to keep equipment out of sight an out of the children's reach.

For minor operations, open the closet and use the end c the bench. When the repair job is a big one, wheel the benc out. Locking casters anchor the bench firmly, and you ca clamp a vise on three sides of the bench top—it's plywoo with a hardboard surface.

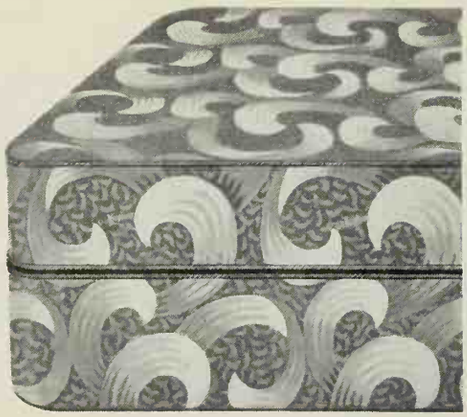
I got my first Koylon mattress, and at the time all the mattress people were telling me that I wouldn't be happy with it as it would stink like a tire, and that it wouldn't stand up. It's a funny thing but that mattress has no more smell than any other mattress. About three more years and I will have had a foam rubber mattress for 25 years, and I think it is every bit as perfect as the day I received it."



There's little to add to an unsolicited letter like this one, from Mr. Len Manasil of Denver, Colorado, except that U.S. Koylon is not only latex foam, the best sleep substance ever devised, but the finest of latex foams. And that Koylon's unique double-core construction makes it the airiest, cleanest, most comfortable and best-supporting mattress. In medium, firm and extra-firm densities, with specially engineered matching box-spring. Write us for the address of your nearest Koylon dealer.

There's always room for fun on this patio just outside th family room in Idea Home 3209-E. It's concrete, with th aggregate exposed for a textured (yet danceable) surface.

This is the kind of an outdoor spot teen-agers will soo claim as their own. Its location in relation to the rest of th house makes it ideal for rollicking relaxation. When a hom is zoned correctly, noisier activities in the family room are (inside and out) don't keep the smaller children awake– and are easy on adults' nerves, too.

IDEA HOME IDEAS

What better place for the family's music center than the corner of a family room? This one, in Idea Home 3209-E, shows how much an electric organ adds to the fun. We placed it near the tall doors that open to the patio just outside.

This way, whether the party's inside or out, the organ is convenient. You can do the same thing with a piano—or hi-fi.

There are two good kinds of lighting here, too—the canister fixtures cast high lights on the linen draperies when they're closed. A fluorescent tube concealed in the valance above the bookcase lights the small alcove.

Some people just have to see for themselves

"Cushioning of 'DACRON'* fiberfill," you tell guests, "the superb furniture filling."

But there's always one fellow who has to get right to the heart of the matter. Has to see why your upholstered furniture pampers him with cool, soft smo-o-oth comfort. Why your chair always keeps its beautiful shape. Never fights back when he sits down. This curious soul wants to see the pure whiteness of "Dacron" right in the cushion. Let him indulge himself. After all, "Dacron" can take practically anything.

IDEA HOME IDEAS

Here's another recipe for easy living—plus plenty of privacy. We just spotted the garage-carport at the front of the lot; it helps hide the street from view. By putting the carport next to the house, we got privacy—without that walled-in feeling. And, its sky-high peak matches the one on the house. A simple redwood partition (like the one for Idea Home No. 3209-A) camouflages the car. Plants brighten the lines of the roomy court. There's a practical note too: no long driveway to rob you of living space along one side of your house.

IDEA HOME IDEAS

This lanai wasn't free—but almost. You can have one too by extending your carport sl and roof a few feet. Then build a simple screen like this one (it's of redwood 2x2s) to blo the view from the street. Those extra eight or ten feet will give you a quiet, sheltered sp for barbecuing—or just plain lounging. We've used this trick in our smaller Idea Home, wi access through the dining room doors you see here. Plan carefully, and later on you can a a finished floor, and enclose the sides to make it a full-time family room.

TO EVERY WOMAN WHO IS THINKING ABOUT DECORATING A ROOM

Nothing adds so much beauty and "personality" to a room–so easily and inexpensively–as redecorating with paint. And with today's glamorous new colors for walls and woodwork, there's literally no limit to the lovely color schemes you can create.

Of course you want the best wall paint . . . and you can have it because the best costs so little. You'll want a luxurious, velvet-smooth finish . . . one that will keep its beauty for years. You'll want to be sure it's guaranteed washable, so finger prints and smudges wash away without a trace. You'll want a paint that goes on easily and smoothly, with a minimum of time and effort. And, you'll expect a wide choice of the newest decorator-approved colors.

Sherwin-Williams Super Kem-Tone® gives you all these qualities. It's America's largest selling wall paint . . . preferred by millions of homemakers for lasting beauty and satisfaction. So why experiment with so-called "bargain" paints? You can't afford to use anything less than the best.

For woodwork, kitchen and bathroom walls, Sherwin-Williams Kem-Glo® Enamel is America's favorite. Its tough, durable surface looks and washes like baked enamel. And it's color-matched with Super Kem-Tone for lovely room effects.

To help you select color schemes for your rooms, the Sherwin-Williams COLOR HARMONY GUIDE shows you over 1500 decorator-approved color combinations. It takes the guesswork out of choosing colors that "go together" perfectly—helps you select and match shades like an expert, right in your own home. You can borrow the COLOR HARMONY GUIDE free from your Sherwin-Williams Dealer.

So, when you're thinking of decorating, see your nearby Sherwin-Williams Dealer. You'll find him most helpful. He offers dozens of fine Sherwin-Williams products for every painting need. You'll always find the very best in paints, colors and service wherever you see this familiar sign . . .

6 tough sink stains – and the most effective way to remove them all.

These 6 stains burrow deep into the porcelain of your sink. They hide there, safe from rubbing. You know the trouble they give you and your cleanser. Hard rubbing removes only the surface of the stain... misses the deep part.

You need a cleanser that cleans as deep as the stain is. Comet is the name of that cleanser. Only Comet has Chlorinol...the most effective cleaning, bleaching and disinfecting agent there is.

Food stains can't get away from Comet. It bleaches the fight right out of them. There's nothing left of aluminum potmarks. Comet removes all 6 tough sink stains. Comet gets out stains better than any other leading cleanser.

Get Comet, the stain-removing cleanser. At once, you'll know how much better it works. Every product you use should do its job as well as this one does!

IDEA HOMES

It's really a shame that so many families move so much. They pull up the roots of friendly neighbors and familiar schools—just for the want of one more bedroom. They put themselves to the worry of selling and buying—often with more trouble and expense than it's worth. They move another five miles out, only to have to start the settling process all over again.

Every up-to-date house ought to be the kind that can be called "home" by a family for a good many years. It should be a size that young people can afford—but not so minimum that it won't fill the bill later on. Most important, it should be expandable when a family needs more space and a larger income makes it possible. Our Idea Homes do both these things.

Of course, a house like this needs the right kind of neighborhood, too—one that's planned for active families to grow in happily. Families who move into a house to stay make their area better every year. Naturally, this keeps property values high. We found a new neighborhood like this in Marin Bay, California, and built two versions of our Idea Homes there.

You'll see the beginning, 2-bedroom house on pages 36-39. Then on pages 40-43, you'll see the largest Idea Home—a four-bedroom version. Both are styled identically to show you the difference that size can make. And all five 1962 Idea Homes —with alternate roof lines—are shown on pages 46 and 47 along with their floor plans. Let's start the tour!

This Idea Home proves that size needn't limit the distinction, character, or the plain good living of a house.

This one breaks the limit with its soaring roof over the living room. The peak, all by itself, eliminates the look of a small box. Add the effect of the window bays, and the house looks as interesting from the family side at the back as from the street (below).

The exterior gets this richness in an uncomplicated way. The simple foundation follows the main outside walls. Floor joists extend past the foundation to support all of the projecting window bays and closets.

Materials are simple, too: stock windows, stained 1x6 redwood siding, and a standard tar and gravel build-up on the flat part of the roof. Cedar shingles on the peaked roof give it a handsome, heavy texture.

THESE ARE PLANS FOR HOUSES A AND E

These two floor plans show how a good house can grow with a family. The upper plan, the 2-bedroom version of our Idea Homes, is the basis for the larger versions. Like this, it's perfect for a young family —ready to start life with them.

The starter home skimps on nothing; instead of a minimum house, it's large enough to offer complete living to a family that needs only two bedrooms. Zoning is excellent—the living room separates the quiet bedrooms from the kitchen-dining area. And the house opens to the outside all across the back of the living room and through the dining room. The carport is convenient for grocery-laden trips from car to kitchen—a screen separates part of that space for an under-roof lanai.

The plan at the bottom shows what can happen to a good small house. It's the largest of our plans, with plenty of space for any large, active family. To the small version, it adds two versatile bedrooms, a children's playroom, another bath, even a laundry area to the bedroom wing.

The family room replaces the carport of the starter house to add an informal living area for a 4-bedroom family. The car shelter moves out front.

Best of all is the way you can progress from the starter plan to the larger one—without disturbing original construction.

Photographs on the following pages show both houses. Be sure to leave these plans folded out for easy reference as you read.

HERE'S MORE OF HOUSE A. IT'S SO VERY RELAXING

Your spirits soar as high as the ceiling when you walk into this living room—the tall glass gables make it bright and airy all year around. The dark beams are 4x8s; they support the gypsum board you see, and the insulation and roofing above.

The paneling adds the warmth of wood—and it brings a subdued shade of exterior stain inside. Because all the 8-foot doors open out, it's easy to arrange furniture near them. The window shades on doors have a printed fabric laminated to one side. Dining room draperies (left) are the same fabric.

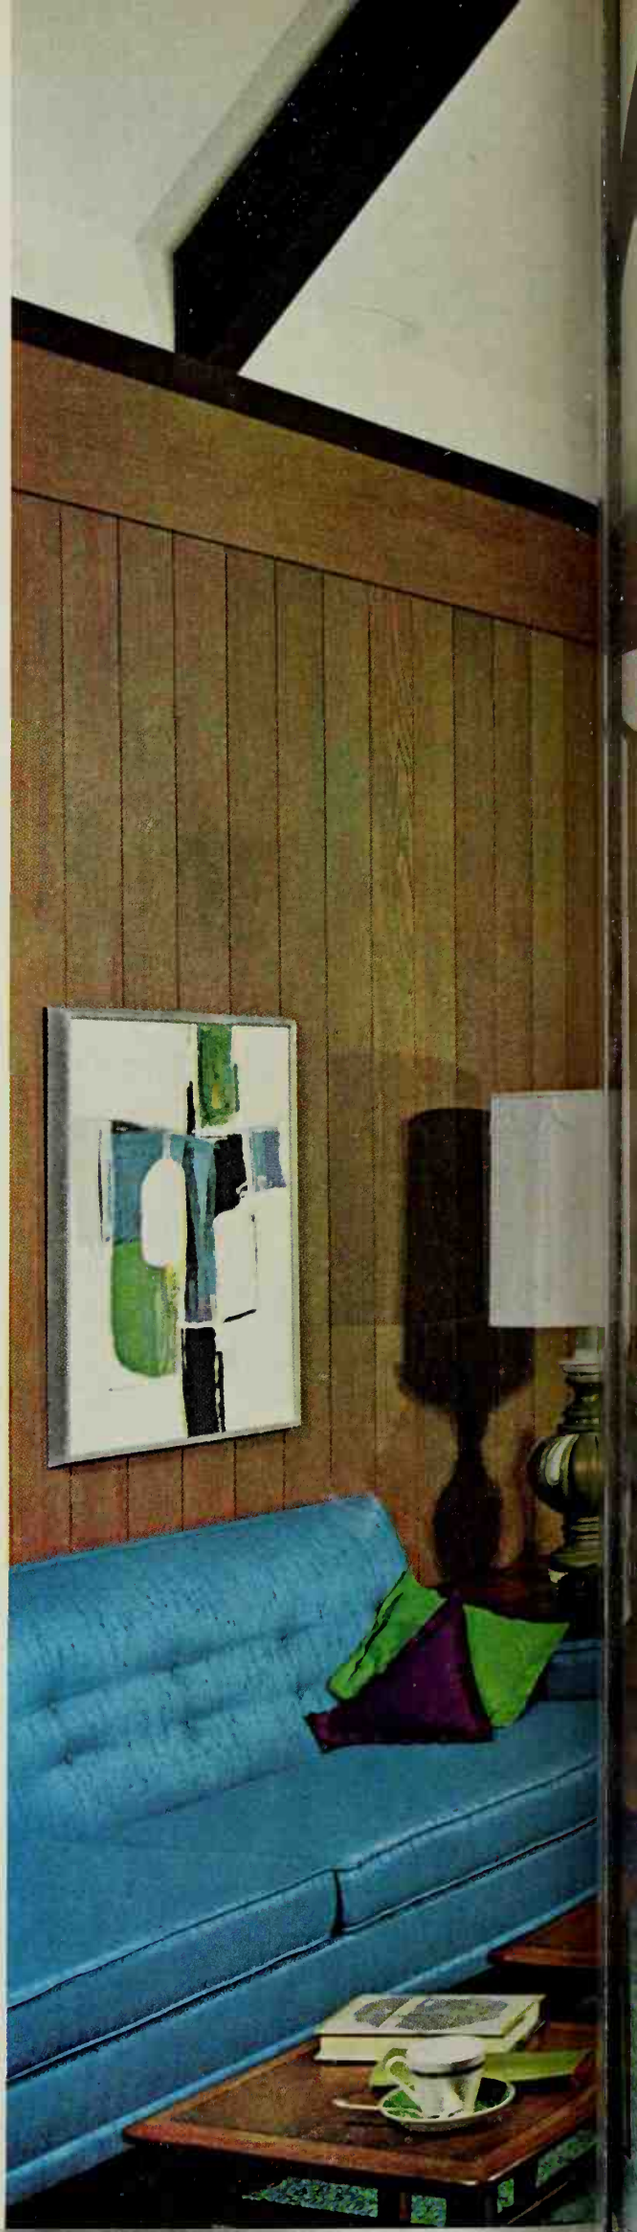
All the furniture here and in the dining room is inexpensive and as informal as a young, bustling family. It's flexible too; you'll see how we adapted it in our larger, grown-up Idea Home.

These homes were designed by Chan/Rader Associates, A.I.A., San Francisco, for our 1962 Idea Home Program.

The homes were built by the Latipac-Perini Company, Marin Bay, California. The landscape architects were Katy and Paul Steinmetz, San Rafael.

The furnishings in both homes are from Macy's California, San Francisco. Marion H. Elrod of their Studio of Design co-ordinated the decorating with Better Homes & Gardens' Home Furnishings Editors.

All photography was done by Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing.



For a cozier atmosphere, conventional ceilings of the master bedroom (above) and the other rooms contrast with living room.

Roman shade at the window here is the same fabric as the bedspread. The window bay gives a sunny, pleasant spot for a desk.

NOW YOU'RE AT HOUSE E. IT GREW ON ONE LEVEL

Bigger family—a larger Idea Home! We built the biggest of our five versions (it's the bottom floor plan on the fold-out page) to show how a beginning home can be expanded as your family and budget grow.

The back (above) is the same as our beginning home, except that we enclosed the carport area into a family room at the right. And, we used brick for most of the exterior to show you the difference this kind of a change in materials makes.

The front (below) shows the added bedroom wing and the garage-carport's repeat of the peaked roof. A walkway in the center of the garage-carport directs family and guests into a friendly entry court. Main entrance (large photograph) takes guests past the glass panels of the playroom. Family room entrance (above, right) takes the traffic of younger members of the family. Concrete squares serve as both walk and outdoor living floor.

HERE'S HOUSE E INSIDE. IT'S THE ULTIMATE

The living room goes formal in this house—and we did it all with the furnishings. The simple fireplace is as dramatic here as it is with the more informal furniture we used in the smaller Idea Home. The hardwood parquet floors are the same, too.

The handsome family room (left) encloses what was the carport-lanai area in the smaller Idea Home. To show you how quality furnishings can be adapted, we used the same area rug, tables, and seating pieces as we used in the living room of 3209-A—just as if a family started with the smaller Idea Home, then enclosed the carport and moved the less formal furniture there.

In this spacious dining room, (above) the windows are draped with the same felt as the living room windows—but without the tiebacks. Instead, traverse rods are used to close the draperies easily. The louvered doors to the living room swing open like this for easy circulation, and close when your dinner is finished. Bright canister lights accent the window area.

The bedroom (left) is really two. With the folding door at right open like this, both rooms blend together. We furnished it like a girl's bedroom suite. When guests come, just close the door, let down the sofa bed.

HERE ARE THE IDEA HOME KITCHEN
THEY FIT ANY OF THE HOUSES

Both kitchens—the one at left from the smaller, two bedroom hon and the one at right from the larger home—have the same efficie plan. In one, all the appliances are gas; in the other, they're electric e wood cabinets of Idea Home 3209-A give a artly tailored look, along with plenty of rage space. Inside, the cabinets have special- d compartments for a multitude of utensils, hes, pans, and foods. All the appliances here : gas—and they are all freestanding. The anup area centers around the double stain- s-steel sink. The under-counter dishwasher l food waste disposer help speed the job. The k area shares the overhead spot lighting and lio-intercom with the desk beyond.

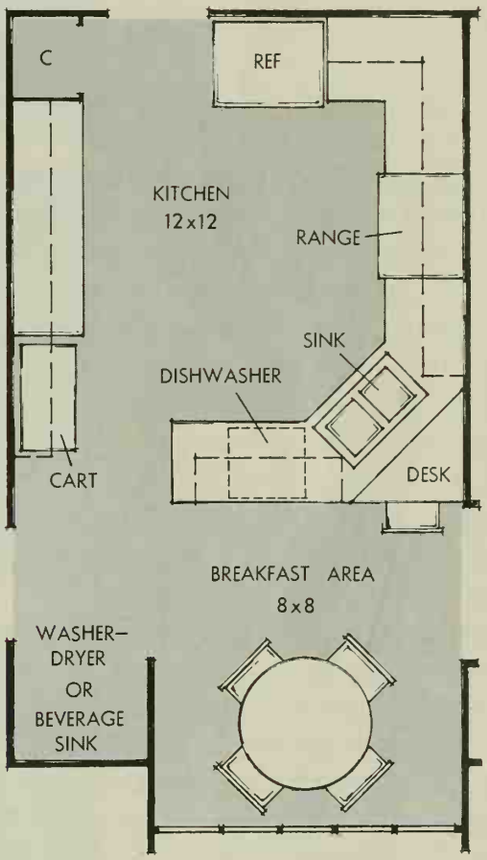
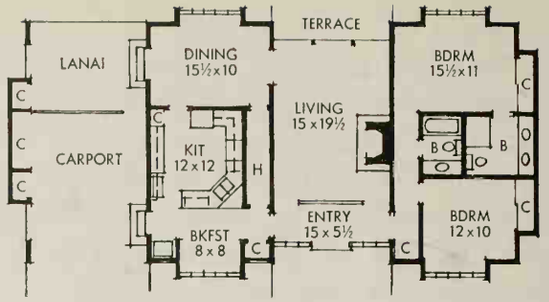
The autumn gold cabinets (they're steel) in Idea Home 3209-E's kitchen offer storage and work space galore. We used all built-in electric appliances here—the new refrigerator has a freezer compartment at the top. The all-vinyl floor adds comfort underfoot; counter tops are laminated plastic. In both kitchens, a luminous ceiling and under-cabinet lighting brighten nighttime activities. In the daytime, the big, handsome windows of the breakfast area do the lighting job equally well.



The kitchen is centrally located within each home and forms a nucleus for efficient household management. Lavish counter areas surround major appliances. U-shaped kitchen work area eliminates cross-traffic interference during meal preparation, serving, and cleanup. Other centers include general utility and linen storage, and appliance center and mobile cabinet lined up on the wall opposite the range. In the smaller house, the laundry alcove is near a spacious breakfast room beside the handsome window unit. Or, if you plan the laundry area somewhere else in one of larger Idea Homes, alcove can be a refreshment center—out of the main work area and handy to family room.

AND THERE ARE VARIATIONS!



320

Here they are: all five Idea Homes lined up together. These photographs show the alternate pitched roofs—the plans show both roofs, so you can take your choice.

Pick and choose the home that suits your family best. And, even if your budget rules that one out, you can start smaller, expand to the home you want later on.

3209-A This basic Idea Home is the starting plan for all of the other four. Its main entry shuttles traffic directly to the bedroom wing, the living room, or kitchen.

The formal recessed entry and the window bays give the front an interesting, handsome appearance. Square footage totals 1,480; over-all dimensions are 67½x34 feet.

3209-B A sloping lot exposes the basement of this Idea Home to give you two more bedrooms and a family room on the lower level. Tall windows let daylight pour in. The photograph shows how it looks from the back; notice the living room's cantilevered deck.

HOW MUCH HOUS

In this fourth article in our series, Family Features Editor Neil Kuehnl talks to R. Manning Brown, Jr., Executive Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company. As head of his firm's mortgage loan division, Mr. Brown has provided dollars to home buyers across America.

Neil Kuehnl. Our readers, as you might expect, are intensely concerned with their homes. In recent years, one of the questions most often put to us by both husbands and wives is this: "How much money can we safely spend in buying or improving our house?" Mr. Brown, your company has helped thousands of families buy their homes. What are your guidelines on that question?

Manning Brown. Well, we have a rule of thumb which gives us a good average figure. We divide the family's annual gross income by 60; the result equals a reasonable monthly payment for housing—including mortgage principal and interest, as well as property taxes and insurance. Thus, a family earning $6,000 a year before income taxes could afford to spend roughly $100 a month for basic housing costs.

Kuehnl. And how much house do you estimate a family can buy for, say, that $100 a month?

Brown. Because local property taxes vary so widely around the country, I can't give a single answer to that. In an area where property taxes are comparatively low, a young couple might be able to purchase a $15,000 home and obtain an FHA mortgage for as much as $14,000—and the total monthly payment wouldn't exceed $100. In places where taxes are higher, that hundred dollars a month might just manage to cover a $12,500 loan on a $13,000 house.

Kuehnl. Is your "divide-by-60" formula for the size of a mortgage loan about the same as the methods used by other lenders around the country?

Brown. Yes, I believe so. Another formula with a similar basis is often quoted. I'm referring to the rule that 2 to $2\frac{1}{2}$ times annual income is about the maximum purchase a family can handle. In the case we just mentioned, a family earning $6,000 a year could afford a home costing between $12,000 and $15,000, based on this formula.

Kuehnl. There's one thing about these formulas which bothers me, Mr. Brown. In each case, it's the mortgage lender who determines how much family can borrow. But what if a husband and w want to spend relatively more on their house th the formula permits? Suppose they are willing sacrifice the more short-lived pleasures in order buy the house they really want to own?

Brown. Well, frankly, we have to analyze each ca on its individual merits. There are many cases and I'd say the number is increasing—where can and do exceed the "formula figures."

Kuehnl. What factors might cause you to break t rules?

Brown. Well, one important consideration is t husband's future earnings prospects. A man w seems likely to be making a much improved sala within, say, five years, would be a better mortga risk than the fellow whose earnings will probab remain more on a level.

Kuehnl. What about a wife's income? How do y feel about the value of her pay check?

Brown. That's a point on which we can often more liberal, particularly if the wife has some sp cial training that is in demand. We also like occ pations which can provide income on a part-tir or at-home basis even after the wife has fami responsibilities. Unskilled women employees, ho ever, don't have the kind of income we can cou on; so that type of working wife gets less credit the mortgage application.

Kuehnl. But even with some "extra credit," M. Brown, it is still the lender who has the most s about how much house a family can buy. I wond if that is quite fair—at least for the kind of hom oriented families we talk to every month. Y know, about 20 years ago Better Homes & Garde developed a formula which still seems to work we It's based, not directly on income, but on t amount the family itself believes it can afford spend on housing every month. We simply sugge that our readers arrive at a monthly figure whi they can comfortably meet, and then multiply by 100 to estimate the size of the mortgage th can be carried.

Brown. That formula, realistically followed, seer in line with ours. If the family we talked about moment ago, making $6,000 a year, decided to p $125 a month into housing, then with your meth the mortgage could be $12,500—which would quite reasonable under most circumstances.

Kuehnl. And I also think this method has the ps chological advantage of leaving the monthly pa nt decision to the family. Don't you feel that is portant?

own. Very much so. Before our mortgage repre-ıtatives make a loan, they spend a great deal of ıe with a family, trying to analyze needs, de-es, and financial resources. Every bit of informa-n the family can provide helps us—and helps husband and wife, too. The mortgage size, as ll as the monthly payment, must be set at a level family can live with. Confidence and peace of nd are vital to home buying—and the reverse ling of "debt fear" should be avoided at all sts.

ehnl. I've always felt families should add up the ancial advantages of home ownership, too. After , in most places, houses have been an excellent estment during the past 15 years or so. Looking it that way, home ownership has paid good divi-nds.

own. And quite aside from any possible rise in the lue of their home, the husband and wife continue build up an equity in their property. It's a type enforced savings which they might not otherwise cumulate—and in the event of an emergency, y can often "borrow" on their equity by re-ancing or extending their mortgage.

ehnl. And of course there are the tax savings at home ownership brings.

own. Yes, but I'd like to clarify that point. The vings don't apply on the local property taxes—u pay those whether you own your home or rent. the latter case, your rent must be high enough cover the property taxes the landlord pays.) ther, the savings come on federal and state come taxes, because homeowners can deduct eir property taxes and mortgage interest from eir gross income. Renters, on the other hand, t no such deductions, since they don't pay prop-y taxes or mortgage interest directly.

ehnl. Speaking of renters, Mr. Brown, I know ite a few families who buy homes with the atti-de that their mortgage payments are "just like nt." They move into a home, pay on the loan for while, move out, and "buy" another house they'll ver really own, either.

own. That attitude is all too common—and it is finitely a mistake. Home buyers who think of emselves as renters usually have mortgages that tend over too long a period of years. During the st years of such a mortgage, a high proportion of e monthly payment goes for interest charges—and very little goes toward repaying the principal, which becomes a homeowner's equity. So in effect, the buyer is spreading out his payments so thinly that very few of his dollars are really working for him.

Kuehnl. But isn't it true that many families are forced to take on mortgages with 25- or 30-year terms because they just can't meet the higher payments on a shorter loan?

Brown. Yes. If a husband and wife with a moderate income want to hold their monthly payments to a certain level, they may have to go to a longer term mortgage as a matter of simple economics. But such families should also realize that there is a very good way they can build up equity and reduce interest, assuming their income improves in later years.

Kuehnl. And that is, of course, extra principal payments. Better Homes & Gardens has made this point many times to readers.

Brown. It's an excellent idea, too. Let me give you an example of how it works. That $12,500 loan I referred to on a 25-year FHA mortgage carries a monthly payment of $75, not counting taxes or insurance. During the first year, about $21 a month is credited to principal. By paying about $21 extra each month just during the first year, the homeowner can pay off the loan one full year earlier, and the savings in interest over the entire term of the loan would be more than $600. If he continues to make extra principal payments in later years—regularly or just once in a while—his equity builds up at a remarkably rapid rate.

Kuehnl. I'm surprised you should advocate keeping the interest costs down. How does that work out to the advantage of the lender?

Brown. Well, I think virtually all mortgage lenders feel the most secure investment is in a husband and wife who use their dollars wisely in purchasing their home. Such a family has something to strive toward—in terms not just of increasing property values, but also in intangibles like pride of ownership, careful maintenance of house and grounds, and a strong sense of community responsibility. Those things, in the long run, are every bit as important to mortgage lenders as they are to Better Homes & Gardens and to smart homeowners themselves. END

You shouldn't have a mortgage if you don't understand the terms we explain on page 108.

PLANTS THAT LAST FOR YEARS AND YEARS

Perennials are one of the greatest joys of the garden. Their dependability and ease of culture have kept them in demand since gardening began. Plants display their welcome flowers year after year—often for decades. Even with little care, they still come on strong. However, they cannot go on indefinitely without some attention. Eventually, clumps need dividing—either to keep them in bounds, or to thin out for better blooms. Here, we present three of the major perennials that can be divided and replanted now.

Photograph: Herrlin. Data: Jessie Walker

Peonies, whether double or of the anemone type, such as this stand of Sea Shell, are the perennial par excellence. If they're properly planted, they'll need next to no care until division time in 10-15 years.

Choose a sunny spot with well-drained, rich soil. If soil is on the heavy side, dig hole 18 inches deep and as wide, and substitute good soil for that removed. For best results, be sure each root division has 3 to 5 fat buds. Plant so buds are only 1 inch below surface of the soil. Then mound soil over the root. In cold climates cover mound with mulch. In spring remove mound.

Photograph: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing. Data: Jessie Walker

Day-lilies are so reliable that they can't help being a favorite. Colors now range through showy shades of yellow and orange, to more subtle reds, pinks, and purples.

Pull day-lily clumps apart gently and cut foliage back to 8-10 inches. Replant at same depth (the point where green and white meet). Space the fans 18 inches apart. Divide clumps every 3 to 5 years.

Franklin Photo

For a loud, though brief, splash in the garden, Oriental poppies have few equals. Lovely pink, white, and mulberry tones now compete with reds and oranges.

Divide Oriental poppies now while plants are dormant or are just starting to grow. Plant only in well-drained soil, with the crowns 2 to 3 inches deep. Space 2 feet apart. Poppies should be divided every 5 years.

MACHINE EMBROIDERY

Photograph: Wm. Hopkins; Designer: Frances Robinson

Magnificent new creations are yours for the making—and as easy and relaxing as coloring with crayons! All you need is a small, inexpensive darning attachment for your sewing machine—and a minimum of time. Without learning any special stitches, you can explore this new embroidery technique on any straight-stitch machine. And there is nothing special about the thread, either. It is the familiar mercerized thread that comes in an endless range of colors.

Each sewing machine manufacturer makes a darning attachment to fit his particular machine. When using a sewing machine for embroidering, you'll need shaped bits of raw-edged colored fabric pinned to a plain-color cloth background with just the suggestion of a design idea. To form an interesting color contrast, stitch at random with many shades of thread.

We have selected items from the very simple to the complex. As your skill rapidly grows, you'll want to try more ambitious projects like the three large wall hangings shown. The round pillow, upper right, measures 13 inches across. Design of birds and dandelions is mounted on a padded plank to be used as a headboard for a child's bed. The burdock motif is stretched on a board for use as a box top or wall panel. The two small pictures are framed in linen-covered mats. Besides the toaster cover shown, you may want to make matching cover-ups for other small kitchen appliances. Place mat at the bottom of the page is adorned with needle-sketched flowers. Once you have mastered drawing with the needle, you will be ready to produce your own original masterpieces. As you progress, try massing harmonious colors together for a dramatic all-over effect.

HAPPY, HAPPY TEEN-AGE

And here are rooms to keep them happy. This is a whole new way of decorating for teen-agers—bedrooms, party or study areas. All are smart, quick ideas for younger budgets.

T HOME

Glamour begins in this glamorous make-up area. The pole mirror gives a full hem-to-hair-do view, and it can be turned to let you see the back of your hair when you're seated at the dressing table. The table is an old desk painted lipstick-red. The screen is made of plywood and fabric. "Her Royal Highness" has her own canopy bed. The canopy is draped over curtain rods attached to the ceiling. Have the rods put up with special flange-type fasteners. Here, the same fabric was used for canopy and dust ruffle. If you want, you can make them from printed sheets. Wise gals will want to invest in furniture (probably with an assist from Mom and Dad). A versatile grouping like this juggles to fit any arrangement; it offers plenty of storage, and it's a good start toward furniture for her first home. Shuffling is fun with a private shuffle-board court in the basement. Shuffle-board inserts like this cost about $20 and can be ordered from a floor tile dealer.

HAPPYSVILLE

Stuck-up—but wonderful! Here's a way to perk up walls, furniture, anything—and have fun doing it. Just cut designs of adhesive-backed paper and stick them onto whatever you're decorating. "Soulful Suzy" is a cute cutup stuck to a plastic chair. Her skirt is the cushion with attached fabric legs. Enamel a table, then decorate till your heart's content. The 6-inch clock is a wrist watch for our posy-picking sailor on the wall.

Party time can be anytime with a basement area like this. Colorful paint on the wall, wall bracket bookshelves for records, a table made from a slab door—and there's your record room. Color and comfort come from the cotton rug and bright cushions on the floor.

Bunkhouse and locker room are rolled into one here. Two beds, two closets, and a study area—all in a space only 6 by 12 feet. Count the 12-inch squares on the floor for proof! Closets, placed "do-si-do" to each other, form a room divider without carpentry. Wall board is fastened to the closet for a bulletin board. A pin-up lamp lights the desk.

Tennis, anyone? This table-tennis room is given a floor in a flash by unrolling printed vinyl. There's no cementing. For under $25, you can get a piece 12 by 18 feet. Colors are light, so paint the wall with a bright mural. A wall rack for paddles fits into the design.

Bookworms can set up shop with a second-hand file cabinet, a card table, and bookrack. Then perform a little magic with a paint-brush. Accent the drawers with bright paint or adhesive-backed paper. The felt-covered table top quiets the typewriter.

ITALIAN SPUMONE

Allen Snook

Another cooking bow to the Romans—they originated ice cream (at least ac cording to some historians). Even i ancient days, runners were sent t bring snow down from the Apennine so the emperor could cool off with frosty dessert. The Italian-style froze mold we Americans call "spumone" (sa spoo-mo'-nay) is more often known a "cassata" in Italy where it is very pop ular. Spumone, which means "bi foam," is rich with whipped cream. I our simplified recipe, vanilla ice crea is used for the two outer layers—yo flavor half like eggnog and half lik pistachio ice cream. The chocolate an raspberry layers are of frozen whippe cream. You can make the dome shap as pictured or layer the ribbons of ic cream in a loaf pan. Either way, i tastes like a Roman holiday!

The first layer starts with vanilla ice cream Soften it by stirring, so the outside won' melt while inside stays hard. Add rum flavor ing for eggnog taste. For a mold, have a bow (metal works best) chilling in the freezer.

Quickly spread first layer over bottom an up the sides of chilled mold, all the way to th top. Press a ring of candied cherries into th bottom. Refreeze first layer to firm it. Nov soften more vanilla ice cream for the secon layer, adding pistachio flavoring and choppe nuts; spread over the first; refreeze. For th third layer, spread on chocolate whippe cream; freeze. The Big Bacon Burger

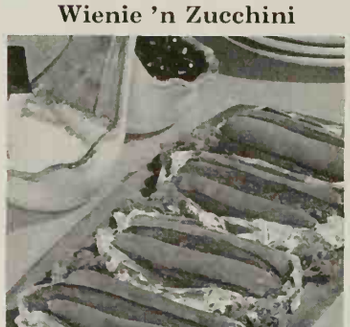
Scott

12 to 14 slices bacon (about ½ pound)
2 pounds ground beef
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

In a wire broil basket, line up half the bacon slices side by side. On waxed paper, pat the beef into a square the same size as the arranged bacon. Combine lemon juice and Worcestershire; brush half over ground beef and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. Carefully turn meat onto bacon in basket; brush top side with remaining lemon mixture and season with 1 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. Lay remaining bacon over top. Close basket to hold meat securely. Broil on grill over hot coals, turning often, 25 to 30 minutes or till bacon is crisped and meat is done to suit you. Cut in 8 squares to fit hamburger buns or in rectangles for coney buns.

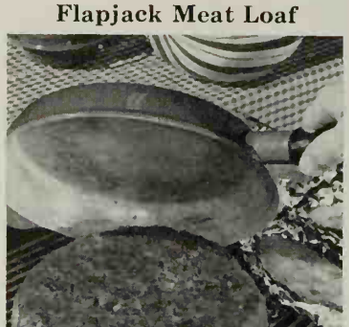
Wienie 'n Zucchini



4 small zucchini squash
½ cup extra-hot catsup
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon crushed oregano
Dash pepper
4 frankfurters
Butter or margarine
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Slice each zucchini twice lengthwise, cutting only ¾ the way through to the bottom. Mix catsup and seasonings; spoon a little into each slash. Halve franks lengthwise; wedge the frank halves, cut side down, into zucchini slashes. Place each stuffed zucchini on a square of aluminum foil; dot generously with butter; sprinkle with cheese. Fold foil over, allowing a little space for expansion of steam; seal tightly. Heat on grill over coals, turning occasionally, 45 to 60 minutes or till zucchini is tender. (Or bake in 450° oven.) Pass additional Parmesan cheese. Four servings.

Flapjack Meat Loaf



Try meat loaf, grill style. Browning one side first in a skillet sets it in shape—

2 pounds ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup catsup
½ cup medium cracker crumbs
1 beaten egg
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
Dash pepper
1 recipe Spiced Catsup

Combine first 8 ingredients, tossing with a fork till well mixed. Lightly pat mixture into a 10-inch skillet and place on grill over hot coals. Cook about 15 minutes; drain off fat. Then with help of pancake turner, turn meat out onto grill top. Broil 10 minutes longer or till of desired doneness. Brush with Spiced Catsup. Cut in 8 wedges.

Spiced Catsup: Combine ½ cup catsup, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet, and ½ teaspoon nutmeg; heat.

Surprise "Dogs"

Inside each, a row of olives. Next time, the surprise can be a dill pickle stick—

1 pound ground beef
¼ cup packaged corn-flake crumbs, or finely crushed corn flakes
¼ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon snipped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
• • •
20 pitted ripe olives
5 coney buns, toasted

Combine first 9 ingredients; shape in 5 logs to fit coney buns. Press a row of olives into center of each log, molding meat around olives. Broil on grill over hot coals (or 3 inches from heat in range), turning occasionally, 12 to 15 minutes or till done. Serve in coney buns. Makes 5 servings.

Bean Bag

A hobo special—open the foil and there's dinner for 4—

4 frankfurters
Liquid smoke
1 1-pound can or jar (2 cups) pork and beans in molasses sauce
1 6-ounce roll process sharp cheese food, sliced

Tear off 3-foot length of 18-inch-wide aluminum foil and fold in half to make a square. Arrange franks in a square in center of foil; brush lightly with liquid smoke. Empty beans in center. Bring up corners of foil and twist top as on a paper bag. Heat on grill over low coals or in hot oven (425°) till hot, about 35 minutes. Open foil and circle the cheese slices over beans and franks. Let heat a few minutes till cheese begins to melt. Crumple foil down to make a serving dish. Makes 4 servings.

Double-beef Sandwiches

There's dried beef and corned beef both in this Dutch-lunch special! It's sure to make a hit with the men—

12 slices rye bread, buttered
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
Leaf lettuce
4 ounces dried beef, pulled apart
4 ounces sliced Muenster or brick cheese
4 ounces cooked or canned corned beef, sliced very thin*
2 large dill pickles, thinly sliced
1 onion, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish

Spread half the bread slices with mustard and add layers of lettuce, dried beef, cheese, corned beef, pickle, and onion. Top each stack-up with more lettuce. Spread remaining bread slices with horseradish, and complete sandwiches. Anchor each with toothpick topped with a ripe olive. Makes 6.

*For easy slicing, have corned beef chilled.

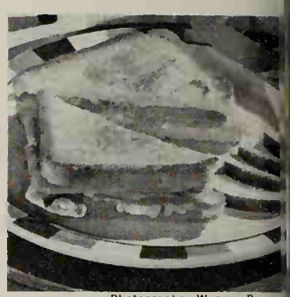
HE LIKES TO cook

Don't be embarrassed if you've experienced some cooking failures—so has this month's guest author-chef. But rising above past kitchen debacles, he has come up with five no-fail grilled cheese sandwiches for you.



Photographs: Warren Reyno

Will Jones does a column called "After Last Night" for the Minneapolis Tribune, and correctly includes good eating as an integral part of his entertainment beat. Jones also has an unorthodox cook book, "Wild in the Kitchen," to his credit; it has, besides successful recipes, a chapter on cooking failures. He says to judge a chef you must know his cooking disappointments. Jones' more spectacular failures have included eggs scrambled with caviar (they turned green) and Italian minnow pancakes (they, too, turned green). One failure was involved in developing this sandwich article. As an experiment, he tried a Dutch dessert combination, making a grilled sandwich of Edam cheese and milk chocolate. His kids enjoyed the novelty of it, although their reaction was somewhat less than enthusiastic. Here, Jones brings you only his successes, though, and invites you to best him if you can.

The fast mass production of grilled cheese sandwiches—the standard version with slices of quick-melting cheese slapped between bread, cranked out at kid-feeding time—I leave to my wife.

But when there is time to be creative, to realize the full potential of the grilled cheese sandwich as an art form, I move in.

A grilled cheese sandwich seems to me to taste best when one or two persons—certainly no more than a foursome—raid the refrigerator for an improvised lunch or a late supper. Creativity is limited only by the range of goodies found in the refrigerator, or your imagination, whichever is smaller.

My own imagination is fairly limited in the choice of bread. The various ryes and dark breads grill beautifully, but they can dominate a sandwich. The bread that performs best, allowing the cheese and its accompaniments their proper starring roles, is a heavy-textured, farm-style white bread that has been thinly sliced.

Even a substantial bread won't hold up to hard butter. If the spread isn't soft, melt it. Spread the bread as thinly and carefully as possible, starting with the outer edges first, then working toward the center.

One more basic: Use an ungreased griddle or skillet or sandwich grill, and use the lowest possible heat. Blasting a cheese sandwich, especially one of these thick masterpieces, toasts the bread brown before the center even has a chance to get warm.

Midnight Special. For this you'll need Cheddar cheese, prepared mustard, mayonnaise, thinly sliced Bermuda onion or slivered green onions, sweet basil, dill—seed or weed—and, of course, butter.

Spread one inside surface of the sandwich with mustard and the other with mayonnaise. Cover one slice of bread to the edges with cheese. Sprinkle the cheese with basil and dill, and cover with onion. Butter the outside surfaces of sandwich; grill golden brown.

Mess-avoiding hint: Butter only one side of the sandwich and put the sandwich on the grill with that side down. Butter the second side while the sandwich toasts.

German Gala. German-style brick cheese, prepared mustard, sweet onion, sauerkraut, soft butter.

Spread inner surfaces of sandwich with mustard. On one side, put a thin slice of sweet onion. On the other, arrange a layer of kraut. Add a good layer of cheese slices, close sandwich, butter it, and grill.

Variation: Spread the inner surfaces with dairy sour cream. Dash with dill or caraway seed.

Guglielmo's Inside-out Pizza. Provolone cheese, spaghetti sauce or pizza sauce, basil, olive oil.

Spread inner surfaces of sandwich with the sauce; sprinkle one of them with basil. Add several slices of cheese to make a generous filling. Brush the outer surfaces of the sandwich lightly with olive oil. Grill slowly.

Piquant options: Sprinkle 3 drops of bottled hot pepper inside each sandwich. Or grated Parmesan or Ro cheese on one inner surface. both.

Danish Extravagance. C bert cheese, thin-sliced ham, (Since grilled cheese sandw look pretty much alike on th side, you can take your choic which kind I'm making in th ture with me in it. Howeve close-up of the sandwich ac is my Danish Extravagance.

Arrange thin slices of chee one piece of bread (or if che soft enough, spread it). Butt other piece lightly and ar thin slices of ham over it. P gether, and butter outer sur Grill. Serve with chilled slices and beer.

French Frivolity. Brie or embert cheese, thinly sliced appl tartest you can find—lemon juic soft butter.

Arrange or spread cheese (1 triangle per person) on slices of bread. Arrange app one slice and sprinkle with drops of lemon juice. Close wich, butter the outside, to bottom, and grill slowly.

Bland, white afterthoughts: ricotta cheese or cream chee combination with chopped olives, or a generous layer of w cress, or both. Try grilling a tage-cheese-and-jam sandw tastes like a blintz, and mayb ter. Try Greek feta cheese slices of Greek- or Italian-styl olives.

Some more afterthoughts: dressings, like the clear garl French kind, make good spreads for grilled cheese wiches, inside and out.

Herbs and seeds add life t simplest grilled sandwiches.

The possibilities in combina of two and three cheeses are i ite. Have a good time finding

Chef's Bowl

1 small head romaine lettuce
½ medium head lettuce
¼ bunch curly endive
½ unpared cucumber, sliced
3 ripe tomatoes, quartered
½ cup julienne strips sharp natural Cheddar or Swiss cheese
6 thin square slices boiled ham

Have all ingredients chilled. Line salad bowl with romaine leaves; break remaining greens in bite-size pieces into bowl. Arrange cucumber, tomato, and cheese. Roll up each ham slice; place seam side down, atop salad. Serve with Anchovy Dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Fix romaine French-style for salad bowls. Cut out rib in each leaf with two knife strokes.

Anchovy Dressing

½ cup salad oil or olive oil
3 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon finely chopped anchovies
1 teaspoon salt
Dash each paprika and pepper

Combine all ingredients; shake well in a covered jar. Makes ¾ cup.

Handy garlic press does neat job of crushing garlic. All the flavor goes into dressing. No press? Mince clove on board with knife.

Summer Aspic

Delicious made with tomato juice—or with cooked fresh or canned tomatoes—

2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
4 cups tomato juice*
⅓ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery leaves
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 small bay leaves
4 whole cloves
3 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup finely chopped celery

Soften gelatin in 1 cup of the cold tomato juice. Combine 2 cups of the tomato juice and the onion, celery leaves, sugar, salt, bay leaves, and cloves. Simmer uncovered 5 minutes; strain. Dissolve the softened gelatin in the hot tomato mixture. Add remaining tomato juice and the lemon juice. Chill till partially set. Stir in celery. Pour into a 5½-cup ring mold. Chill firm, 5 to 6 hours or overnight. Unmold on a chilled platter. Fill center with cottage cheese, marinated shrimp, or potato salad. Six to 8 servings.

*Or use 4 cups cooked or canned tomatoes, and soften the gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Combine the tomatoes, onion, celery leaves, seasonings; simmer covered 20 minutes; sieve. Dissolve softened gelatin in 3½ cups hot mixture, add lemon juice and proceed as above.

To unmold aspic, loosen around edges with knife. (Remember inner circle, too.) Place chilled platter over mold; invert. Wring a towel out of hot water, lay over mold. Gelatin will slip out.

Corned-beef Salad Towers

This time it's an Irish tomato! Potato-salad stuffing has chunks of corned beef; the cabbage is underneath all—

1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon celery seed
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup finely diced, freshly cooked potatoes (warm)

1 12-ounce can corned beef, chilled and finely diced
2 tablespoons finely chopped dill pickle or sweet pickle
2 tablespoons finely chopped green onions
1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
6 medium tomatoes, chilled

1 tablespoon milk
4 cups finely shredded cabbage

For dressing, mix first 6 ingredients; combine half with warm potatoes; add corned beef, pickle, onion, and egg. Chill several hours.

Peel tomatoes, if desired, and cut each in 3 slices; sprinkle cut surfaces with salt. Reassemble each tomato, stem end down, with the salad between slices. Add milk to the remaining dressing; toss with cabbage and serve with the tomatoes. Makes 6 servings.

Cabbage crisper: Shred the cabbage ahead, toss with ice cubes; refrigerate 1 hour. Remove ice; drain cabbage and add dressing.

Guacamole Accordions

2 ripe avocados, mashed (1 cup)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce
¼ cup finely chopped ripe olives
2 tablespoons minced onion
6 medium tomatoes, chilled
4 slices bacon, crisp-cooked and crumbled

Blend avocado, lemon juice, and seasonings. Stir in olives and onion. Cover tightly and chill. Turn tomatoes stem end down. Going only halfway through, cut down, making 4 or 5 slices; sprinkle cut surfaces with salt. Add bacon to avocado mixture; stuff between tomato cuts. Top each tomato with a Bacon Curl, if desired, and serve Mexican style with corn chips or fried tortillas. Makes 6 servings.

Bacon Curls: Cook 6 slices bacon till about half done and still flexible. Insert tines of fork in one end of a bacon strip; turn fork to wind bacon around it, using a second fork as a guide if needed. Then let bacon curl finish cooking. Drain on paper towels.

Green-chile Corn Bread

⅓ cup drained canned green chiles
1 package corn-muffin mix or corn-bread mix
1 9-ounce can (1 cup) cream-style corn
2 tablespoons bacon drippings or butter, melted
1 cup shredded sharp process American cheese

Rinse and seed chiles; cut in strips and drain on paper towels. Prepare the mix according to package

mato Tree—Blue-cheese Dip

To "grow" tree, start with a ball plastic foam about the size of a apefruit (from florist shop or riety store). Insert a small wood wel or long pencil for tree trunk. Cover the ball with lettuce leaves, tacking with pins. To support trunk, fill a small flowerpot with some sand or anything else that will do the job. Poke one end of toothpick into each cherry tomato; anchor other end in ball. Pile more cherry tomatoes around base to hide sand. Set out tree along with a bowl of Blue-cheese Dip: With electric mixer (or use electric blender), combine one 3-ounce package softened cream cheese, 4 ounces blue cheese, crumbled (about 1 cup), 2 tablespoons each milk and mayonnaise; beat fluffy. Makes 1½ cups.

To soften cream cheese, let it stand at room temperature a while, then fluff with mixer or blender.

Salsa

This traditional Mexican-style sauce is a must in peak tomato season. This one is fresh-tasting, and just hot enough! Serve as relish with meats, omelets—

- 4 medium firm-ripe tomatoes, peeled and finely chopped
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup finely chopped celery
- ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
- ¼ cup olive oil or salad oil
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon mustard seed
- 1 teaspoon coriander seed, crushed
- 2 to 3 tablespoons drained canned finely chopped green chiles
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper

Mix all ingredients. Chill several hours or overnight. Makes 3 cups.

Quick way to chop onion for Salsa, other chop-ups. Slash through onion, crisscross, cutting almost through. Turn onion on its side; slice.

Shrimp Cocktail Salad

- 6 medium tomatoes
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 4 drops bottled hot pepper sauce
- Dash salt
- Fresh-cooked shrimp (about 1½ pounds raw shrimp in shell)

Peel tomatoes, if desired. With sharp knife, slice off bottoms (opposite stem end); scoop out half of each center; save. Invert tomatoes; chill.

For horseradish dip, finely chop the reserved tomato pieces; drain well. Combine ⅓ cup of the drained chopped tomato with the next 5 ingredients; chill. At serving time, sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt; hook shrimp over edge. Spoon dip in centers. Makes 6 servings.

Shucking shrimp: Split shell on under side; peel. Remove dark vein along back with tip of knife.

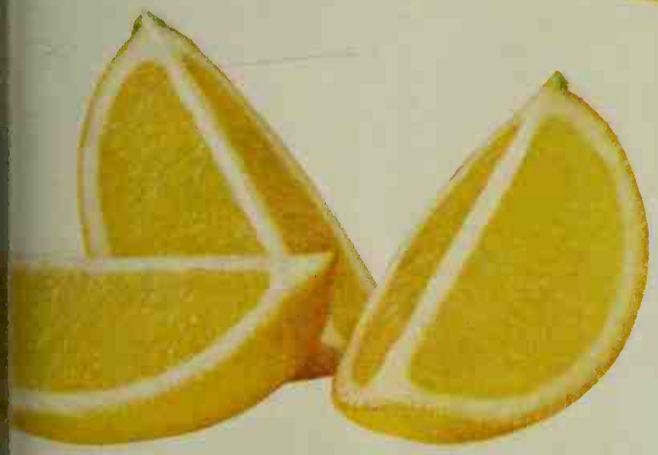
1. This is the only way to get lemon juice as it was meant to taste. When you squeeze your lemons fresh, you get the tiny bits of meat that add so much to the flavor.

3. Nothing adds so much flavor and so few calories to the things you cook as fresh Sunkist lemons. Only 4 calories in a tablespoonful. That is why so many good cooks keep a fresh lemon handy in the kitchen all the time.



4. What else do you know that can lift the flavor of meats, vegetables, salads, and fish like a juicy wedge of fresh Sunkist lemon?

SEPTEMBER GARDENING WHERE YOU LIVE

With
Better Homes and Gardens
WESTERN FIELD EDITOR
Norvell Gillespie

Our beets and celery have gone to seed before maturing. What causes this?
Mrs. R. E. C., Vernal, Utah

When seed stalks form before the vegetables are mature, the trouble is usually due to either slow growth or shock. Poor growing conditions or adverse weather that extends the normal growing period will do it, as well as sudden change and drought.

Is fall preferable to spring for the planting of deciduous trees?
F. T. Bellingham, Washington

In your part of the West, it's a good idea to plant in the fall. There are a few exceptions, such as birch, redbud, magnolia, and certain hawthorns. Plant bare-root trees when the leaves drop. They will then continue to produce new root growth well into the winter. In California and Arizona, bare-root trees are rarely available until December, because of the long, warm fall.

What are the chances of succeeding with fuchsias in bonsai work? Are there types small enough for controlled growth in tiny pots? J. L., San Francisco, California

I'd not have believed it possible until I saw some beautiful 4-year-old specimens at the Oakland Spring Garden Show last year. A San Leandro fuchsia enthusiast, Joe Machado, worked with specimens of Fuchsia magellanica, and F. thymifolia. His tallest specimens are 8 inches high.

Is it true that both of the 1963 All-America rose winners are descendants of Peace?
E. P., Ely, Nevada

Rosarians, hybridizing independently, came up with a wonderful pair of hybrid teas with the Peace rose being one of the parents of both. Tropicana has orange blooms of almost neon luminescence; Royal Highness has soft pink blooms, and has fragrance.

What is the name of the insect that surrounds itself with frothy foam? It's at the base of iris and other plants. How is it controlled? N. D., Corvallis, Oregon

It is the nymph stage of the spittlebug, the adults of which are called froghoppers. These insects secrete a foamlike substance. They can be controlled rather easily by spraying with DDT, lindane, or chlordane. Usually two applications, about a week apart, do the trick.

Is it safe to irrigate plants with wa obtained from one of the modern soft ers? H. E., Boise, Ida

No. Softened water contains salts that injure plant growth. Such water should be used for plants if you can avoid it.

Would it be safe to plant a fig in the sa place where I am taking out an oleand I probably cannot get all the roots out a wonder if by chance the poison can transmitted to the fruit of the fig.
J. T., Fresno, Californ

No problem—there is nothing that oleander plant can transmit to the soil th would prohibit the planting of any kind fruit tree, whether all roots were removed not. It would be wise to remove seve square feet of the soil and replace with go topsoil.

There are so many lilies available now th I get confused. What is the best improv new lily that can be planted in masses i woodland setting?
Mrs. L. S., Salem, Orego

Famed lily hybridizer Jan de Graff, wor ing on his lily farms at Gresham, Oregon, h produced scores of fine, new varieties. I fi it difficult to limit myself to one, but he goes: Enchantment, one of the improv Mid-Century series. What makes it goo bold, orange-toned blossoms on stron vigorous plants only 24-30 inches tall. F bloom next spring, plant now.

Is there any way to save a Monterey cypre that is attacked by a disease that turns i foliage brown before the tree dies?
R. D., Eureka, Californ

This disease of cypress is called coryneu blight. Scientists have found no adequa control yet and, because the Monterey c press is so susceptible, it is not recommend for planting in coastal areas. The disease identified by small black spots on the dea or dying twigs and stems. Get the disea determined for sure before removing ailin trees. Certain other cypress varieties (suc as Arizona cypress) are resistant to it.

Surprise your family with a little batch or two while Concord grapes are in season.

Fine products from General Foods

NEW! FUN AND FOOLPROOF WITH SURE-JELL

GRAPE JELLY (25 minutes from grapes to batch)

3 cups grape juice (about 3 pounds ripe Concord grapes)
6 cups sugar ¾ cup water 1 box SURE-JELL*

Wash, stem, and thoroughly crush grapes; place in jelly bag or cloth. Squeeze out juice; measure juice into large bowl. Stir in sugar. Bring water and SURE-JELL to boil; boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add to juice and stir 3 minutes. (Some sugar crystals may remain.) Ladle into 8 to 10 medium glasses. Cover tightly with lids. After 24 hours, place in refrigerator. If jelly will not be used within 3 weeks, store in freezer.

*If using CERTO® liquid Pectin, decrease juice to 2½ cups, sugar to 4¾ cups and water to ¼ cup. Substitute ½ bottle CERTO for SURE-JELL. Bring pectin and water just to boil—do not boil 1 minute before adding to fruit.

rtha thanked heaven for her marriage to tle and understanding man. She had n that her daughter would be taught that conceived in love was an experience of ound beauty. It had been frightening and ult at times to draw the moral bound- of passion, but she had bridged the pit- with frank and open discussions, and on had reacted with intelligence and un- anding—she hoped.

rock hates his father," Sharon said.

What an awful thing to say!"

Well, it's true. Gosh, Mom, you know everybody says about Mr. Purdy and secretary."

That's gossip, Sharon, and I don't like to you repeating it."

nyway, Brock knows all about it, and he can't wait to get away from here."

artha sprinkled more flour than was nec- y. She knew Clara and Arthur Purdy, the gossip distressed her. It was the same tion that had turned her own mother st men, and she had often wondered— Brock had been dating Sharon—what t Clara's bitterness might have had on oy.

He's leaving for college in two weeks," on said. "I'm going to miss him."

There will be someone new in a week."

"Not like Brock. I don't know what it is, but he just touches me and I tingle. I get all trembly . . . I just can't explain the feeling." Sharon rose and crossed to the refrigerator for a soft drink.

Martha watched, a tinge of panic racing her heartbeat. She could explain the "trembly" feeling, but she knew that she wouldn't. Here was her baby, a child in a woman's body, with a woman's feelings. What could she say? When you feel that way, remember what I've told you? Silly. When you start to tingle, count to ten and run? Sillier. You had to trust, that was all. You teach your daughter right from wrong, sprinkle liberally with love and understanding—then cross your fingers.

That night, Sharon sat close to Brock in the dark car and tried to watch the screen. It was difficult. Brock had parked far in the rear of the drive-in, making it impossible to see the movie, and he was whispering into her ear.

"Brock, please." She was wondering why she had agreed to come to this theater in the first place. It had a reputation as a passion pit. And she knew what was going to happen when Brock parked so far in the back, but she hadn't said anything. "Brock, watch the movie."

"Who cares about the movie?" He held her in the cradle of his arm, half-turned with his face in her hair, his lips close to her ear. His left hand was on her waist and he moved it up the bodice of her dress.

Sharon gripped his hand and moved it back to her waist. "Don't!" she said.

Brock lifted his head and she could see the irritation on his face. "What's the matter with you?" he asked.

"Nothing's the matter. I just want to watch the movie. If you don't, let's go."

"Don't you know I'm in love with you?"

"Yes."

"Then what's wrong?"

"Nothing's wrong. It's just that . . ." His lips were touching her ear again and the sensation made her shudder. "Brock, please . . ."

Brock tilted her chin and kissed her, and she returned the kiss. If Brock really loved her, she asked, why had he brought her here? But then, why had she come? Surely not just for that old movie. The confusion of questions raced across her mind. She knew why she was there. When Brock kissed her like that, she tingled, and it was terrifying the way she felt, and she knew that when Brock had suggested this drive-in she had wanted to come.

"Let's get into the back," he said.

"What?" she mumbled.

"Let's get into the back seat."

Sharon tore away from Brock and stared at him as though she were seeing a stranger. Brock was speaking, cajoling, but she did not hear him. The back seat. Somehow these words and all they implied—the cheapening—had broken the spell.

"Hey, what's wrong?" Brock asked, a deep scowl marring his handsome face.

"I want to go home."

"What are you, the iron maiden or something?" His voice rose angrily. "I spent the whole summer with you. What do you think I am?"

She fought against the tears, but the anguish swelled on the crest of her despair.

"Just . . . take . . . me . . . home."

Brock put his arm around her. "Look, Shar," he said, trying to sound reasonable. "I'm going off to college. I'll hardly ever see you. I want to be sure you're my girl."

"No!" she almost screamed. "Oh, please take me home."

"Okay, okay." He jerked the loud-speaker from the window and threw it to the ground, where it continued to drone. He whipped the car out of its slot. "If that's the way you want it, that's how it's going to be. There are other girls."

Sharon slumped against the door.

Martha heard the car stop in front of the house. She looked up from her magazine and glanced at the clock on the mantel. It was only 10:30. The car door slammed, and then there was the angry squeal of tires. She glanced at her husband, but he was preoccupied with television. She turned to the hallway. The front door opened and closed.

Sharon stepped into the room. Her eyes were red and puffed. Martha caught her breath. Sharon crossed to her father's chair. He looked up and smiled. "Hi, Princess," he said. Sharon looked down at him, then she dropped to her knees and threw her arms around his neck. Abruptly, she then rose and left the room.

"Hey, what's going on?" he asked.

Martha watched the girl rush up the stairs. Her expression was wistful. "Your little girl is growing up," she said. END

Shower a cool splash of green over your shelves and drawers with the aid of Marvalon—the most marvelous plastic-coated, rubberized covering you can find! Willow Green's the hue used here, so what could be more appropriate than Willow Green adhesive on your planter—or, in fact, on any accessory in any room. Green's keen—but perhaps you'd rather "decorate" with some of the other colors in Marvalon's spectrum of 13 "workable" colors and compatible patterns—all available in a matched trio—exclusive with Marvalon.

Matched Trio—means Marvalon has relieved you of the problem of matching colors yourself—they've done it for you—in drawer lining, shelf lining and an adhesive-backed covering of many uses including all kinds of clever decorator touches. All identically matched in 13 "workable colors" and compatible patterns.

And Marvalon is wonderfully easy to work with! No glue, no tacks, no mess. Simply cut and fit. Colorfast, scrubbable and extremely durable. Ask for Marvalon at leading stores where housewares are sold. For ideas on creating your own decorator touches with Marvalon, write for pamphlet on Marvalcraft to Louise Perry, Dept. B-92, Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, Wisconsin.

Marvalon COVERINGS

Only Marvalon coverings come in this Matched Trio:
Shelf lining—13½" wide. Scalloped edge. Fits standard shelves.
Adhesive covering—18" wide. Pressure-sensitive—won't shrink.
Drawer lining—20" wide. Fits most kitchen and bureau drawers.

MARVALON is a trademark of Kimberly-Clark Corporation

HOW TO GET CHILDREN TO TRY NEW FOODS

If your child had his way, would he choose a peanut-butter sandwich every lunchtime and not much else for dinner? Does he say he dislikes a new food just because it's new? Even before tasting it? Here are some of the successful ways parents teach their children to try new foods and make meals more pleasant for the whole family. Some of these methods apply especially to the quite young; others are effective at any age. Some may also be helpful for parents!

One clever mother uses this approach when introducing a new food: "First I serve out a small portion on my son's plate. Then my husband and I start eating enthusiastically. If Jimmy ignores the food or says he doesn't like it, I just say, 'Oh, that's all right, dear; shrimp is a grown-up food!' That convinces him to eat right up."

Another family recognizes that children want most what they don't have. So whenever the mother is serving a new food for dinner, she gives it only to her husband and herself; the children get something else. When the youngsters see they are missing a dish their parents are obviously enjoying, they want some, too —but have to ask to be included.

Group strategy can inspire eating enthusiasms—just talk to any nursery school director! Junior may not drink orange juice at home, but when sitting with a group of his peers who are gulping down theirs with glee, it's 10 to 1 he'll join in.

Unfortunately, the negative version of this principle is also true. Nothing can spoil a child's appetite faster than an adverse comment on the food from a parent or the mention of a guest's dislike.

As for serving sizes, many mothers have found that if the portions are small, youngsters tend to ask for seconds. This works much better than the discouraging appearance of giant helpings the first time around. Don't you sometimes feel that way yourself? Especially about a new food?

Buffet suppers and make-your-own sandwich meals appeal to children of school age and up. Even with family-style service at the table, some mothers prefer to have everyone help himself rather than to serve the plates. "When I let our son help himself, he took more than I would have given him and ate it all," one mother said. [Continued on page 103

"Dad says I eat almost as much as a football player."

"I'll bet it takes Chinese boys an awful long time to eat."

"I'll make it pretty so it will taste good."

"O.K., if the cowboys eat 'em, I will too . . . "

"Maybe I'll let Mother lick the bowl . . . "

When I plan to include a new d for dinner, I try to serve it in a erent manner—for example, in afing dish or in individual cas-les," suggests a mother of four, cause it arouses the family's in-st. A partylike setting makes food more exciting." Cute gs, tiny dishes, and a variety of rful place mats can add fun, Or, try using the gay, dis-able paper place mats made es-ially for children.

Brilliant colors and eye-catching nishes can do much to help both and new foods gain popularity. search shows that children are acted to bright foods—for ex-ple, they would choose tomato p over potato soup every time. e creative cook and mother s, "I always camouflage a pale d with a colorful sauce or at st a sprinkling of parsley or rika, and I try to combine ds that will look well together a plate. Textures are important, , so I offer a variety of crunchy, n, fluffy, and chewy foods in the ne meal." Crisp "finger foods" over big with small fry who've t learned to feed themselves.

Trying foreign foods is a regular nily project in some homes. A ferent country is selected each ne; and while mother plans and pares recipes from that country, other family members who are l enough have "assignments"—look up where the country is ated, what the people there are e, and what foods grow in the gion.

In some cities, visiting "foreign" staurants can be an exciting nily event and a chance to be-me acquainted with interesting ds which might later be du-cated at home. Though many ungsters might be inclined to or-r a hamburger wherever they are, Mother and Dad order sukiyaki d start eating with chopsticks, s hard to imagine a child who uldn't want to join in.

Speaking of eating out, one en-prising mother suggests "eating out at home" on nights when she has a group of leftovers in the refrigerator. "First I write out the choices on menu cards or post them on a bulletin board; then I go around the table 'taking orders.' This goes over big—but cross your fingers that not everyone will decide on the same items!"

On "leftover night," another mother does this: "I simply announce that we're going to have 'specials'; then I serve each person a completely different plateful—the kids think it's great!"

For the youngster who doesn't care much about eating in general, encouraging him to help prepare meals—if presented as a privilege rather than work—can be a boon to his appetite.

Along this same line, teaching a child of almost any age to cook can really perk up his eating habits. Many parents have observed the change in a daughter's interest and co-operation about meals after she has taken a class in food preparation at school. Both boys and girls love to dig in and stir up a batch of cookies—why not use this to advantage at mealtimes, too?

Here are some good starters for improving mealtime atmosphere.

1. Offer only a very small portion of a new food at first—call it a "just-a-taste" portion.
2. Include favorite foods in same meal with less popular ones.
3. Make everything look gay.
4. Avoid introducing a new food when a child is tired or irritable.
5. Have a positive attitude: Here's something new, fun to try.
6. After a meal that includes a new food, remove the plates casually, whether all is eaten or not. (Even if the children leave most of the new dish, next time it will no longer be unfamiliar and they will be more likely to accept it.)
7. If your child definitely doesn't like a food in one form, serve it in another. If he doesn't relish cooked vegetables, offer them raw. If it's thumbs down on meat loaf, fix cheeseburger pie.

Money for your recipes

Rice specialties; Easter breads

WHAT do you serve that's absolutely delicious, and unusual, and . . . made with rice? If you send us the recipe, you might be a winner. We'd also like your recipe for an Easter bread. Two Cooks-of-the-Month will receive $20 each. Nineteen other winners will receive $5 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured in the Prize Tested Recipes pages next April. The winners of these 21 prizes will receive a framed Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Hints to help you

Rice specialties could be a tasty main dish, or an accompaniment that's served as a vegetable. Is your rice fix-up a combo with meat, chicken, sea food, fruit, or vegetables? Any seasoning secrets? Use regular rice, converted, packaged precooked, or wild rice.

Spanish rice chicken-rice casserole orange-rice stuffing creamed ham in raisin rice ring wild rice and mushrooms
rice souffle

Easter breads. Do you bake a bread that is traditional for Easter? (Or, one that's just right with spring meals.) We'd like to know if you're doing anything different with hot cross buns. Such as a speedy way with a mix. Send recipes for yeast or quick breads—from scratch or from a mix.

Easter braid
hot cross buns
Russian kulich bunny biscuits
anise loaf
Grecian feast bread
saffron buns

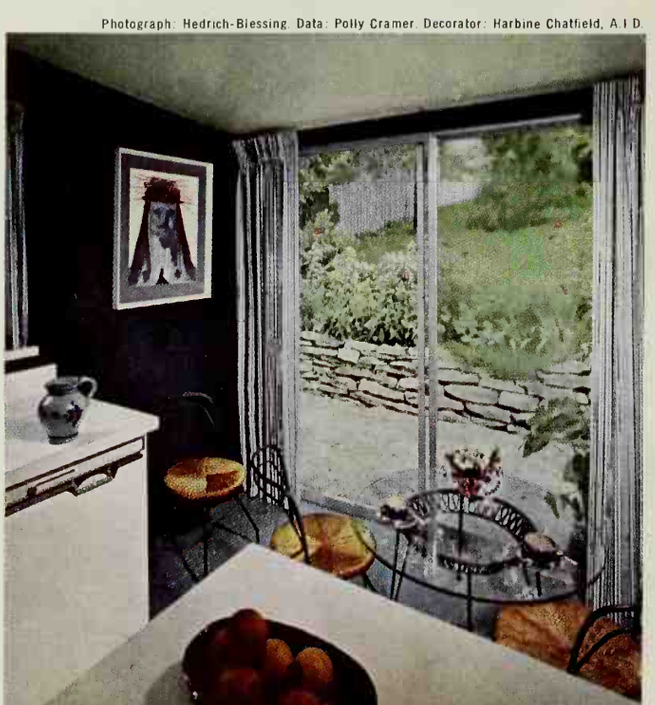
OUTDOOR EATING—RIGHT IN THE KITCHEN!

Just a kitchen eating spot is not enough. In addition to its convenient location, a kitchen eating area should be more than a place to eat and get it over with. Every meal there should be an enjoyable, satisfying occasion. And what better way to make it that occasion than to bring the outdoors in? A pleasant view adds the perfect touch, no matter what the decor of your eating area.

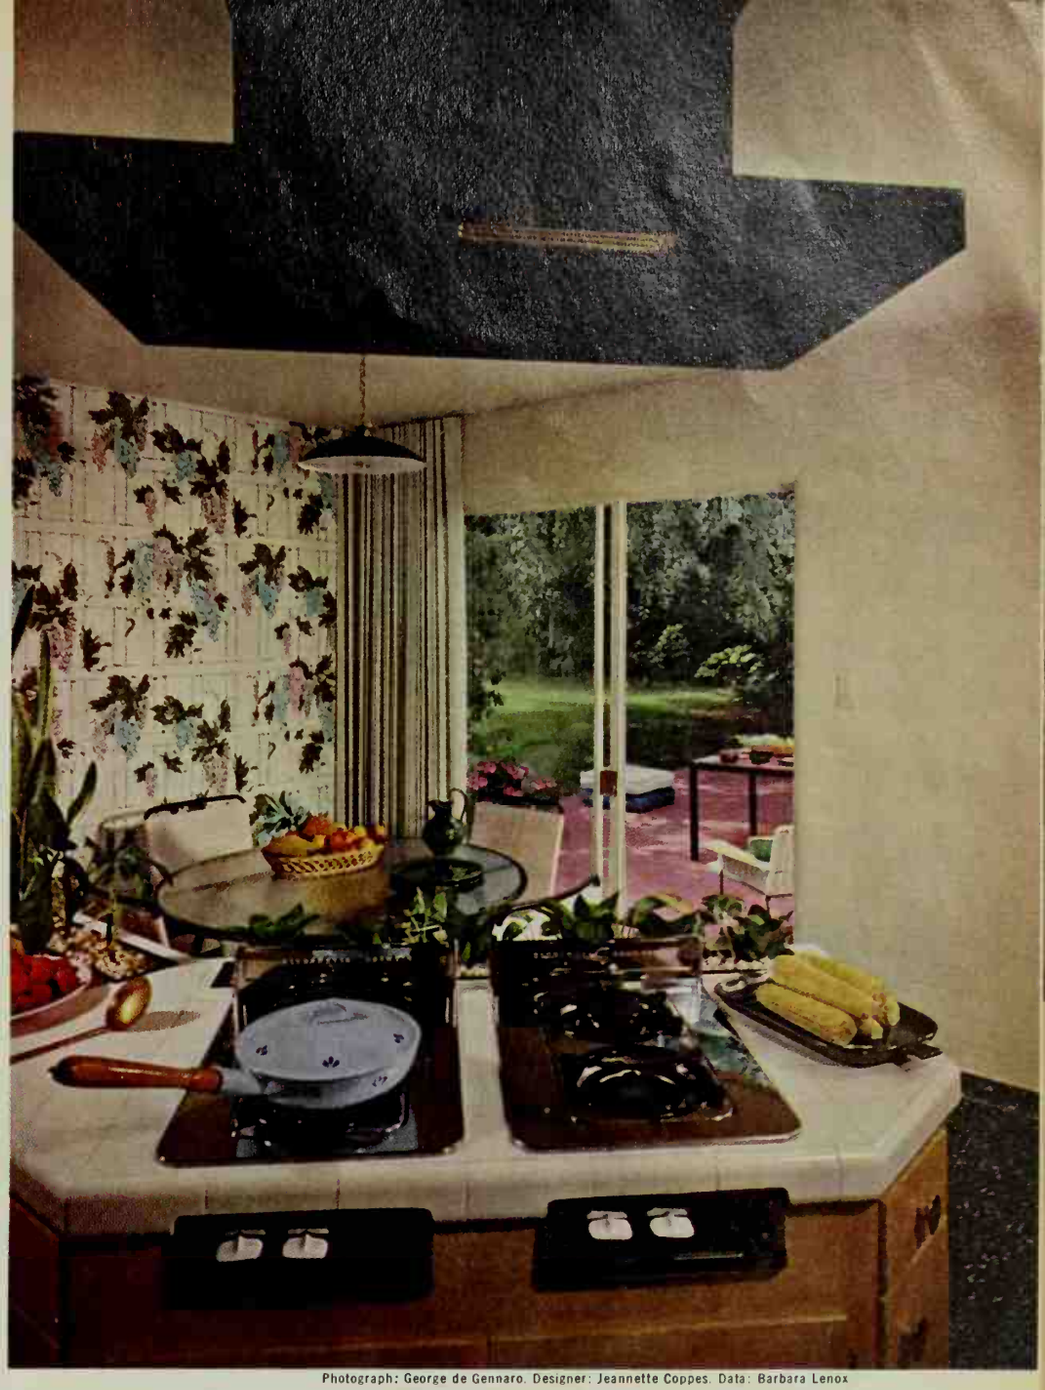
Here we show four eating areas that would make anyone want to eat every meal in the kitchen.

Photograph: Lisanti, Inc. Data: Jane Price

Photograph: Hedrich-Blessing. Data: Polly Cramer. Decorator: Harbine Chatfield, A.I.D.



Photograph: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing. Data: Jessie Walker. Decorator: Harry Lessman



Photograph: George de Gennaro. Designer: Jeannette Coppes. Data: Barbara Lenox

Far left Remodeling a breezeway adjacent to the kitchen provided this long-wanted eating area. Greenhouse-type windows, which give a commanding prospect of the yard, make dining here truly a year-around pleasure. The area's convenience to the yard and kitchen lets it double as a serving center when outdoor dining is the order of the day.

The shallow wall cabinet is used for storage of china. Rich colors add warmth in winter.

Left Just imagine eating in this area the way it used to be—a blank wall and ordinary door with only nine little panes of glass to bring in the daylight. Now, a wall of glass gives a new feeling of spaciousness to this little spot, which is located at the end of a corridor kitchen. It took only sliding glass doors and a new paint job to make the big difference. The change paid an extra dividend, too. It gave the entire kitchen a new, light, airy look.

Above left Gaiety is the main course in this eating area. Bright wallpaper and accessories add to the view on beautiful days, and make up for it when the weather is gloomy. The counter is used for television, as a serving spot, and desk area.

A peninsula, set at an angle, separates the eating area from the food-preparation and cooking centers. It can also become a convenient buffet serving counter for informal parties and suppers.

Above right Sliding glass doors make it possible to dine in, or out (with ease), according to the mood or the weather. And they scoop in the cool, green summer scene, to make mealtime—and work time—as delightful as a picnic.

A peninsula containing the surface cooking facilities separates the eating area from the cooking and food-preparation part of the kitchen. Wallpaper and plants enhance the outdoor feeling.

You shouldn't have a mortgage if you don't understand these terms

Your mortgage is probably the biggest financial obligation you'll ever have. Knowing these terms will help you get the best possible home loan.

Conventional mortgages are offered by banks, savings loan institutions, and mortgage bankers representing life surance companies. Conventional loans are made on a mo ly payment basis, usually up to 75 or 80 per cent of the p erty value (as appraised by the lender). Terms may ru long as 25 years. Sometimes the monthly payment incl an additional fixed sum deposited with the lender to pay property taxes and insurance.

FHA-insured mortgages carry a guaranty from the eral Housing Administration protecting the lender (no borrower) against loss. Loan applications are submitte FHA by the mortgage lender; FHA makes a thorough ex ination of the property and checks the borrower's abilit assume the mortgage. An FHA loan may be considered fo to 97 per cent of the property value (in some cases), wit payment terms up to 30 years.

VA mortgages, often called "GI loans," are availabl eligible veterans of World War II or the Korean conflict. cedures are similar to those of FHA loans, with applica being made to the Veterans Administration Loan Guar office. Provided the mortgage lender is willing, loans ma made up to 100 per cent of the VA's appraisal value. Un the FHA, the VA may make loans directly to the home b in certain areas of the country where there are no partici ing mortgage lenders.

Interest rates on conventional mortgages are determ by each lender according to the amount of risk involved, type and age of the property, and the down payment t made by the borrower. Present conventional loan rates ra from 5½ to 6¾ per cent (the latter figure prevailing on West Coast). FHA rates, established by the FHA Com sioner, currently may not exceed 5¼ per cent plus ½ of 1 cent FHA guaranty charge. Rates for VA loans at the pre time may not exceed 5¼ per cent.

"Paying of points," also known as mortgage discou came into being because FHA and VA interest rates are zen by government regulation. To allow these loans to ear much as conventional mortgages, lenders charge "points" discounts to the seller or builder before granting the borro a mortgage. (On FHA or VA loans, these points may no paid by the borrower.) The charge may run from 2 to 4 per cent of the amount of the mortgage. Though widely p ticed in the past, this system is now unpopular with realt builders, and other sellers of property.

Down payment requirements vary widely with the typ of loan and the kind of lender. On conventional loans, some ings and loan associations may consider mortgages wit little as 10 per cent down. Life insurance companies national banks are restricted to a minimum of 25 per down on conventional loans. FHA minimum down paym are set on a sliding scale, depending on the value of the ho a house appraised at $18,500 may require $800 down, wh home valued at $10,000 is eligible for a loan with a $300 d payment (or just 3 per cent). VA loans, if the lender agr may be made with no down payment.

Repayment period, often called the term of the loan, pends upon the policy of the lender. The borrower's age the likely future trend of the property value are factors a le er will consider. For homes less than 10 years old, a 25-y term has become quite common on conventional mortga on FHA and VA loans, the term may be extended to 30 ye Have you read about an FHA 40-year mortgage? Th available right now only to "displaced persons" who h been forced to move because of governmental action, suc freeway condemnation or urban renewal.

"Prepayment" means paying off a mortgage loan befo matures. Most lenders require a penalty payment when is done, to make up for the lost interest. Prepayment pe ties follow no set pattern, and the lender may even waive penalty, provided he gets to make a new loan on the prope A capsule guide: VA loans, no penalty for prepayment; FH no penalty after 10 years or if a new loan is obtained in transaction (otherwise penalty is 1 per cent); conventio loans, variable penalty up to 3 per cent.

Open-end provisions in a mortgage make it possible f borrower to get more funds when he needs them later without the need for refinancing. Some lenders require t the open-end proceeds go into property improvements; otl make no such stipulation. The open-end clause must written at the time the mortgage is taken out.

Trade-in housing works much like trading in your car order to improve sales, some builders and agents will t your present house in trade on another home. Since they m sell your old home too, they tend to be conservative in va ing the "trade-in."

"Package mortgages" include in the loan certain ac sory items like carpeting, laundry equipment, and kitc appliances. This financing is available where state laws p mit it—and many do not. Buyers benefit because these "extras" can be included in the loan; lenders, however, wary because they need to carefully inventory all the pa age items when the borrower sells the property.

Closing costs come out of the borrower's pocket when mortgage loan is closed. They include all fees for complet the transaction—such as attorney's fee, abstract or t policy fee, loan fee, appraisal and survey cost, and credit port. A loan of $12,500 will usually require closing costs about $250, or 2 per cent.

Accent

A new look from history's romantic age

Something wonderful has just happened to furniture! It's a blending of France's two favorite furniture styles . . . the elegant court style of Louis XV's regal Paris, and its casual interpretations for country living in the provinces. Thus French Accent achieves a freshness, a freedom, a versatility that soars beyond the limits of a single style. It sweeps in mood from relaxed ease . . . to mellow warmth . . . to sophisticated elegance. And —in rich walnut or custom white—it will prove a harmonious accent to almost any other furniture you may have. Most important of all, French Accent is by Drexel . . . which means quality furniture, at prices your budget will approve!

Send 35¢ for your Drexel booklet collection, to Drexel Furniture Company, 7 Huffman Road, Drexel, North Carolina.

You can work out your own custom-planned arrangements . . . the unified wall group is actually four individual pieces. Prices? Low drawer chest approximately $99 (slightly higher in the West).

THE MOST TRUSTED NAME IN FURNITURE

Plants that last for years and years

Perennials are reliable, but they still require thought and planning as to the best places to put them.

Single delphiniums, iris, or platycodons are unimpressive when scattered here and there in a garden. Groups of three or five of anything make a good show—a point to bear in mind particularly where small-flowered perennials, such as coral-bells, are concerned.

Color combinations are largely personal. One of your problems will be to combine colors of flowers that not only please you but oblige you by blooming at the same time. Blue or purple delphiniums are popular as tall background plants. Pink penstemons would combine pleasingly with these, but violent reds would ruin the picture. Fiery colors are best with white—hybrid mallows (hibiscus), for example.

Since perennials are going to remain in place for several years, they need room in which to spread —especially those that resent being disturbed. And, properly spaced plants are easier to care for.

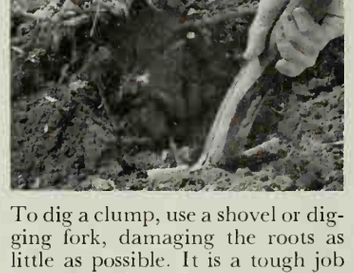
It is shortsighted to set plants close together with the idea that they will hold each other up and not need staking. Delphiniums, for one, will not go along with this line of thought. Worst of all, crowded conditions encourage disease problems and make spraying or dusting extremely difficult.

This is the season to go ahead and divide clumps of perennials that really need dividing. Why now? Because newly set divisions still have time to establish themselves before winter. The rule of thumb is to divide early and midseason bloomers in late summer or early fall, and fall bloomers in early spring. Nearly all perennials can also be divided in early spring (except peonies, bearded iris, and Oriental poppies), but leaving the whole job to the busiest time of year is a thing you will probably regret. It is also easier to dig clumps when foliage is there to guide you so you don't do unnecessary harm to root systems.

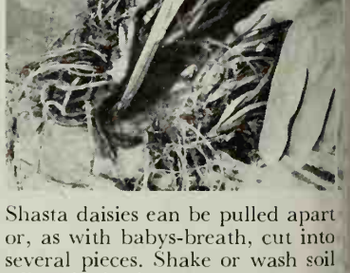
Here is a partial list of perennials to divide now:

Babys-breath	Lythrum
Basket-of-gold	Meadow-rue
Bee-balm	Mertensia
Butterfly-weed	Oriental poppy
Candytuft	Penstemon
Columbine	Peony
Coral-bells	Phlox
Day-lily	Pinks
Delphinium	Primrose
Gaillardia	Salvia
Hellenium	Trollius
Iris	Veroniea
Lily-of-the-valley	Violets

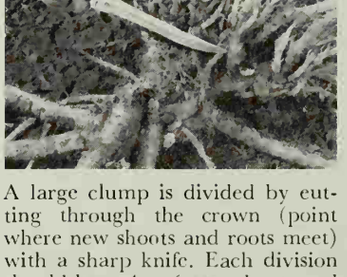
Photographs: Stanley Warren



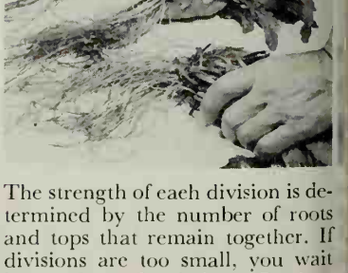
To dig a clump, use a shovel or digging fork, damaging the roots as little as possible. It is a tough job with something like this babys-breath, but fairly easy with day-lilies or Shasta daisies.



Shasta daisies can be pulled apart or, as with babys-breath, cut into several pieces. Shake or wash soil off with the hose so you can see where to divide and not butcher the plants unnecessarily.



A large clump is divided by cutting through the crown (point where new shoots and roots meet) with a sharp knife. Each division should have 4 to 6 new shoots and several roots.



The strength of each division is determined by the number of roots and tops that remain together. If divisions are too small, you wait longer for a floral show. Replant before roots dry and leaves wilt.

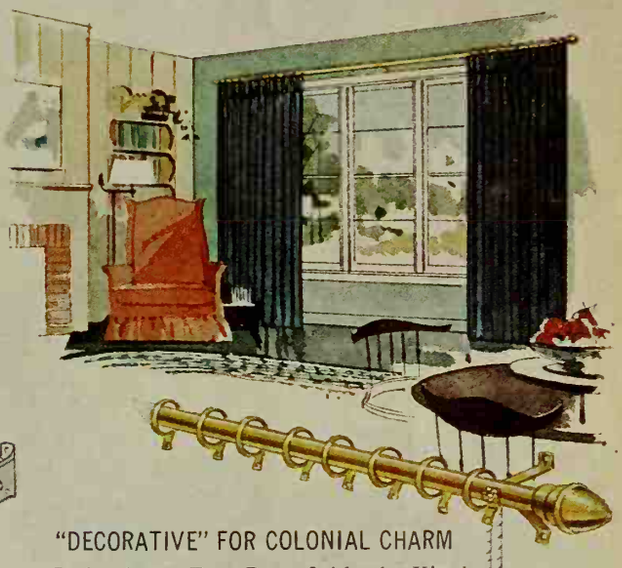
There's a Kirsch dealer nearby with your needs in mind—and the genuine article in stock; you need not settle for less.

SIMPLICITY FOR ELEGANCE

So often, the "expensive" look is the simple look . . . of a wide expanse of beautifully-pleated drapery . . . hanging from a rugged, streamlined Kirsch Superfine traverse rod. Ball-bearing pulleys ensure satin-smooth operation.

"DOUBLE-UP" FOR MODERN EFFECTS

Double beauty—and double convenience—when you have draw curtains under your draw draperies. This is only one of numerous "double" effects made easy by the several types of double traverse sets and traverse-valance combinations offered by Kirsch. See them in the Kirsch "Guide"—and ask your Kirsch dealer.



"DECORATIVE" FOR COLONIAL CHARM

In handsome Dura-Brass finish, the Kirsch decorative traverse rod highlights windows up to twenty feet wide. The "ring" slides never touch—so can't mar—the rod. And they pass freely over all necessary supports. Can be used to draw a pair of draperies, as above, or all-one-way, as at corner windows. Endless cord—for tension pulley.

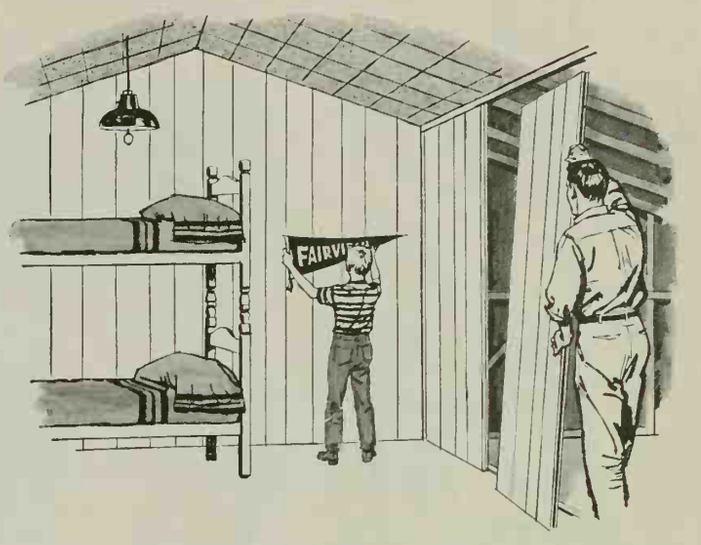
Simpson®

Remodeled dining room designed and decorated by Guy Roop, A.I.D., of W & J Sloane. Walls are Simpson's economical, versatile Ruf-Sawn redwood plywood. Tapered redwood battens were applied to pick up the vertical styling of Simpson's new Symphonic® Staccato doors. The doors were stained to blend with the color of the redwood walls. The ceiling is famous Simpson Forestone, the textured woodfiber acoustical tile that literally soaks up noise.

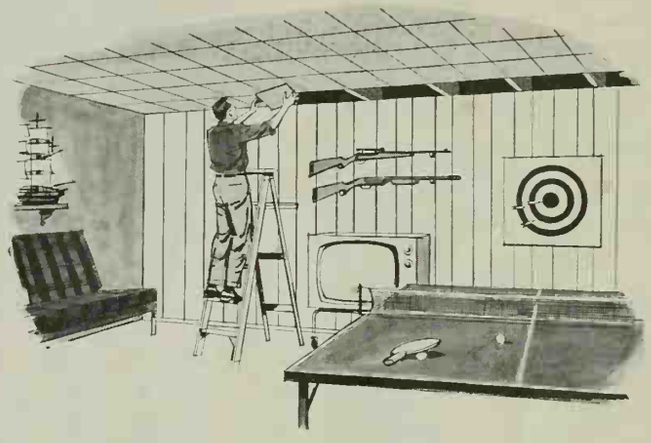
space into living space with Simpson building products

You can improve your way of life, and increase the value of your home, easily and economically through remodeling. Whatever your need—another bedroom, a family room or a dining room—here are 7 Simpson building products to solve your problem. Ask your lumber dealer for these Simpson products. He can also help you select the type of financing best suited to your needs.



Add an extra bedroom in attic or garage. Easy-Wall woodgrain panels and matching prefabricated partitions have low-maintenance vinyl surface. They give you prefinished walls plus thermal insulation. Or use Lifeclad plywood with the same fine vinyl surface in a choice of 6 superlative woodgrain finishes. And consider America's most treasured wood —Simpson redwood—in both solid panelings and plywoods.

Add an accent wall for new character in old rooms. Simpson's new Gunstock pre-finished plywood paneling gives you a choice of all the favorite fine woods. Carefully sanded and burnished, then surfaced with hard, durable resin, it has the superb finish of a treasured gunstock. Yet the price is no higher than ordinary panelings.



Whatever you do, use Forestone* for the ceiling. This unique acoustical tile, in 4 dramatic textures, absorbs up to 70% of all sound striking it, insulates against heat and cold, goes up faster with no mess or fuss. And you're free forever from worries over cracked, unsightly ceilings.

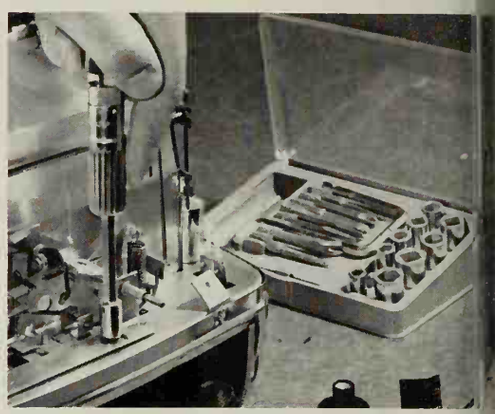
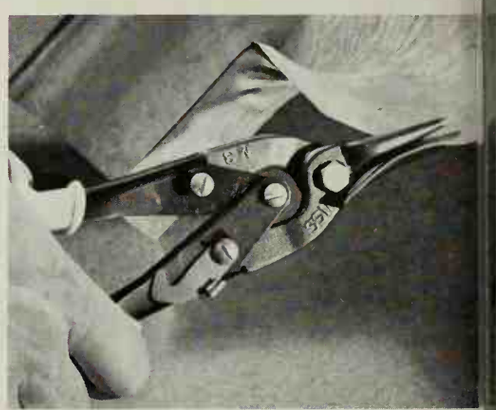
Expanding scribers will mark tile exact fit irregular contours. You set them to the width of a tile, then lay the last row of tile the next-to-last row and mark as shown. V cut, the last row fits exactly. The scribers many other uses, cost about $1.30.



A set of small socket wrenches is just a indispensable when you're repairing applia or other mechanical gadgets. This set ha the sizes you'll likely need, plus screwdri offset shanks, and other special bits. The fit a double ratchet handle. Price is about



High leverage snips take most of the work of sheet-metal cutting. As the name imp they're specially hinged to give you more le age on the cutting edge. You have to take n bites than with other snips, but you can much faster. They'll cost you about $3.50.

Smooth jaw pliers, sometimes called pu pliers, expand to fit almost any size gasket on plumbing fixtures. They have a terrific g but won't mar the chrome. They also save a of fumbling with different size wrenches. Th pliers are certainly worth the $3 they cost.

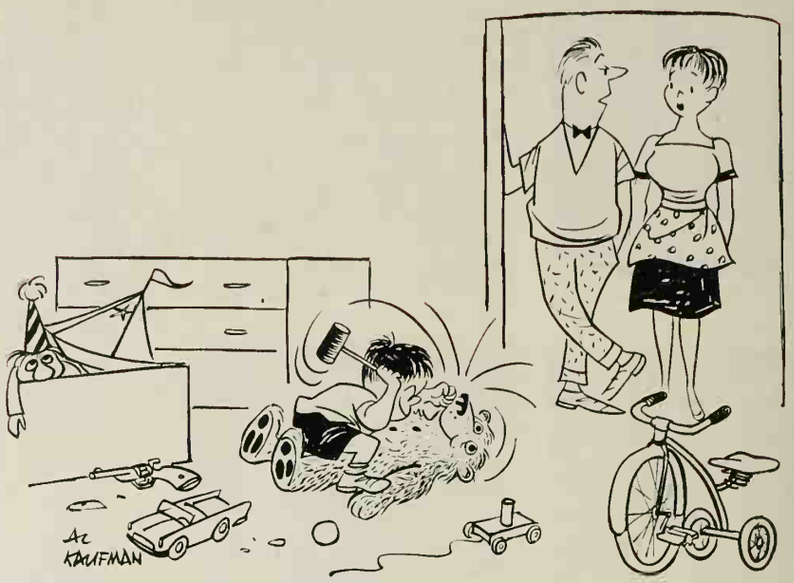
the man next door®



"See what I mean? He needs a brother."

Christine collects recipe books from all over the world, and I am beginning to wonder about the emerging nations. Will I, before long, be experiencing new taste thrills from "Congolese Cookery" or "The Ghanaian Gourmet Guide"?

Which reminds me that Grandmother Hillis called a recipe a receipt, but I have never been able to prove whether this had any connection with the fact that she was the best cook I ever encountered.

When school starts again, it is always interesting to get the children's reports on which of their friends have changed during the vacation months from dumb to neat, or vice versa.

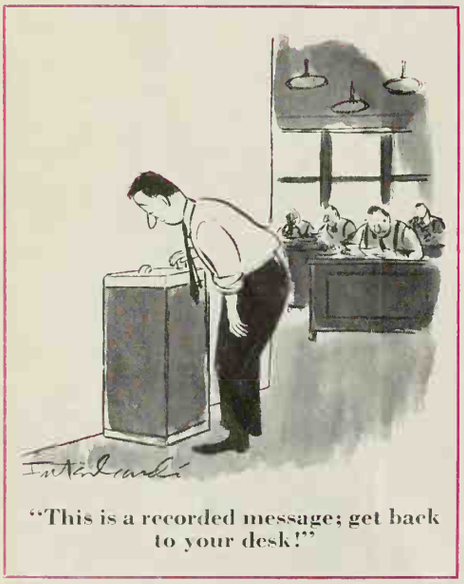
Ed Nugent was through town the other day, and I drove him out to see the old home place where he was born. As nearly as we could figure out, it was right about on the spot where the pet-food counter of the Ace Supermarket now stands.



"This is a recorded message; get back to your desk!"

Grandpa Hillis is puzzled by the going-steady fad among the young. "What I can't understand," he says, "is this mad, headstrong, impetuous yearning for complete monotony."

I can get the right answers to Judy's fifth-grade arithmetic problems. What I can't do is explain to her—or myself—how I do it.

Miss Bowditch, retiring after 43 years of schoolteaching, whispered to me that she remembered all the good children in her mind, and all the bad ones in her heart.

Christine was rather surprised to find me rummaging through my desk trying to find my pipe, which I haven't smoked in months. I explained that I am going to be on a discussion panel at the sales meeting next week, and a little thoughtful pipe puffing now and then can cover up an awful lot of ignorance.

I've found that a simple way to separate the children from the television set is for me to sing along with that fellow who invites everybody to.

Say what you will about crab-grass, it is keeping a whole generation of television comedians supplied with material.

Old habits are hard to break. I still find myself walking extra carefully around the house, even though it has been two weeks now since Burt, Jr., swapped away his last turtle.

A family that hasn't any private jokes is just a group of people who happen to live in the same house.

The immediate post-vacation period is a hazardous one as we enter a spell of extreme exposure to our friends' color slides.

Somebody has made a survey of how th country's students—high school and belov —rate the ways in which grownups mak their livings. The result was in the paper and I must say it was encouraging.

The occupations which seemed to carr the most status were ones that I myself ad mire—the scientists, the doctors, the as tronauts, the teachers, the ministers. doubt whether, at their age, I would hav been so high-minded. As I recall, my god were more likely to be wearing basebal uniforms.

But, admirable though the results of thi study were, they had their saddening side Nowhere on this list of callings—with thei requirements of intelligence, skill, anc courage—was there any mention of th unromantic but (I like to think) useful of fice labor by which I try to pay the bills As far as being an ideal of the younger se was concerned, apparently I was as far ou of the race as if they had named movi stars and rock-'n-roll singers.

Now obviously, at this point in my re flections, the voice of my son should hav been heard floating through the windov saying, "Yeah? Well, my Dad is too th smartest man in the whole world"; my older daughter should have rushed in t tell me that the mathematics teacher fully endorsed my views on differential cal culus, and my younger daughter shoulc have proffered a broken dolly with th comment that nobody can fix things lik her wonderful father.

These incidents would have warmed my heart and filled me with contentment fo my humble lot.

None of them happened, however, and I turned to my World Series speculations comforted only with the thought that my father couldn't throw a curve but I lovec him anyway.

THE HOBBY YOU CAN ENJOY

ALL ALONE

OR ALL TOGETHER

Music is the mood-matching hobby. Feel quiet and reflective? Feel "lost," uncertain, troubled? Then sit alone at the Conn Organ and let your fingers wander idly over the wondrous keys. What a source of relaxation and consolation and inspiration! But when you feel a surge of happiness and wish to share it—then gather the clan around the Conn and strike up a gay tune. Soon your home will be filled with music and song and warmth and affection. And the whole neighborhood will take on a brighter glow!

We repeat—all alone...or all together...you and your family can work wonders with a Conn. And it's so very easy. You see, Conn has developed a remarkable new learning method called "Instant Music." If you know your alphabet from "A" to "G," you can play any one of 39 familiar songs in a matter of minutes!

Not only that, but you play with both keyboards, with various instrumental effects, and with the foot pedals, too. You play, in fact, just the way a professional organist does—naturally, with true human expression.

That's because the Conn is created by music men, not gadgeteers. It has no gimmicks, no pushbuttons, no one-finger chord makers. It is, instead, a professional-quality home instrument of great tonal versatility and musical potential...created by C.G. Conn, Ltd., world's largest manufacturer of band instruments.

Your Conn Organ dealer can arrange easy terms on any of seven beautifully-crafted models. Prices start at $995—a modest figure for a lifetime of family enjoyment. For your copy of our helpful free booklet "How To Choose An Organ," plus a free LP record "Caprice Capers," just write to Dept. BHG-1, Conn Organ Corporation, Elkhart, Indiana.

The ABCs

If you know your ABCs, good ideas always come easier. This is true the everyday things and in those few-in-a-lifetime projects—or to p it another way, from planning a meal to planning a house. As the cov of this month's issue proclaims, we've packed these pages with how do it. The editors want you to like this ABC issue well enough to keep around a long, long time—to use it until it's dog-eared and rumpled. belongs wherever you need an idea, whether in the kitchen or in tl garden or in the living room. Since money comes first in so many your plans, we have put it first here, too. The article below outlin the ABCs of family money management.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR MONEY FROM DRIBBLING AWAY

Many families dislike budgets. They look upon them as fiendish instruments designed to keep them from spending and enjoying their money. They are frustrated by the rigid confinement of monthly allowances.

This attitude is understandable. All-purpose budgets and prefabricated formulas—"one-fourth for food, one-fourth for housing"—are irksome and difficult to follow. For one thing, no two families are alike. Their tastes, their values, their aspirations—even their basic expenditures—differ in significant ways. No one set of budget figures can accommodate every household.

For another thing, different expenditures change at different rates, making old budgets obsolete. For example, in recent years it has become necessary to allow larger percentages of the family income for housing and medical care; but at the same time, food and clothing have taken smaller percentages.

With the modern "spending plan" way of handling money, you dismiss all attempts to imitate other people's spending. You decide on your own spending allotments, based on your own income, your own needs, your own values. A family of music lovers may set aside a fairly large slice of its income for records and phonographic equipment. Another family may allot that money to setting a handsome table; a third may spend it on a spacious house, or perhaps a bigger car. In each case, the plan is realistically tailored to the individual family.

Plan by the year, not by the week or month. Many expenses—medical bills, insurance payments, heating bills, and so on—vary drastically from month to month. This yearly approach also allows more leeway in the controllable expenses like food and entertainment, thus makes budgeting more pleasant.

Share decisions on spending. All experts agree that the entire family—including children as soon as they are old enough—should participate in the decisions. Such candid discussion by everyone concerned develops greater understanding which in turn makes the bas goals far easier to reach.

Get on a cash basis. Your first goal should be the acce erated repayment of any outstanding debts. There little reason to retain savings that earn four to five pe cent interest while you still owe installment debts ar loans that carry true interest rates of 12 to 22 per cen

Don't use credit indiscriminately, and do get it at lowe cost. Incredibly, almost half of today's young famili spend between 10 and 40 per cent of their income c installment payments. Because interest rates on th type of "borrowing" usually run high, these families a wasting a tragically large share of their income c finance charges alone.

"The greatest danger in credit practices is the fa that a number of families always consider only that desired article costs just so much per payment, ar therefore tend to overload the family budget," advis J. M. Costello, Cleveland Legal Aid attorney. "A su prising number never seem to understand that there no excuse for nonpayment, as illness or loss of wor Others believe, incorrectly, that if the article is su rendered, the debt is canceled."

The real usefulness of credit lies in buying big items yc need but can't pay for immediately, but there is a trer toward buying smaller items—clothing, hardware, ar auto accessories, for instance—through revolving pa ment plans, budget charge accounts, or permanei budget accounts.

Typically, you can open a $200 revolving charg account by agreeing to pay, say, $15 a month. The when you want to buy more goods, you simply add th new purchases to your account. You need not even mal a down payment on the new purchases. Unless yo new purchases exceed your [Continued on page i

"We love pretty wash 'n wear clothes . . . but they do take special care."

"My new Hotpoint sher solved that oblem. The people o built it didn't erlook a thing. ey designed a spe- al wash 'n wear cycle—and put a box of Tide inside. You should see my beautiful washes now."

Hotpoint knows what wash 'n wears need. Mrs. Sturtevant's washer was made by people who know this washing problem. Hotpoint's beautiful new Silhouette lets you choose the cycle with the right water temperature and gentle agitation for wash 'n wear.

And thanks to Hotpoint, Mrs. Sturtevant now washes with Tide. Tide has just the right cleaning power for this wash 'n wear cycle.

The more often you use Tide, the cleaner your washes. First time you use Tide your clothes get beautifully clean. But here's Tide's big difference. Follow package directions and your second week's wash gets cleaner still. Third week's, the cleanest yet!

account limit—$200 in this example—you continue to make the same monthly payment on your account.

Such revolving charge accounts cost true annual interest fees of, usually, 18 per cent. There is an important difference between these new plans and standard short-term charge accounts. The traditional charge accounts, which are still available, permit a purchaser 30 days of free credit.

Keep these rules in mind when using credit:

1. Borrow the least you need, not the most you can get.
2. Make the largest monthly payments you can, not the smallest the creditor will permit.
3. Don't borrow far in advance of an actual need.
4. Borrow from the lowest cost source—which may or may not be the handiest or the quickest.
5. Know the rate of interest.

This last item is important. A University of Michigan survey found that two out of five people—including college graduates—had no idea what it cost to buy cars on time payments, and the others guessed all the way from 6 to 13 per cent. Here are two simple formulas for determining true interest rates:

▶ If the rate is stated as a percentage of the remaining or declining balance each month, multiply the monthly percentage by twelve to get the true yearly rate. Thus, one per cent a month is a true rate of 12 per cent a year; one-and-one-half per cent a month is 18 per cent a year.

▶ If the rate is stated as a yearly percentage of the origi debt, the true yearly rate is approximately double. That because you are repaying each month. Thus, over the life the loan, you really owe an average of only about half t original amount. If you repay in 12 monthly installments $1,000 debt at a stated rate of $12 per $100, and thus finance charge of $120, your true interest cost would be abo 24 per cent. Your average debt during the year is about $5(not the original $1000.

Of all the widely used types of consumer credit, only li insurance loans and mortgages are stated as true annu interest rates. In most of the others, you must transla the stated rate into the true annual rate.

Here, then, are the steps to take to get on a cash bas

Does your child read in bed?

ung Abe Lincoln read through many a night h nothing but a flickering candle to light his ges. He, and just about every other successful rson in the world, was blessed with an intense ire to learn.

ere your children born with this same curiosity? course; all children are. Then why don't they d more and learn more? Because today's world ers glittering distractions to youngsters never eamed of in Lincoln's day. Television. Rock and ll. Floods of comic books. Fiercely organized rts.

day, the parent must encourage the child to read; st help him push past the petty distractions.

You can encourage him buying an encyclopedia? It is not so simple as at. Your child is not an adult. When you impose ult reading and learning methods upon him, he es interest quickly. Yet many parents still buy ult encyclopedias for their children . . . and then nder why they're rarely used.

Curiosity: first step to learning child's curiosity has a strange appetite: the more u feed it the hungrier it grows; the less you feed the quicker it withers. The trick is to tease that petite . . . not with dull, dry statistics . . . but with oice, lively parcels of information so that it bemes fun to read more and more. The Book of nowledge does just that.

ie Book of Knowledge is not an adult encyclodia. Nor is it an alphabetized, systematized refence set "written down" to the child's level. The ok of Knowledge is written, edited and published specifically for children. It is arranged as no other reference set: things that belong together are found together.

Readers are leaders

Remember: The Book of Knowledge is not a cold, alphabetical encyclopedia to be used in an emergency and then laid aside and forgotten. The Book of Knowledge induces learning, inspires a child to read all kinds of books. Reading becomes a habit . . . the one habit that leaders in business, in science, in education all have in common.

Your child learns not just cold facts but the whole background behind them. His schoolwork takes on new meaning, new interest. His grades improve. His curiosity grows to include all the bursting wonder of life—science, art, literature, history, how to do things. Best of all, he learns without even knowing he is learning!

Arthur Godfrey says

"If your child reads a little late at night, don't worry about it. Worry only if he reads a little. Too little!

"Best way to get a young 'un started on the road to success is to get him The Book of Knowledge. It sure helped me when I was a kid. If you'd like to see how, just mail the coupon and you'll receive a 'miniature' Book of Knowledge absolutely free. It's called The Magic Carpet.

"This 24 page full color booklet contains actual pages of science, history, art, stories, quizzes, things to make and do and other informative features taken directly from The Book of Knowledge. Give it to your children. See how eagerly they read it. Send for this 'miniature' Book of Knowledge today. Take it from me, it's free and it's wonderful!" u can continue to pay each week or month. You must pay ditional interest fees on the postponed payments; thus stponement should be used only in an emergency.

Don't assume you can merely let your possessions, such your car, go back to the finance company or store. Not ly do you lose what you already have paid, but the value the repossessed goods at a forced sale may not cover your naining debt plus repossession costs.

Contact the bank or savings association that holds your ortgage before you become delinquent. Many mortgage iders provide grace periods during which you can postpone yments on principal if you continue interest payments.

Be careful about taking out consolidation loans to pay off her creditors. Such loans sometimes carry a high rate of terest, although most consolidation loans from credit ions and regular banks are reasonable.

Ask for help from your credit union, union, minister, family ent, retailers' credit bureau, or local bar association, if any editors are unwilling to wait. Sometimes credit unions use trustee plan as a form of intervention for creditor-besieged embers. They take over the husband's pay, setting up a inimum budget with the couple and apportioning the lance among the creditors.

Try to keep your hospital and medical insurance in force en if you lose your job and must continue on an individual sis. At this time, you need such protection more than ever.

Find hidden money leaks. As you keep your spending record, u may find some unusual money leaks of your own. But re are some ways to avoid the most common ones:

Plan meals around seasonal plentifuls. Pork and lamb are ost reasonable in winter; beef from January through March; al in the early fall; poultry in the fall. Large eggs are the st buy in the spring; mediums are best in the fall.

Note especially that high-priced meat cuts vary far more an low-priced. Steaks are relatively moderate in cost in e early spring but most expensive in the late summer, hile chopped beef costs much the same all year.

Take full advantage of supermarket specials. Weekend spe- als really do save. Over-all savings are not immense, but vings on the sale items are large.

Buy the right grade for the right purpose. That is the way ofessional purchasing agents buy. Take eggs. Grade-A eggs ust have a thick white and firm, high yolk. This makes em desirable for poaching, boiling, frying. Grade-B eggs ve a thinner white and a flatter yolk that may break more sily. But if you are going to use the eggs for scrambling, in an omelet or cooked dish, Grade B is fine. One of the ost costly prevailing notions is that Grade-A foods have ore nutrition than Grades B or C. In reality, all grades ve the same nourishment.

Buy the larger sizes, bulk quantities. Buying larger sizes of ods, cleaning supplies, and toiletries is one of the best oney-saving techniques available.

One survey found that savings on the large sizes of pack- ged foods against the smaller sizes was 17 per cent.

On a typical family food bill of $140 a month, 17 per nt is a saving of $23.80 a month, or $285 a year.

Buy milk the least costly way. Next to meat, milk and milk oducts take the biggest slice of your food bill. One very pular way to save is to buy milk in half-gallons and gallons. is quite practical [Continued on page 16

Many companies now offer a reduction for adult drivers good records who keep their cars in good condition.

You can cut the cost additionally by buying only liab insurance. Collision and comprehensive coverages are as vital as liability insurance, which protects you aga potentially ruinous damage suits. Damage to your own c tax deductible, so you already have some insurance the

If you don't want to omit comprehensive and colli insurance (or can't because a finance company insists it), you can save by taking higher deductibles, and foot smaller losses yourself.

For example, in one area, for a popular priced 1960 a leading company charges $91.80 for $10,000/$20,00 liability insurance, $11.40 for full comprehensive, $48.6($50-deductible collision. Total: $151.80 a year.

In comparison, $50-deductible comprehensive could $4. The $100 deductible collision insurance instead of deductible would be $32. Total bill: $127.80. If collisio eliminated completely, the bill drops to $95.80.

You need to make sure you are classified correctly most states, you pay more if you use the car to drive to w more than 10 miles one way, or if there is a young drive your family. If you arrange insurance through a car de or finance company, get a written statement of how the surer classified you and the amount charged. If the insura fee is merely lumped into the finance charge, you never know if you are properly classified.

In many areas, the rate almost doubles for drivers u 25. But many companies give reductions of 5 to 15 per if the youngster had approved driver training.

Modern economy ways to buy life insurance. Basically, th are two kinds of life insurance. One is term insurance. It no cash surrender value and pays off only if the insu person dies. It costs only around $7-$10 a year per $1000 men in the 25-30 age group, but the cost increases every years when you renew it.

The insurance many homeowners buy to pay off the m gage in case of the breadwinner's death is a form of term surance called decreasing term. Its cost remains the sa but the amount of insurance decreases as your mortg decreases.

The other major type of life insurance is whole life, often called ordinary or straight life. Initially it costs 2 times as much as term insurance. But the cost remains same throughout your life, and if you discontinue the pol you get back part of your payments. Or you can borrow cash value, or use it to continue some of the insurance with payments.

Other types of insurance are variations of whole life. higher charge for endowment insurance builds up additio cash value.

Family income plans. Increasingly popular is a combinat of whole life and term insurance called the "family incor or "income rider" plan. It provides a large amount of surance when your children are young, and gradually creases in amount of coverage until your children are in pendent, leaving you and your wife with the whole life po part of the plan.

The family income plan can be shaped to fit your fami particular needs. For example, you can take a $5000 $10,000 whole life policy and add to it an income rider wh would pay your family—in addition to the $5000 or $10, —an income of $50, $100, African Violets, Gloxinia, Gloxinera, Achimenes, Sinningia Eumorpha. All grown under GRO-LUX by Mr. Henry Kirkley, prizewinner at 1962 International Flower Show.

AMAZING NEW SYLVANIA GRO-LUX* LAMP MAKES INDOOR PLANTS GROW HEALTHIER, FASTER, STRONGER!

Scientific discovery: virtually lets you bring the sun indoors! Seeds germinate faster. Seedlings are stockier. Blooms grow richer, fuller. Read the secret of this remarkable new source of radiant energy, and how it can help you grow better indoor plants than ever before.

For years, scientists have known that indoor plants would grow quicker, stronger, more luxuriantly—if only there were a way to provide them with the benefits of outdoor light.

Now Sylvania—world leader in lighting—has discovered the way. It is the incredible new GRO-LUX lamp—the first fluorescent that gives indoor plants the light they need to grow their best.

"Indoor sunshine": the GRO-LUX secret

Everyone knows that sunshine is good for plants. But the fact is, not all the light of the sun is "growing light." The yellow and green portion of the spectrum are, for the most part, reflected by plants.

It is the red and blue wave lengths that are absorbed—and do the most to make plants grow.

So Sylvania scientists developed a new kind of phosphor coating for fluorescent lamps. Activated by electricity, it gives off rays that are rich in the red and blue "growth spectrum."

Results: astounding! Under the GRO-LUX lamp seeds germinate faster—seedlings are sturdier—blooms and foliage are fuller.

Used at International Flower Show

At the 1962 Flower Show at the New York City Coliseum, thousands of visitors saw the Sylvania GRO-LUX lamp used in an exhibit of Gloxinias sponsored by a national association.

Says Mr. Bruce A. Thompson, noted hybridizer, author and expert on the Gesneriad family: "The GRO-LUX lamp is definitely beneficial in promoting Gloxinia growth—in every phase of its development. Many species of the Gloxinia Family which bloomed poorly or not at all under ordinary fluorescent lamps, now bloom freely with the aid of GRO-LUX."

Mr. Bruce A. Thompson

Not a substitute for fertilizer

Though the use of Sylvania GRO-LUX lamps brings extraordinary results, they are not a substitute for properly treated soil or regular care.

By the same token, you may use GRO-LUX lamps without making any change whatsoever in your normal routine of watering and feeding your plants.

Simple and economical

Except for the added features which produce their remarkable effect on plants, GRO-LUX lamps are like any fluorescent tubes. They are available in 2- and 4-ft. lengths, 20 to 40 watts, to fit standard fluorescent fixtures.

If you do not have a planter equipped for fluorescent lamps, there are a number of brands available (such as the one shown below).

Try GRO-LUX today

GRO-LUX lamps are available right now at your garden supply center. For more information ask your dealer, or write: Sylvania Electric Products Inc., Dept. 119, 60 Boston Street, Salem, Mass. *Trademark lanning your health coverage. Often, a family's health rance depends on which type the husband's employer has sen. When a choice is available, here are two useful rules humb:

Moderate income families can assure themselves of needed by buying comprehensive insurance or policies with ller deductible amounts, after which the insurance starts ing. "Family plans," also available in health insurance, er all the children in a family at the same price.

amilies with income enough to cover the less serious medical s can reduce insurance costs by buying only a "major lical" policy, which insures against extended and costly sses. Even so, a young family that prefers major medical rance will be safest choosing the smallest deductible unt. Health insurance plans nowadays are available with uctibles ranging from $25 to as much as $500.

eople used to think that it was most important to insure husband's medical care so he could keep working. But , when medical care is high in cost as well as quality, ring the whole family has become more urgent.

n buying health insurance, it is important to compare: (1 costs; (2) the detailed benefit provisions and limitations he policy; (3) the record and status of the company. ecially, consult your state insurance department before buy a policy by mail, to make sure the company is nsed in your state.

names, for current convenience and also because the surviving spouse will have quicker access to the account in case of death.

Should securities, savings bonds be jointly owned? For ownership of stocks and mutual-fund shares, a husband and wife each can exclude up to $50 of dividends from federal income tax each year. If some shares are registered jointly, you can take a $100 exclusion.

Except for large estates, joint ownership is the simplest method of registering government savings bonds. In case of death, bonds can be cashed by the co-owner with no formalities. A beneficiary named on the bond also can cash it, but must present a death certificate.

How should insurance proceeds be handled? It is wise for a couple to discuss beforehand how insurance proceeds will be paid. Money left with an insurance company to be paid out in installments usually earns interest of 3 to 3½ per cent. Sometimes an investment-minded woman can earn more than this with insurance proceeds. But many women are not experienced in investing, and it may be desirable to have at least part of the proceeds paid out as an income.

It is also wise to review from time to time the settlement options you earlier selected. This is especially true for families with children, whose needs change quickly. Some time ago a young couple may have decided to have insurance made payable to the wife over a period of 20 years. In their middle years they may decide to have the period of payment reduced, or have the proceeds paid as a lifetime income.

Build a family capital fund. One husband reflected the importance of this financial goal when he voiced a problem that worries many families: "If our washing machine breaks down the same week I need work done on the car, we're in trouble."

As soon as a family has repaid all debts, it should start building a capital fund. It saves money in many ways and works harder for you than any other family investment.

Even a tiny capital fund of, say, $30, earning 2 per-cent cash discount each time you buy fuel can earn a possible 16 per cent a year. In comparison, common stocks, savings accounts, and government E bonds yield 3¾ to 5 per cent.

For maximum effectiveness, your capital fund must be replenished after use. You pay back into it just as you pay a store or finance company. Then you can use it again.

A variation of the capital fund is the depreciation fund. For example, as soon as a new car is purchased, one family starts putting away $40 a month for its next one. This family recognizes that it is "using up" its car. It not only aims to save the finance charge of $450 on its next car, but will also earn interest of about $150 on its depreciation fund while it accumulates. Thus, this family's next $2500 car will cost it $2350 instead of $2950.

With tricks like these, your money is working for you.

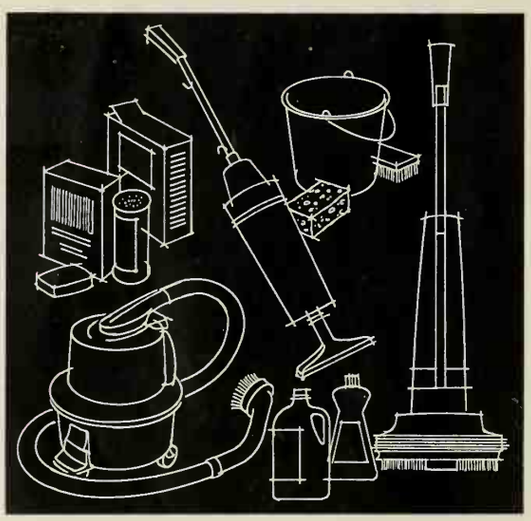
How to keep house the easy way

Keeping a home neat and clean involves more than pushing buttons, despite cartoons to the contrary. No one as yet has devised a way to do it without some effort, but time spent in planning ahead can make it a lot easier. A well-thought-out, flexible plan simplifies the actual doing—and a written plan will help you do more in less time with less fatigue. Housekeeping by plan means scheduling cleaning tasks throughout the year so that no one day or week is overburdened. Big general housecleaning is never necessary. This method keeps your house clean and orderly, eliminating that frantic hurrying to get things done "before company comes."

Plan a schedule and list the things which must be done to keep your home clean—daily, weekly, and monthly.

Daily tasks are quite similar in all households, regardless of size. A daily schedule involves meal plans and preparation, cleaning kitchen after meals, making beds, tidying bathroom and other rooms, laundering.



Weekly tasks involve a more thorough cleaning of each room, perhaps one room a day along with the regular daily cleaning. Spread other tasks such as ironing, mending, and marketing, out over the week.

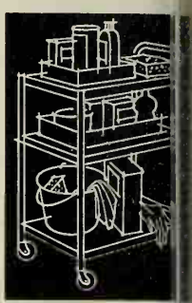
Monthly or odd-interval tasks are done as necessary—cleaning Venetian blinds, washing windows, polishing furniture, waxing floors, cleaning closets and cabinets. Do one or more in several rooms on the same day.

Try to follow your plan, but don't become a slave to it.

Use time- and energy-saving equipment which lessens reaching and stooping. Let the equipment work for you. Learn to use it correctly and to its fullest extent. For example, the regular use of vacuum cleaner attachments for cleaning walls, woodwork, radiators and upholstered furniture can add up to a lot of saved effort.

When you shop, look for new items signed to banish some of the details of cl ing. Try cleaning agents which give a c surface without rinsing or drying; furni polishes that clean as well as polish; tre disposable dusting paper.

Convenient storage which is centrally cated and well organized with cleaning plies and equipment reduces the get-ready and cleanup times. Keep duplicates of less expensive items in the area where they are used——bathroom, kitchen, and so on. Store poisonous items out of the reach of children. Use the best method in order to take a minimum amount of time and eff Use carts and tables on wheels to move cl ing equipment and supplies to where they to be used. A cleaning apron with pockets hold often-used items. Do the most im tant things first, know how long it takes t a job, and allow ample time. Don't sta dozen things, only to find that you hav time to finish any of them before the fa comes home for dinner. Don't be afraid to out new ways of doing things. Perhaps y whole set of work habits needs revising.



The ordinary movements used in doing eryday household tasks are good body-bea fying exercises if done correctly. For lift use leg muscles instead of back muscles. (W bending to pick up objects on the floor, b knees instead of bending at the waist.)

Alternating heavy and light work, as as stopping to rest periodically, helps prev excess fatigue. You will tire less if you h good posture as you work. Each part of y body has weight—the less you move, the energy you use. Try to walk less and str less; again, the point is to reduce fatigue

Streamline your home by looking it to see if you can make it an easier plac keep clean. Here are some helpful ways:

Remove surface dirt before there is much or it becomes embedded.

Choose easy-to-clean furnishings, fab wall and floor finishes.

Eliminate knickknacks and ornam which serve no real purpose, but must dusted, washed, and kept in order.

Discard or put away seldom-used or n essential articles and furnishings.

Always look for the easier ways to g job done. Housekeeping is what you mak You will enjoy it more with the satisfac of knowing you are doing it in the most cient way.

How to help your child get the most out of school

By Darrell Huff

With this article, Better Homes & Gardens begins a new series which will run throughout the school year. Future articles will cover reading skills, mathematics, foreign languages, and other school subjects in which parents can —and should—give youngsters a strong helping hand.

A successful student is simply one who uses all of his abilities and talents. Nothing else counts very much toward success—except, of course, becoming a decent and effective human being. In these days of increasing automation, when both broad learning and specific skills are in demand and mere muscle is likely to be coupled with drudgery or unemployment, a student can't afford not to take his school work seriously.

Today, even parents whose own education either passed them by or lingered just briefly would echo the sentiments expressed by world champion prize fighter Rocky Graziano.

"You didn't like school at all?" a radio interviewer asked the former boxer.

"Naw!" said Rocky. "I hated it. I played hooky all the time."

And what about Rocky's children?

"They're crazy about it. They'd better be. I'd kill 'em if they started foolin' around."

Rocky wants his youngsters to be successful students, and so do the rest of us. What can we—untrained as teachers—do? There are ten tasks that educators generally agree on as the job of all parents.

Fortunately, not one of these is beyond the capacity of any interested parent. You need not be a teacher to apply them—and since it is unwise and confusing to overlap too closely the work of the school, it may even be better if you're not.

What they do call for are two of the most precious commodities on earth: patience and understanding. Happily, each of us can summon up at least a little of these two virtues. And a little will accomplish a lot.

1. Have books in your home—not merely sitting on shelves but coming in and passing through. Books are good, but books-in-motion are better. They're harder to ignore.

You can't begin too soon. Of college entrance examinations, an editorial in the Saturday Review says: "All parents would do well to remember that preparation for College Boards begins when they start reading to their preschool children."

Many youngsters reach high school without really learning what public libraries and book stores are for. You can give your child a tremendous start by taking him along to help select books for reading aloud—and then reading them regularly.

Dr. James A. Van Allen, the physicist who discovered the radiation belts that bear his name, vividly remembers a nightly habit of his father's. It was reading aloud to his four children from The Book of Knowledge. How a busy lawyer, town councilman, school board member, and mayor found the time, his son never knew, but the results were worth it.

With a child well along in school and beginning to feel his independence, subtle approaches work best. The surest way to make a reader of him is to be one yourself. Even if your time is too limited (but is it really?) for extensive reading, you can spare a few minutes a day to work your way through one book after another.

The long-run effect of this on your child will be unmistakable. It won't do you any harm either.

2. Show interest in your child's schoolwork and appreciation for his accomplishments.

You can't fake this. A knack for spotting insincerity seems to be built into children. Give a child many doses of "yes dear that's lovely but I haven't time right now" and he'll simply stop bringing his work to you.

Nor is it enough to exclaim with pleasure—or deliver a stern lecture—at report card time. Interest has to be a daily affair.

This will mean some unexciting half-hours of reading spelling assignments aloud when you're asked to. It will mean going over a composition on "My Vacation" —and reading it carefully enough to make meaningful comments. It may even mean brushes with multiplication tables and division of fractions (subjects that may carry painful memories). But since when has successful child rearing been easy?

Volunteer work at the school, voting in school elections, attendance at PTA programs and school-visiting night—these will show your child something without your saying a word. They will let him know, most convincingly, that you respect the work of his school and appreciate the importance of the major thing in his life.

3. Provide a happy, relaxed home atmosphere. You're already trying to do this. All parents are, and none of us is fully succeeding or entirely failing. It is important enough to deserve an even harder try.

One extra thing you can do for your child as a student is to channel tensions away from study times. Make a special effort to send your youngster off to school in a cheerful mood each morning. Don't choose study time in the evening for that lecture, however necessary, on his numerous faults or the condition in which he left the bathroom this morning.

A brain crammed with resentment is not going to be hospitable to what otherwise could have been a fascinating schoolroom tour through the intriguing world of ancient Rome.

Provide him with a business-e place to study. Household se, tension, and activity will pass ır young student by if he has an ated study spot of his own.
A room that's all his is the ideal, course. But he'll make out quite ll elsewhere if you can provide a m or a corner that meets these sonable requirements.
t should be a place that is avail-
e to him every day at the same e.
There should be a desk or table studying, one that is not shared tudy time with any other activ-
or person.
This desk—or it plus an auxiliary h as a card table—should be ge enough to let him spread out ers and private enough so that can leave them there.
Lighting should be bright enough easy reading and free from re, and the desk top should not highly polished. If it is, cover it h a big blotter.
Try to supply good air circula-n and a temperature a little on cool side; 68 degrees is good.
Now does all this sound a little pampering? It is. And the im-tant thing is that it establishes dying—his studying—as the seis business it is.
Help your child develop good dy habits. The most important dy habit is the habit of studying. at means a regular time. It can ne before dinner or after, though al. Eventually there may have e two daily sessions.

Once a child has established a dy pattern, he will usually stay h it of his own accord, because results are so satisfying. Teach-report that following a schedule l failing in school simply do not together.
If you have difficulty getting ır student into the habit of dying, try some of these devices
t teachers have recommended that other parents have found e effective.
Set an alarm clock to get him
r the hurdle of starting.
Fix a daily time for going over assignments with him to make e he understands them. Help n see the purpose—the relation-o to other schoolwork and to future studies, job, and citizen-o duties.
Work with him to budget his e—30 minutes for a given chap-for instance, or 15 minutes h night for a week on a book to reported on at the end of the k.
Eliminate distractions. You may e to rule that no phone calls—r out—are permitted between ified hours.
Radio music? It's best to be ible on this sticky question till 've observed the results. One my teen-age consultants, an or-roll regular, testifies that he study some kinds of material fectly well while inundated by kind of music that I couldn't rate even while doing nothing.
But he switches it off when he tackles algebra.

Set a time for quizzing your child on a chapter or listening to his summary of it.

Use rewards if necessary—a game or TV period after studying is done.

6. Give cultural interests a place in family life. Not everything your youngster will need to become a good student in high school or college can come out of his earlier schooling alone. You can do much more than his school can to make art, music, and the world a part of his background.

Good music is as important as good furniture in making a good home. And take a cue from Eric Sevareid's description of life in the home of the young John F. Kennedy:

"At the dinner table, questions on politics, government, and international affairs raked the children like quills from a porcupine."

7. Give your youngster regular help in the techniques in which he is noticeably deficient.

These may be the obvious things—handwriting, spelling, adding numbers, following directions. Drill will help, especially if you catch the trouble early.

Less obvious but fully as important are two learning devices all too often neglected: note-taking and outlining. Weakness in these will handicap a student from the middle elementary grades right through college.

A survey of educators turned up a list of 19 study techniques that may spell the difference between success and failure. Note-taking headed the list.

The ideal to strive for is a notebook that, in the end, summarizes his whole course. It may include class notes, an outline of the textbook, notes on outside reading, reports of experiments or trips, and any "handout" sheets supplied by the teacher.

Outlining is valuable both as a form of note-taking and as the first step in any piece of creative work. You can help your child learn the value of outlining, by spotting good opportunities as they occur. Whether he's beginning a simple theme or book report or a semester paper, ask to see his outline. Asking regularly will eventually insure that there will be one. And once a good outline is in hand, an organized product follows naturally.

8. Build your child's confidence in himself as a person and as a student.

Even when he's small, try not to tell him he's "just a baby" or "too little" to do something he's interested in. Help him learn responsibility by giving him chores of his own.

Don't hover. One characteristic that psychological studies have found common to better students is that all their lives they have been allowed more independence than the average child.

9. Develop motivation through family outings and travel. When you go places together, don't skip the museums and historic spots. Put your youngster in charge of gathering advance data—maps and booklets. Encourage him to keep a journal. If it develops into a regular diary—first-class practice in observing and writing—so much the better.

For an instance of how travel can help, consider the case of one of our older daughters. In high school she made a D in beginning French, dropped the course, said she was off foreign languages for life—and added that it didn't make any difference because she wouldn't be caught dead going to college.

Later that year, we managed a family camping trip down the West Coast Highway into Mexico. At a resort where we stopped for a week, she ran into bitter frustration in her attempts to converse with a handsome young man working in a milk bar ("soda herk" he called his trade). She took to carrying an English-Spanish pocket dictionary.

The following semester she enrolled in a Spanish class. Now, eight years later, she has graduated from the University of California (having taken her junior year at the University of Madrid) with a major in Spanish.

10. Be alert to divert natural interests into educational channels. Television, so frequently a competitor with homework, can be turned into an aid to education. To encourage the right kind of viewing, turn your television corner into a miniature reference center. Keep at hand pencil, paper, dictionary, atlas, almanac—and encyclopedia, too, if possible. In the natural process of settling discussions and satisfying curiosity, your youngster will develop what are—whether he recognizes it or not—scholarly habits.

But whatever you do—and you can't do everything—you won't go wrong if you remember that the student's interest is the key and that books are the most important single tool you have to use.

Reflect for a moment on this typical experiment conducted with three matched groups of grade-school children. The teacher of one group was instructed to work on her children by prodding and scolding, the second by praising at every opportunity. The third was to do neither, simply accepting the work done with neutral detachment. The children's progress was measured by a series of tests.

Which group did the best? That's right—those who were praised and encouraged.

The children who were driven by scolding came in second, with the third "nothing" group lagging far behind.

Even nagging, poor technique though it is, beats indifference. What works for teachers works at home, too. To become the parent of a successful school child, you have to work at it.

How to build anything with plywood

'lywood is a wonderfully versatile material that you can se for practically any building project inside or outside your ome. It's light, strong, and very stable (doesn't shrink or well much). When planning your project, make a cutting iagram from graph paper to work out the most economical 'ay to cut the plywood panels. The easiest way to cut up 'hole sheets of plywood is to lay them across sawhorses nd use a portable saber saw or electric hand saw. Clamp a oard fence on the plywood for the saw foot to ride against. f you have trouble with chipping and splintering, lay a piece f masking tape along the cutting line. Clean up edges of the ut pieces with a plane, working from both ends toward the iiddle. When cutting plywood on your table saw, use a ollow ground blade to get edges that take little or no sand- ig or planing.

Jse the right kind of plywood for the job

)ouglas fir plywood comes in both exterior and interior 'pes with letter designations A through D to indicate the uality of the face and back panels. This chart shows the iost common kinds of fir plywood and their uses:

NTERIOR TYPE

-A (good two sides)	Used for cabinet doors, built-ins, wherever both sides show.
-D (good one side)	Used for paneling, built-ins, backing, shelving, wherever only one side shows.

:XTERIOR TYPE

-C (good one side)	General construction of projects outdoors where the plywood itself provides the finished surface.
-D (sheathing grade)	Used for sheathing, underlayment, rough or temporary structures.

here are also many special textured kinds of plywood used)r decorative effects. Besides fir plywood, you can also buy ardwood-faced plywood, usually only available with one)od side. The back panel is usually the same wood as the ice, but of a much poorer grade.

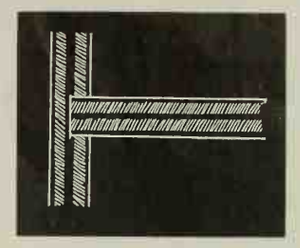
'hese joints are best for plywood utt joint. Simple and strong, it end grain shows. Fasten ith glue and nails or screws. ill and paint end grain.

Single rabbet. Stronger than butt joint, simple to make. End grain is covered. Fasten with nails and glue.

iter. Conceals end grain. ather difficult to assemble. ail and glue or use a spline rip, glue, and clamp.

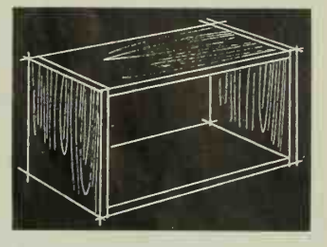
Double rabbet. Conceals end grain, has large gluing surface. Easier to assemble than miter joint, but takes longer to cut.

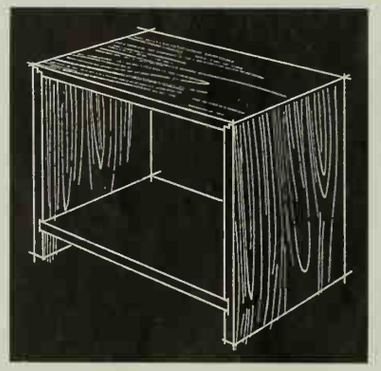


Dado. Used to set in shelves and bottoms. Makes a more rigid box. Nail and glue, or just glue and clamp.

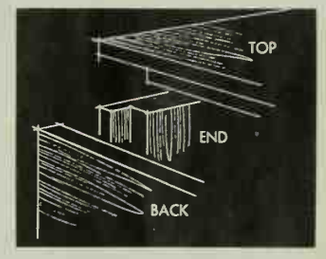
Most projects are variations of these two basic boxes

Hanging cabinet. Joints are butt or single rabbet. Ends of cabinet show no end grain; weight is at right angles to the nails.





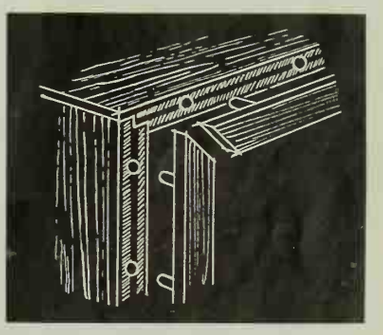
Base cabinet. Top joints are mitered or double rabbeted. Bottom is dadoed in for extra strength. No end grain shows; bottom is set up for toe room.



Back panel for both boxes is set into rabbets for strength and rigidity. Fastened with glue and nails, ¼-inch plywood is strong enough for most projects.

Edging and facing

The easiest way to cover unsightly plywood edges is to use wood edging tape. You stick it on with contact cement, or simply iron it on if the adhesive is already applied. For projects that will be painted, water-mix putty is easy and inexpensive to use. Using a putty knife, cover the whole edge, then sand smooth when dry.



Add solid wood facing strips around door openings for better appearance and to make door hanging easier. Fasten with nails and glue or blind dowels.

For a very durable edge, such as on a table top or counter, you might want to add a solid wood strip. The drawings above show several good ways to do it. Fasten with nails and glue, or just glue and clamp in place.

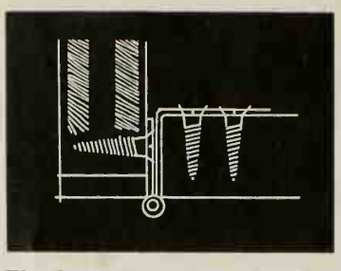
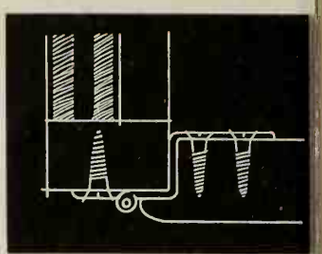
How to make doors for your project

The finely made hinges on the market today make door hanging a snap. Here are the basic styles with typical hinges.



Flush doors are set in door opening. For clearance, slightly bevel the side opposite the hinges. Use regular flush door hinges to hang.



Lipped doors are usua made from ¾-inch plywoo Cut a ⅜x⅜-inch rabbet on four sides. Round over t edges; hang with offset hing

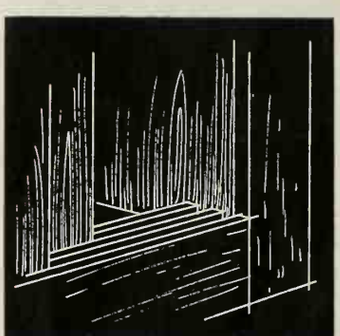
Finishing plywood is easy

Fir plywood looks best when painted, but it takes a little preparation to get a really smooth finish.

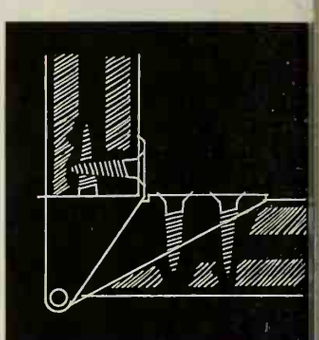
Fill nail holes and blemishes with water-mix putty. Apply it with a putty knife, allowing a little for shrinkage as the putty dries. When dry, sand smooth with 100 grade sandpaper on a sanding block. You needn't sand the whole plywood surface since it comes to you nicely sanded.

Apply a good sealer to keep the "wild" fir grain from raising. White shellac makes a good sealer for interior finishes. There are also several good sealers on the market just for this purpose. When the sealer has dried, sand lightly with 150 grade sandpaper until smooth.

Put on the finish coats of enamel, flat, semigloss, or gloss, depending on your choice. You might want to use flat enamel undercoat for the first coat. It's heavy on pigment and covers well, cutting down the number of finish coats of enamel you have to put on. Be sure to sand carefully between coats with 220 grade sandpaper.



Sliding doors work best if you use metal track. To make your own track, cut dadoes in solid wood, then nail them in door opening.



Overlap doors cover the e tire door opening and t edges of the cabinet. No fa ing strips are used. Use co cealed pivot hinges.

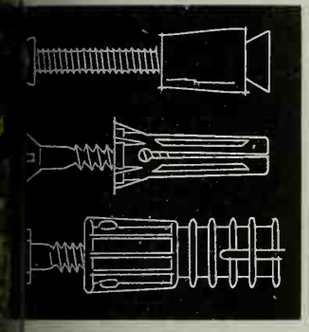
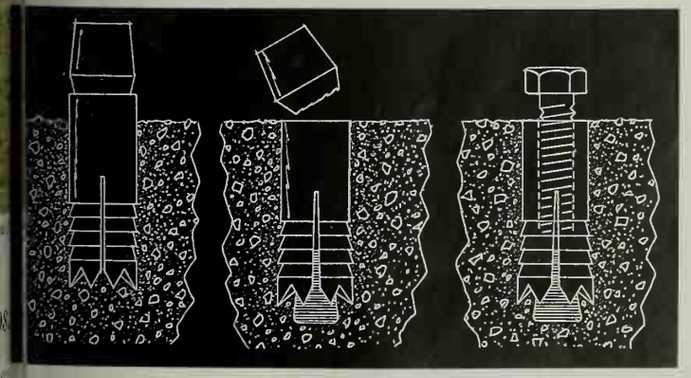
steners for masonry walls of two general types: spe-lly hardened nails, and ex-ding plugs made to receive ndard fasteners. The sim-st of the nail types is the fat, ral grooved masonry nail (B) t you just drive in with a mmer like a regular nail. ese are good only in fairly t masonry surfaces, and tend crack and crumble the wall. Another system uses a thinner l (C), kept from bending by a special holder that supports nail as you drive it in. This type fastener is especially good putting up furring strips on concrete block. The nail comes various lengths, depending on the job. Another good fas-er for furring is the perforated plate (A) that you stick on wall with special adhesive. You then drive the furring ips onto the spike sticking out of the plate.



Expanding plug fasteners are made of lead, fiber, or nylon. The lead types are made to receive wood screws, lag screws, or stove bolts. Fiber plugs take screws of all types. The nylon plugs have special drive screws that you drive in like a nail, but can be removed with a screwdriver. The easiest way to make the holes for these plugs is to a carbide-tipped masonry bit in your electric drill. When lling, bear down hard, but back the bit out once in a while clear chips. Don't let the bit idle in the hole, because this l create friction that might burn it up. If you have no ctric drill, you can drill holes by hand with a star drill. This hard work, however, so if you have many holes to make, sider renting a drill.



This plug drills its own hole, much the same way as a star ll, but considerably faster, since you leave the plug in the le and use a new, sharp one for the next hole. You drill the le with the plug set in a special holder, then expand the g in the hole and knock off the top, exposing a threaded le to receive a bolt. HOW TO MASTER THE BIG THREE IN DECORATING: ARRANGEMENT, BACKGROUND, AND COLOR

By Florence Byerly

If you believe the old saying that you learn something new every day, then make this the day you learn decorating—to give your home just a little more beauty, comfort, and livability than it had before. Here's a first-class lesson in where to start, what to do, and how to do it.

The ABCs

Arrangement of furniture should be your first consideration in decorating. Diagram the flow of traffic and the conversation areas. Then see that your furniture is placed where it does the most good.

Background is the setting that gives your room its atmosphere. Remember, background includes more than just your walls and what you do to them. Consider the treatment of your floor, windows, and lighting. Do they complement your furnishings, set the mood you want, and emphasize any architectural features of the room?

Color is the magic ingredient that brings life to what you've done so far. Pick any one of our tried-and-true recipes for creating a color scheme, then use it confidently to brighten your home. Start planning now. Your decorating diploma is only a room away.

DINING AREA

Arrangement (top right and floor plan) can double the use of a room. Here, a dual-purpose room was created by the use of a visual divider. A server separates the conversation and dining areas. You can accomplish the same definition of areas with a screen divider, tall storage unit, or lighting divider.

Background (bottom) sets off the shimmering jewel tones of this room and makes them even more dazzling. The background here is made up of floors, walls, ceiling, window treatments, and lighting. Note how the white floor and ceiling offer the light walls a chance to be seen. Colorful window treatments set the stage for the furnishings of poster-pure colors. And, as always, lighting is used to play up what's most important about the room. When planning a lighting scheme for your room, keep these basic principles in mind: light colors reflect light, dark colors absorb it—so if walls and carpeting are dark, you'll need extra lighting. Another principle to remember is that your room will need both general lighting and special work lighting. Plan soft diffused lighting for general use, while lights you use for working or reading should be bright and focused, but shaded from the eyes for comfort.

Color (top left) in this area shows you the vivid blues and greens used throughout the room. Colors are carried from the area rugs to the window treatment, from fireplace to furnishings—all with the same bold stroke. Bright spots of solid color are played against large neutral areas to add even more emphasis to the color scheme. Remember, color is always more interesting in unequal amounts, so use your accent colors carefully and in small quantities.

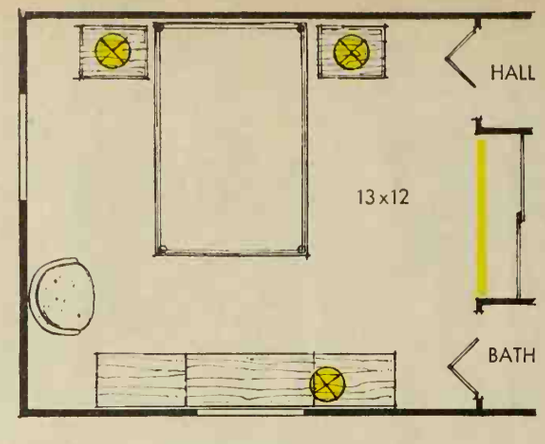
The ABCs

Arrangement (bottom) of furniture can form a natural room divider and channel traffic in the right directions. In the before photo (top left) you see the room as a near miss. The furniture was good, the window treatment adequate and simple, but the room was just not workable, primarily because the furniture arrangement was bad. Chairs were grouped right in the flow of traffic from the living room to the hall. Conversations had to be carried on across the entire room. But now, effective placement of furniture and the addition of a few new pieces and accessories put the whole room to work. An aisle, 36 inches wide, (see floor plan) was created behind the sofa to direct the flow of traffic to the hall. Now chairs are grouped for comfortable conversation. When forming a conversation grouping, remember, chairs should not be more than eight feet from each other. Plan dual-purpose areas where you can read or do handwork as well as visit.

Background (top right) becomes a thing of beauty in itself when it's a gallery wall like this one. The collection of pictures furnishes the aisle wall without wasting any floor space. Portable light fixtures have been added above the grouping to bathe the wall with light and give the area importance.

Color scheming (top center) is easy with attractive fabric as a starter. The fabric covering the standing screens of the window treatment inspired the color for this room. The warm green was used to feature the fireplace wall and add new life to the neutral carpeting and furniture. When you're choosing paint to be used with a fabric, pick a color close to the fabric color. It doesn't have to be identical to look right on the wall. Besides, today's decorating favors blending rather than matching.



The ABCs

Arrangement (floor plan and center) of furniture along one wall is a universal space-making principle. Here, the desk was moved under the window and flanked by Mr. and Mrs. storage chests and mirrors. In order to accommodate the small space between the chest and the bathroom doorway, a double-fold door was used.

Background (bottom) doesn't have to be strictly visual—this one is very functional. The closets provide plenty of handy storage, while their white louvered doors become points of interest in contrast to the new darker wall color. The strip of mirror and overhead lighting panel were extras added for practicality as well as beauty. In this room, the change of background was achieved without structural changes—simply by painting the walls. Using a wall color that's closely related to the carpet color is another space-making principle. Your room will also look larger if you paint it a light, receding color.

Color (opposite page) can make the difference in a room. In the before photo (top) the bedroom was done in nice—but nothing—neutrals. This was replaced by the dramatic olive and red that sparked the room to new beauty. In planning a color scheme, evaluate your room, decide what you're going to keep, and go on from there. If it's the floor covering or upholstered pieces that remain, learn to build new color schemes around them. Here, the carpeting was used as a starting point with a harmonizing bedspread and canopy becoming a springboard to the lively new accent colors.

A rug used for this pur- e should be big enough to incor- ate the entire furniture grouping.

Background (top left) is unified here by carrying the bright red of the woodwork and fireplace detailing to the opposite end of the room (see plan). Now this little jogged area blends into the rest of the decorative scheme and, combined with the natural wood floor, forms a warm, inviting background for furnishings. Distribution of color is important. Any room would look lopsided if everything red were at one end.

Color scheming (bottom left) was inspired by the crewel-patterned fabric used in the chair upholstery and draperies. Reds are echoed in the sofa, area rug, and woodwork—and even used to line the storage cabinet. The red felt lining sets off the blue enamelware which accents this overall red-and-blue scheme. Valance lighting in the window treatment adds a cheery "sunlight" look to the room even at night.

HOW TO GROW BEAUTIFUL BLOOMING TULIPS, DAFFODILS, HYACINTHS, AND ALL THE OTHER SPRING-FLOWERING BULBS

By Hamilton Mason and Garden Staff

Anyone can successfully grow tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, and other spring-flowering bulbs. It's all in the bulbs you pick. Be sure and buy good plump ones, because the flower buds are already buried deep within them, waiting to go. Then just plant the bulbs in well-drained soil, and nature does the rest—you can't keep them from staging their spring splendor of cheerful colors. Drab rocks, a bare wall, a hedge, or a shrub border can be enhanced by the bright bubbles of color that only tulips give. Buy now so next spring won't find you wishing you had some. Then, follow the few simple steps we show here.

The ABCs

Photographs: Hopkins

The first basic step is to make sure of the proper planting depth and spacing for each kind of bulb you plant. For all flowers of a given variety to bloom together, depth of planting for each bulb of the group must be exactly the same.

The chart at left shows planting depths (measured from top of bulb) above the line and spacing of bulbs below the line.

If you live in an area where rodents damage tulips, you must plant the bulbs in a wire basket as shown at right. Use half-inch mesh hardware cloth to form the basket—sides should be 7½ inches deep to accommodate large bulbs.

HOW TO RESTYLE THE FURNITURE YOU THOUGHT YOU'D HAVE TO THROW AWAY!

By David Jordan and Jean Holmstrand

We picked these three fugitives from a used furniture store to show you what can be done with a little ingenuity and hardly any work. You'll probably never see their twins in your attic, but we're sure you won't have any trouble finding some of their close relatives. We spent an enjoyable day poking through the Goodwill and Salvation Army stores to find these specimens—and we saw plenty of other likely candidates. We chose these because they seemed most typical, and because, by redoing them, we could show you a greater variety of techniques. When looking at the "before" photographs at the beginning of each how-to sequence, you'll have to admit that we didn't let ourselves off too easily. These pieces really weren't much to begin with. The two basic ways to improve old furniture are to either change the style by ripping off old parts and adding new, or, if the lines are good to start with, by refinishing and adding a little simple upholstery. Almost any piece of furniture can benefit from one of these two processes. It takes next to nothing in time, money, and tools, and if you get half the fun and satisfaction from doing your projects that we did from ours, you're sure to consider it well worth-while.

The ABCs

This small chest had some good design elements, but it n a little demolition to get rid of the undesirable feature removed the door and flanking panels, threw away the er, and ripped off the top. Then we took off the varnish paint remover. We rehung the door at the side and put i panels in the other two openings. The new panels were from the divider strips slightly to match the door an panels. The new top was made with an opening for a c "sink." Raw umber and raw sienna, linseed oil, and tu tine made the stain that matched the new wood to th After an over-all stain, raw umber right from the tub rubbed into corners and cracks to make an antique finis put on two coats of satin varnish after the stain drie

't always necessary to strip the old finish off a piece of furniture e you paint it. When the old finish is sound, do as we did on this r; wash it all over with liquid sander just before applying the coat of paint. We put on two coats of flat blue enamel. After the coats, we "frosted" the rocker with white glaze—white enamel water-thin with turpentine. We brushed it on, then wiped it off, ng some in the grooves around the spindles. Two coats of dull sh add luster and keep the glaze from wearing off.

e made patterns from brown wrapping paper for the back and a cushions, leaving enough extra for seams. Both cushions were e with a double welt. The back was made over a piece of sponge er so it would keep its shape, and the seat was stuffed with k. The back cushion has ties to hold it to the chair spindles.

A little well-considered work with a saw can often turn an ugly old too-high table into a good-looking piece of furniture that's the right height for contemporary furnishings. Here we sawed off the bun feet and cut away the knobby sections of the legs. After reassembling, we washed the table with liquid sander and gave it two coats of flat black enamel.

We then applied gray glaze with a "dry brush" technique —we wiped the brush almost dry, then lightly stroked the table to bring out high lights. A piece of black plastic laminate made a practical, satiny-smooth top. We cut the laminate to size and applied contact cement to it and the table top. A slip sheet of wrapping paper kept the top and table from bonding while we got the laminate and top exactly aligned.

HOW TO KNOW A GOOD HOUSE WHEN YOU SEE ONE

Planning is basic to houses—and to most everything else. This month's Five Star Home, designed by Dennis Blair, A.I.A., Chicago, is precision-planned in every detail. It's a comfortable house, even for a large family. You'll find convenience throughout—from good zoning to easy traffic flow—and with this, a quiet, lasting beauty. Its restful lines—with dark and light wood areas, peaked ceilings, and massive beams—give you a hint of the Far East. Best of all, the ideas here are as clear, direct, and simple as ABC. They'll adapt very easily to your present home, too.

By John D. Bloodgood

Right, above—This living room invites your relaxation. The dark stain of the beams and the lighter redwood ceiling set off the light walls and neutral carpet. To this simple background, bright furniture adds life. This conversation area, which centers around the ceiling-high fireplace, can be as cozy as you want to make it—or simply by opening the drapery across the other wall (see plan), you can flood the room with the bright spaciousness and gaiety of the terrace.

Right, below—This part of the large living room holds the key to outdoor living—or looking. The wide glass wall lets you enjoy the quiet expanse of yard, lets you keep an eye on the outdoor play area. It's just a few steps to the side door and a covered deck that runs the full length of the house. The other door, below the pleasing glass triangle, opens to the enclosed porch; it's secluded and has its own door to the deck. Here is the perfect place for quiet relaxation.

The excellent zoning of the 1,857-square-foot floor plan starts to work right at the entry. Adult guests are channeled to the peaceful living room, even when pajama-clad children are having that last bedtime snack in the family room. All noisy activities —work and play—are confined to the bridging zone between the quiet wing on the left and the children's bedroom wing. The kitchen is out of all traffic—yet it looks across a counter into the family room and has its own close-to-the-car entrance. The sketch above shows how the roof peaks line up with the plan. Over-all dimensions are 63x69 feet, without the garage.

HOW TO PUT MORE GOOD LIVING INTO ANY HOUSE

By Frank R. Glass, A.I.A., and Pete Lindberg

Photograph: Guy Burgess. Designer: Jinny Lee Snow

Above—Put more life in the kitchen—This redwood divider, anchored by two poles, is the answer: it screens the work area without crowding, but it won't block out light. The result? You get an informal place to eat that's really pleasant—and convenient. Cleaning's easy too—2x2s are well above the floor.

Above right—A patio plus Here's plenty of storage, shade, and play space too. It's the place to keep your garden and car tools. And, the wide roof from the house keeps off rain; the broad overhang adds shelter. Concrete court keeps house cleaner. See photographs, details on page 130.

Lower right—Put a kitchen where it counts—right next to the family room. You'll be able to watch the play area as you work. The counter divider here is long and low—it's ideal for casual meals, and it won't bar your view. The sliding doors (with colorful diamonds) let you close off any kitchen clutter at a touch.

Some do it with storage space. Others put in a new fireplace. Many more add a view to their favorite room. Whatever good living means to you, you're almost sure to find it here—along with some other solid ideas you hadn't thought of. As part of this special issue, we've taken the best of many homes—basic ideas that add up to the good house. From kitchens to patios and play areas to entries, you'll find ideas here that will work for you. If you're wondering about the cost, consider this: when you remodel your home or build a new one, it costs very little more to do it right. Often it's cheaper—especially when you think of the added livability you'll be getting. Too many homes today just won't let you live. Too many remodeling jobs just don't work. But with the ideas on these six pages as your guide, you can plan—and succeed.

Above—A rumpus room bargain. Just $500 ago, this garage was bare, dim, and unfinished. Now it's a room that entertains a growing family. The "brick" floors are really paint (masking tape was used to make the lines). Vinyl-coated paneling gives walls a tough, washable surface; acoustical ceiling absorbs noises. Bamboo shades drop down to hide the washer-dryer. The glass panel in the kitchen door makes it easier to check on the children.

Left—An outdoor play area—This brawny baby sitter is bound to keep young hands busy. And, it's easy to look at. Bolt the play frame (6x6 posts sunk in the ground) to the house, or put it in a shady corner. The groundwork's important here: use tanbark under the swings and net, and put stones and sand at the ends. (Tanbark—or cedar chips—saves on bruises; stones help clean shoes.) Dark fir 2x12s keep the sand and tanbark where they belong. The swings and net are simple, but in a blink of a boy's eye, they can change into a fort, a pirate ship, or a hide-out.

HOW TO PUT MORE GOOD LIVING INTO ANY HOUSE

Right—Make your own private view where there isn't any. Want something different—and practical? You get both with these concrete blocks, redwood beams, and sliding glass door. This idea works magic when you have a dark room and no space for a patio. (The open roof above garden lets in plenty of sun.)

Below—A parents' retreat. There's all the privacy you could ask for here, and you can bring in the sun, too. The sliding glass door opens to a wooden deck enclosed with privacy screens. This deck not only makes a pleasing place to relax, but also serves as a private entry to the bedroom. (Note the locking door in the privacy screen.) Of course, when you want complete privacy, the glass door can be covered by the tasteful draperies.

Right—A conversation area isn't a luxu it's what makes your living or family room a cess. And, it's mainly a matter of planning. Fir interesting spot in your room—a fireplace, win or bookshelf. Arrange the furniture so traffic around the conversation area. (And, put the f ture where looking—and reaching—will be one or two well-placed things often will do the Here's what it took for this inviting room: walnut paneling; a fireplace on a low, tiled form; some hanging bookshelves. (This fa sealed off an unused kitchen door and made serving window.) All this adds up to a warm, fortable place with an easy atmosphere that pany just naturally heads for.

Far right—Bedrooms need storage—dressing space. This bedroom does both colo ly, and without crowding either. These louv doors fold back along the large closets, but don't jut into the room. The dressing-counter shows how you can mix color and convenienc bright tile top curves up to the mirror (no d corners); theatrical-style bulbs throw soft, light. And this family saved space for a com shower room (the door is just beyond the dre counter). They made paint do its part too; bedroom seems roomier with its neutral w ceiling, and doors. Spotlights on beams re light off closet doors for gentle illumination, light closet interiors when doors are open.

Upper right—Try built-ins for children's rooms. They'll give you more storage in the same space—and dust won't hide under them either. You'll get fewer complaints about cleaning up too; boy-size cabinet takes shirts, socks—and those special toys and models. You can raise this built-in study table without fuss (it slides up easily on metal rails). These solid-looking bunks stay put—the iron frames are bolted to the walls. Looking for the usual bulky stepladder? It's been replaced by the sturdy rungs on the bed frame. And there's another good living tip here: young rooms can't be fragile—or drab. This tough cork tile is colorful, easy to to clean. Walls (and built-ins) are practical cedar. For a junior-size guest room, double this idea—put bunk beds on either wall, with a folding divider between.

Right—Hobbies need space to grow. All hobbies come off better when there's plenty of storage, work space—and thinking room. This grown-up hobby spot shows how: hinged wall panels open wide for paintings; tack board above shows off others; bookshelves adjust easily. (And the furniture is solid and comfortable.)

Lower right—Younger hobbyists need their storage in a room that's rugged. Here, sliding hardboard panels do double duty—they cover ceiling-high shelves and hold two blackboards that move up or down. (Burlap on two sections holds pin-ups and drawings.) School desk and cabinet can take rough handling. And, cork tile hides drips and shavings. Acoustical ceiling plaster keeps noise in the hobby room.

Left—A screened terrace. Why spend your warm-weather leisure batting bugs or dodging the rain? A covered court like this gives you convenience and comfort—but won't block the breezes. You can build one a step at a time: pick your spot by the kitchen or family room (you'll need an outside entry) and lay the floor; add fireplace next; then put up posts and overhead beams. Insect screening—and plastic panels to shed the rain—can come when you add cabinets and all-weather furniture.

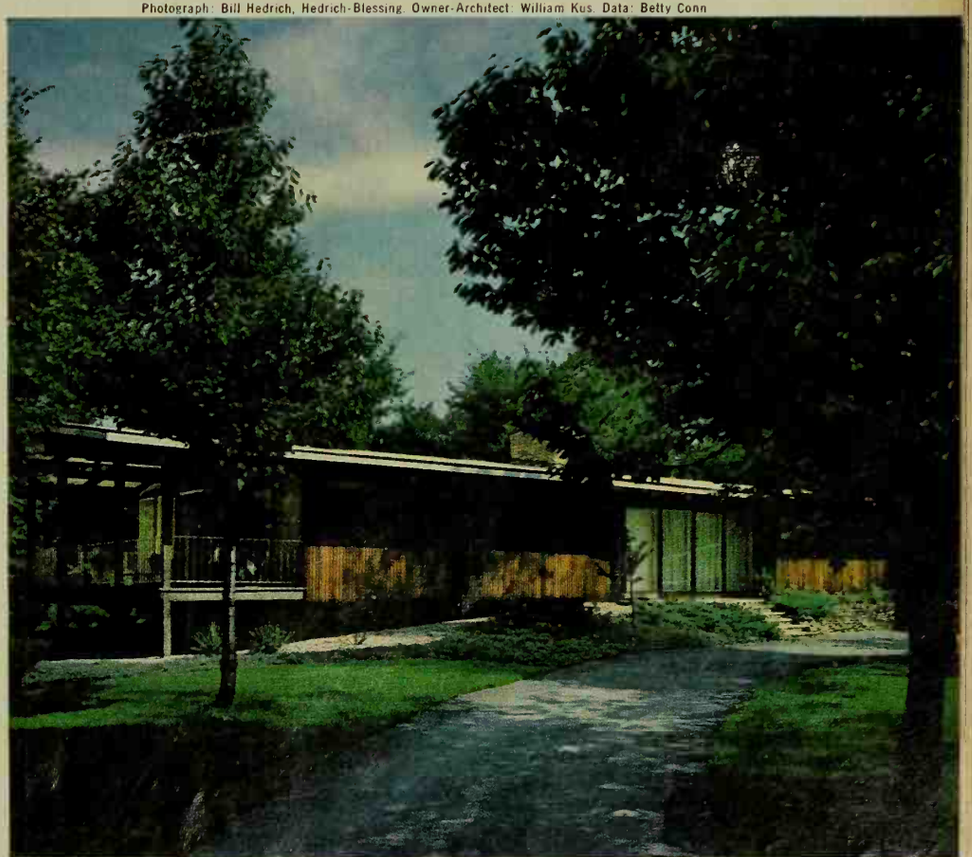
Photograph: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing. Owner-Architect: William Kus. Data: Betty Conn

Above—Storage where you need it. There's not much argument on storage: you usually need more than you can get. But when you remodel or build, put storage where you can use it. And, be sure each unit—deep or narrow—fits its job well. This one works because it's handy—right between dining and family rooms. Sliding doors open on both sides and there's a long closet at the end.

Above right—Entries aren't just doors— they're a part of your welcome. Most front door areas have closets, many have enough elbowroom—but few are exciting. The entry here reflects the spirit of the home—friendly, casual, practical. Closets are wide ones; the entry is roomy. This church lantern and the plants frame a striking view—whether you're just arriving or looking out on the unusual, covered court.

Right—Let your home show its best side. Some homes almost ask you to come in—they're warm, interesting, and colorful like this one. It looks as if it belongs here because it fits into the land and trees (even young ones can make a new house seem at home). If you want to get this feeling in your present home, think of a face-lifting job—get rid of dormers, gingerbread, and porches (or put some life—and space—in the old porch). Then landscape on a grand scale: get an expert to help you place your favorite trees and shrubs.



HOW TO PLAN A WONDERFUL WORKING KITCH IN ANY SPACE

There's a great new way to plan more work space into every inch of kitchen. It's a design system which includes five work centers instead of the traditional three—and it fits easily into any room size. Center dimensions listed below are minimums recommended for base cabinet counter space with wall cabinets above.

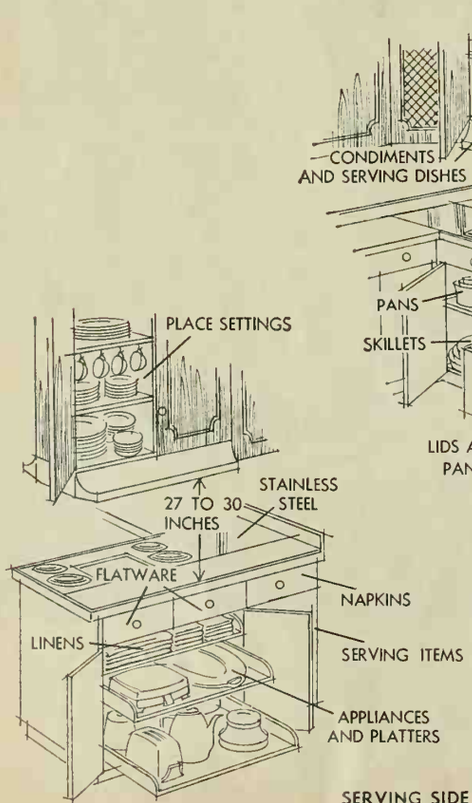
The ABCs

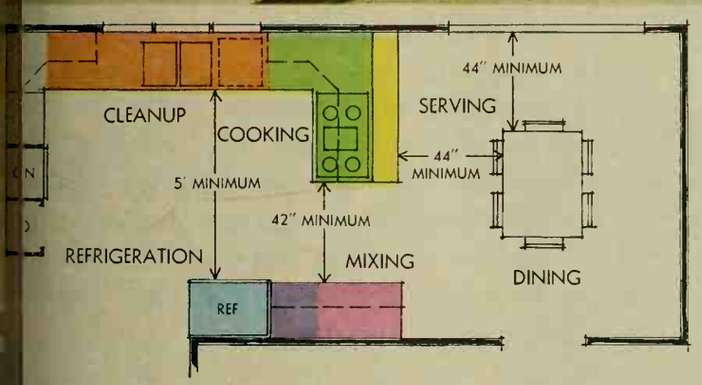
Cooking center should have 24 inches with heat-proof surface. Serving center needs 24 inches also; Mixing requires 42. An 18-inch Refrigeration counter should be to the opening side of the door. Cleanup center needs 36 inches at right of sink and 30 inches at left of sink. Appliances or sink sizes are not included in dimensions.

By Georgia V. Tonelli and Rita Marie Schneider

Photographs: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing; Designer: Jeff Brawner; Drawings: Ken Gunall; Data: University of Illinois

When you combine two or more centers, as the cook and serve bar above, choose the longer counter dimension (both are 24 inches in this case), add one foot (24+12=36 inches) for sufficient work area and storage.





The old theory which placed sink between range and refrigerator is out. Here's how the new data was used to perfection in Dr. and Mrs. Frank Perkins' home. Cook-serve centers are only a step from the 54-inch (42+12) combined mix-refrigeration centers. The oven, the owner's least-used appliance, is at left of sink. Also noted on plan are new minimum passageway dimensions of 42 and 44 inches (formerly 36 and 30 inches).

HOW TO DO STUNNING ARRANGEMENTS WITH THE FLOWERS AND BRANCHES OF AUTUMN

What does your garden offer during those last glowing days of Indian summer? A thousand possibilities! Against the pearl-gray haze of autumn skies, flowers burst into a luxurious riot of color, and leaves put on a coat of burnished copper elegance. Branches proudly flaunt frostings of tiny colorful berries, and all the countryside yields a wealth of exciting pods, thistles, burs to be quickly dried in the hot sun, and tenderly twisted into a symbol of autumn's beauty . . . dramatic, colorful, always haunting. Leaves, shot with rainbow colors, can be piled with careless profusion into pitchers and accented with a few dried flowers. Try these three combinations—leaves and flowers, berried branches and flowers, and a magnificent, classically perfect arrangement of dried materials—all shown here in easy-to-follow, step-by-step pictures. They'll bring autumn magic into every room!

The AB

By Elizabeth Craster

Crab apple, cockscomb and asters combine to form a dramatic and colorful arrangement. Step I (at top); place three berried branches cut high, medium, and low on a large needle point in any formal container. Add two cockscombs cut at varying heights. Step II (middle picture): add three cockscombs near lower rim for center of interest. Then place purple asters in triangular formation between the velvety cockscombs. For the last, lovely grace note, add six sprays of orchid daisy mums to serve as helpers and transitional flowers to balance the dominant cockscomb and gay asters.

A vintage crop of dried beauty blends these delicate nuances of color and texture into a monochromatic study. Begin with two bunches of dried grasses placed at right and center, and a few stalks of cockscomb placed on a slant to the left. Wire each bunch separately. For the center of interest, add two full stalks of bleached milkweed pods, then artichoke seed pom-pons slightly lower. At the back, insert glycerin-dried foliage. Fill out sides with nine spears of wheat, teasels, and cattails. Add five stalks of Bells of Ireland to give the arrangement a low line and vertical balance.

Photographs: Hopkins

Autumn leaves and bold masses of fall flowers create a spectacular display. Choose any textured container with a crude old-pottery look, and generous proportions. Place a gracefully curved branch of oak leaves to the right and two chrysanthemums in dead center. Place second oak branch to the left. Group gold and bronze daisy mums low on either side of two giant mums.

HOW TO BAKE A PERFECT PIE EVERY TIME

The ABCs

A man's first choice for dessert? Pie! And pie crust is first on the bride's "help wanted" list. Because pastry can be tricky is the very reason a woman takes such pride in turning out a perfect pie. Here, two favorites —All-American Apple Pie and spicy Pumpkin Pie—illustrate success tips to both beginners and out-of-practice pie bakers. On the following pages, we give help on how to pamper yeast dough into fragrant loaf breads and rolls; then we go on with ways to turn budget meats into meals you'd be proud to serve to company.

By Myrna Johnston and Foods Staff

Tender pastry. Sprinkle water from a tablespoon—only a few drops at once—and at the same time toss the flour-shortening mixture, pushing moistened part to one side. Go easy on water! Gather mixture in ball—don't overwork.

For rolling round. First flatten ball of dough a bit on lightly floured pastry cloth. Now press dough with edge of hand, 3 times across. Give dough a quarter turn; repeat. Another rolling aid: Right-size circles marked on pastry cloth.

Photographs: Allen Snook

Pretty crimp. For a one-crust pie like the Pumpkin, trim pastry ½ inch beyond rim, fold under to make double edge. Scallop edge by using thumb and index finger of left hand as a wedge to push against with other index finger.

Big top. For a two-cruster, as our All-American Apple Pie, cut design on top crust so steam can puff out in baking. Lift pastry by rolling it over rolling pin; unroll on well-filled pie. Tuck the edge of top under rim of bottom crust; crimp.

HOW TO BAKE PERFECT RAISIN BREAD, HERB BREAD, AND HOT ROLLS

The ABCs

Kneading. Here, it's for Raisin Loaf. Knead with heel of hands, rocking in a pull-push motion, then folding dough toward you with curved fingers. After each "rock," give dough a quarter turn. Repeat until smooth and elastic.

Long loaf. With rolling pin, flatten dough in an oblong—the width should be about the same as the length of loaf pan (see recipe). Starting at a narrow end, roll dough up, sealing well at each turn with tips of fingers or edge of hand.

Final seal. Press down on ends of loaf with edge of hands, making two thin, sealed strips. Be firm—dough will be springy and have a mind of its own. Fold strips under loaf as you put it in a greased pan, so end crusts will be smooth.

Round loaf. Easy shaping for Herb Bread—just form in a ball. Let rise on baking sheet or in pie plate (sides will be higher). See opposite page for how to cut a round loaf—cut in quarters, then slice quarters at right angles to each other.

Photographs: Allen Snook

Butterhorn Rolls. Impressive, but nothing to it when you know the technique. Roll dough to a 12-inch circle, then cut in 12 wedges like a pie. Roll up each wedge, starting at wide end, and place point down on a greased baking sheet.

Cloverleaf Rolls. Roll dough to ¼ inch. Cut in rounds with little 1¾-inch cutter. (Veteran cooks may want to skip rolling and cutting, and just pinch off bits of dough.) Shape each round in ball, pulling the edges under for smooth top.

HOW TO DO WONDERS WITH POT ROAST, PORK CHOPS, AND MEAT LOAF

The ABCs

Beef Pot Roast. Good browning is the flavor key. Use a Dutch oven or large skillet, and brown the meat slowly on all sides. For flipping large cuts, try tongs plus a turner. Cover and simmer the meat tender—boiling makes it tough.

Gravy art. Lift pot roast to hot platter. Skim most of fat from stock. Put cold water in shaker, add flour (recipe gives amounts); shake well. Slowly stir into stock; heat, stirring, till mixture thickens. No lumps! Simmer 5 minutes.

Baked Stuffed Pork Chops. Buy double-rib chops, $1\frac{1}{2}$ to $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches thick. Cut a pocket on the fat side of each (or have meatman do it for you). Season pockets. Fill lightly without packing—the stuffing will stay fluffy that way.

Lacing chops. Close the opening with a few toothpicks, poking them in at a slight angle so chops will lie flat in baking dish. Lace with string; tie. No prebrowning in this recipe! Bake chops covered, glazing toward end of cooking.

Photographs: Allen Snook

Meat-loaf Twins. They are really little roasts if you bake them in a shallow baking dish, making sure they don't touch each other or sides of dish—then oven heat can reach all surfaces. Shape the loaves right in the baking dish.

Handsome finish. Score the tops of meat loaves with the handle of a wooden spoon. Make evenly spaced diagonal lines as we have, or create your own design. Fill the grooves with chili sauce or catsup for a tasty baked-on trim.

HOW TO BE THE MASTER CARVER WITH A BEEF ROAST, LEG OF LAMB, CORNED BEEF, HAM, AND TURKEY

Noted meat expert Max Cullen demonstrates here how to carve six favorite large roasts. He also gives the following pointers. Carving knife: Razor-sharp, it's your trusty friend. A standard 8½-inch blade works fine, but for larger cuts of meat, you'll find an 11-incher handy. The fork: For better control of large cuts, select one with tines far apart. Slicing: Keep roast warm, but let it "set" 15 minutes to firm up before carving. Slice enough for everyone, then serve—a wooden board will protect knife and platter. Right legs, left legs—an equal number of each, of course. If you have a left ham, as pictured, the thin side will be toward you. With a right ham, thin side will be away from you—just reach across the ham to cut those first few slices from thin side. Whole ham and leg of lamb may be carved the same way—note two methods.

The ABCs

ROAST TURKEY. Drumsticks go to carver's right. First carve side toward guests. Start by removing leg —grasp end with fingers and pull gently away from bird, while cutting through meat between thigh and backbone. With knife tip, unjoint leg bone from backbone. Holding leg vertically, large end down, slice meat parallel to bone and under some of the tendons, turning leg for even slices. Or first separate thigh drumstick. Before carving white meat, make a horizontal cut into breast, close to wing (second ture). Starting halfway up the breast, use a knife a fairly long blade to cut thin slices down to the w level cut. Spoon out stuffing from an opening mad cutting through thin meat where thigh was remo LEG OF LAMB. For easier carving, ask retailer to remove sirloin chops for another meal. With shank at your right, cut 2 or 3 slices from thin knuckle side and turn leg to rest on this base. Anchoring with fork, and beginning at shank end of cushion (meaty rounded area), carve slices down to leg bone. When you reach the bone that angles upward, start at shank end again and cut along leg bone (third picture) to release these nice "horseshoe" slices—10 to 12 from a 6- or 7-pound leg. Second helpings may be carved from remaining meat (tip roast on its side).

E BEEF. Carve across the grain of STANDING RIB ROAST OF BEEF. Have meatman remove backbone or at least saw across base of ribs so it can be removed from cooked roast in kitchen. Stand roast on large end with rib side to carver's left. Steadying with a wide-tined fork, slice across meat until knife reaches rib bone. Loosen slice by cutting along bone; place on platter. Don't serve until there's enough.

BAKED HAM. With shank to right, cut 2 or 3 long slices from thin side and stand ham on this base. Cut down to leg bone fore and aft, then cut along leg bone (third picture). Lift out this cushion; slice. Return ham to first position; slice both ends.

How to toss a terrific salad

A bowl of greens so crisp they almost crack, tossed with a lively dressing. That's the secret of a perfect tossed salad. Use one green alone, or a combination—like equal amounts romaine and ever-popular head lettuce spiked with water cress. Other greens to sample: curly endive, escarole, Boston lettuce and Bibb, French endive, new spinach. Remember flavor extras: croutons, snipped chives, anchovies, artichoke hearts, olive slices.

Photographs: Scott

Tear greens in bite-size pieces—they look fresher, even seem to taste better than if cut with a knife. Rinse greens from market pronto and stow in crisper or plastic bag in your refrigerator. Pat the greens dry on paper towels.

"Roll" your salad—greens will stay in bowl! Go down to bottom of bowl with tool in left hand as you go up and over with one in right. Now go up with left hand, down with right. Keep tossing till every bite is dressing-coated.

Toss salad at the table. Guests will be impressed; dressing can be added last minute. The less time a dressed salad waits, the perkier the greens. Mix your own dressing or choose bottled. We show salad of romaine, cucumber, cherry tomatoes. Pass assorted crackers.

Make a great pot roast cook it with Campbell's Soup

Campbell's Onion Soup is both the seasoning and the perfect onion gravy.

3 to 4 lb. beef pot roast
1 can Campbell's Onion Soup

In heavy pan, brown roast on all sides. (Use shortening, if needed.) Stir in soup. Cover; cook over low heat 2½ to 3 hrs. Remove meat. To thicken gravy, gradually blend ¼ cup water into 2 to 4 tbsp. flour; slowly stir into soup. Cook; stir till thickened. Serves 6 to 8.

MUSHROOM POT ROAST

Campbell's Cream of Mushroom Soup is the seasoning and the gravy.

3 to 4 lb. beef pot roast
1 can Campbell's Cream of Mushroom Soup

In heavy pan, brown roast on all sides. (Use shortening, if needed.) Stir in soup. Cover; cook over low heat 2½ to 3 hrs. Remove meat. To thicken gravy, gradually blend ¼ cup water into 2 to 4 tbsp. flour; slowly stir into soup. Cook; stir till thickened. Serves 6 to 8.

HE LIKES TO cook

Cook along with Mitch, our author-chef, and you'll b lapping up the best Beef Stroganoff you ever had— an crunching into his equally good Salad Mitch Mille

Weekly TV shows (Friday on NBC) and countless "Sing Along records keep Mitch Miller so busy that he must confine his cook ing to weekends. This wasn't always so. A crowded, busy kitche has been part of Mitch's life all along. At canning time i Rochester, New York, where he grew up, Mitch and his brother and sisters pitched in to peel peaches and pears and get th cherries ready for the jars. The boys chopped the fish for thei mother's gefilte fish and were in charge of the meat grinde Later it was Mitch's special chore (and a tearful one, those wh know will agree) to grate horseradish for the family table. Mitc even had a brief professional fling at the food business— as youth, he was fountain manager of a big Rochester drugstore

There seems to come a time at our country house, late a night, when the gang has had enough of singing along wit Mitch or kibitzing along with Mitch or whatever. A hungry look comes into the neighbors' eyes, and a new course o action is clearly indicated: Cook along with Mitch.

Why me? I think there's an unwritten rule of thumb that applies in selecting the pigeon who's going to cook supper ir any group. Pick the guy with the beard. The rule may not work in beatnik circles, but it works in show business: Bur Ives, Sebastian Cabot, James Robertson-Justice, Pete Ustinov, good cooks all. And me.

I'm a social cook, working at my best when I'm being jostled by a kitchenful of people. And Beef Stroganoff is an easy thing to serve a lot of people at once. Besides, some of it can be prepared ahead. The following recipe I learned from Magdelin Dade, who has been our family's cook for thirty years. It's never failed me on our weekends in Rockland County when I've found myself in charge of the kitchen.

Beef Stroganoff. Remove fat and gristle from 2 pounds boneless beef chuck, cut ½ inch thick. Now cut the meat (across the grain) in strips, about 2 inches long, and sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt and the same amount of pepper.

Heat your skillet, add a stick of butter, and when it's melted and hot, put the meat in and saute quickly, tossing the strips around in the pan to brown evenly. Push meat to one side; add 4 sliced green onions (white part only) and cook slowly a few minutes or till transparent. Push onions aside; stir 5 tablespoons flour into the drippings.

Add a can of condensed beef broth and bring to boiling, stirring all the while. Turn heat down, stir in 1 teaspoon Dijon-style prepared mustard. Cover pan and simmer (that's a nice slow waltz in cooking) 1 hour or till meat is tender.

Five minutes before serving, drain a 6-ounce can of sliced mushrooms and add them along with ⅓ cup dairy sour cream and ⅓ cup sauterne. Heat briefly. Salt to taste and serve with Steamed Rice to six people. (It's easy to double or triple this recipe, which is what I usually do for parties.) I like to have some extra sour cream at hand and add a dollop of it cold to the hot beef as I'm eating.

Salad Mitch Miller. I've been serving this salad with Beef Stroganoff (and steaks) for years. For greens, I like a mixture of Bibb lettuce and tender spinach, carefully washed and dried, and broken (by hand) into large pieces. Don't chop it up; that's for coleslaw. The dressing has a lot of character without garlic, but if you are in the [Continued on page 90 mood for a garlicky dressing, you can add one to three cloves of garlic, crushed; or if there's time, notch several whole cloves of garlic and marinate them in the dressing for several hours or overnight.

Chop up 2 hard-cooked eggs, and with a fork, make a paste of the eggs with 1 teaspoon each salt and dry mustard, ½ teaspoon each pepper and basil. Add ¾ cup salad oil, ¼ cup wine vinegar, and perhaps a few squeezes of lemon juice for extra tartness. Now slice a medium-sized red onion into rings, and add. Shake everything together in a jar, and chill. Shake again just before serving. Don't put the dressing on the chilled greens until the moment you are ready to serve the salad. This way, the greens will stay crisp. Toss the salad with the dressing and onions, holding back a few rings of red onion to garnish the top of the salad bowl.

To go back to the steamed rice to serve with the Stroganoff. You don't need a rice recipe because the package tells how to cook it—that's why I'm leaving this subject until last. But just in case you'd like my favorite way, which is an Oriental method, here it is:

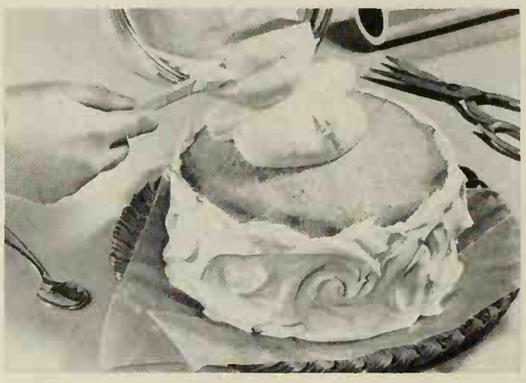
How to make a good cake better

High, light, and handsome cakes are yours—with reliable recipes and these rules: Read the recipe before mixing. Use quality ingredients that h come to room temperature. Measure accurately. Bake in pans called for.



Frosting. Crumbs are no problem if you er sides and top edge of cooled cake with layer of frosting. Then spread on lots mo crumbs won't mix with second coat.

Plate stays neat if 3 or 4 strips wax p are arranged to cover edge of plate (not ce —when cake is decorated, pull paper strips

Even heat. Baking two layers? Have rack in center of oven and place pans as shown—don't let them touch oven walls or each other. If baking several layers, stagger pans on two racks without having one pan directly over another.

The ABCs

How to cover your floors with style and beauty

Floor coverings give color, comfort, and easy care unde In addition to these winning qualities, a floor covering s be able to take lots of abuse and still wear for years.

Since floor covering is a major part of your color sc and budget, your first move in choosing one is deciding kind of wear it's going to get. Living rooms, entries, anc get the most traffic, while bedrooms get the least. In coverings, both smooth-surface and carpet, you can get of wear for a small price.

Many homemakers feel that they must choose be carpeting and smooth-surface floor covering. But the today is a combination of the two. (See color photo, pag

Versatile area rugs the combination easy, at the same time, solve decorating problems. an oblong area rug un furniture grouping in conversation spot. An rug in front of a sofa s be as long as the sofa. with a dining table and c a rug sets off that part room as a dining area. The rug should be large enough clude the chairs when people are seated around the tal

Area rugs are also useful in forming traffic lanes thr a room. They help direct people around a furniture grou not through it. These less-than-room-size rugs come in ally all shapes and sizes and a variety of daring color patterns. You can use them as an accent color or blend into your color scheme (see photo page 59). When you d to redecorate, you can adapt area rugs to other roor large area rug, for instance, can be used in a small bedr Since you can pick up area rugs for cleaning, and in r cases, turn them around for even wear, upkeep is low.

Wall-to-wall carpeting is a space expander for small rooms and especially suited for an irregularly shaped room. Because it covers the floor completely, it doesn't involve the double maintenance required by a combination of smooth surface and area rugs.

Room-size rugs are often practical. You can get a good-quality rug that nearly covers the floor without adding the cost of wall-to-wall installation. Remember, a quality room-size rug is a smarter investment than poority wall-to-wall carpeting.

Resilient floor coverings all give you the sleek, sm surface look—from the printed felt-base to the newest h inlaid vinyls. Of course, you'll want one of these sleek coverings for your kitchen. Most are grease- and soil-resi and require washing only every four weeks or so, pro spills are wiped up as they occur. Quiet cork, now w vinyl covering, is ideal for hallways and recreation room

Whatever you prefer—carpet, smooth surface, or a l of the two—there have never been so many ways to your floor fashionable.

Beef Pot Roast

A meal-in-one that's always a winner with the men—

Select a 3- to 4-pound chuck or rump pot roast. Trim off excess fat, and heat trimmings in Dutch oven or large skillet; when you have about 2 tablespoons melted fat, remove trimmings. For a rich brown, roll the pot roast in flour, then brown slowly on all sides in the hot fat. Season with salt and pepper.

Add ½ cup water. Cover tightly and cook slowly 2½ to 3 hours or till tender. (Add more water if needed to prevent sticking.) If desired, add small whole onions, carrots, and small or halved potatoes the last 45 minutes of cooking. Thicken liquid for Pot-roast Gravy, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Fruited Pot Roast: Cover 12 dried apricots and 12 dried prunes with water. Soak several hours. Meanwhile brown pot roast and season, as above; add 1½ cups sliced onions. Combine 1 cup apple cider, 2 tablespoons sugar, 3 whole cloves, and ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and ginger; pour half over meat. Cover; simmer 1 hour. Add remaining cider mixture; cook 1 to 1½ hours longer or till meat is tender. Drain fruits; place atop meat last ½ hour of cooking. Thicken liquid as for Pot-roast Gravy.

Pot-roast Gravy

Skim most of fat from meat stock. For 1½ to 2 cups stock, use these proportions: Put ½ cup cold water into a shaker, then add ¼ cup all-purpose flour on top; shake to mix. (Or place flour in small bowl. Stir in a little of the water to make smooth paste; then stir in remaining water).*

Remove stock from heat and slowly stir in flour mixture. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly, till gravy is bubbling all over. Now add gravy-making aid, if desired. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Continue cooking about 5 minutes more, stirring occasionally.

*Important in avoiding lumps: If using a shaker, water goes in first; if mixing in bowl, start with flour.

For tempting gravy, stir in your f gravy-making aid (a special bl vegetable juices, herbs, and seaso It gives gravy a richer brown flavor.

Peonies are my favorite flower, but I understand th not grow well in California. Is there any way to ha cess with them here? Mrs. N.S., Belmont, Cali

The reason most authorities give for not recomm peonies for the West is that the blooms are not as be as those that are grown in colder climates. This sh rule them out completely. You'd be surprised at t blooms I enjoyed for many years at a former reside mine in Burlingame—roughly 10 miles northward your home.

Be sure to ask your nurseryman for two-year-old They do best if planted in a light, well-drained soil i tial shade. There should not be more than 2 inches over the crown of the root. Be sure to plant them the month of October.

The azaleas I planted early last summer get "s every day. I added humus and rabbit manure to t that went in around the roots. What can I do t them? Mrs. A.W.S., Seattle, Washi

I find that more azaleas die from being planted to than from any other cause. The important thing is them in the ground a bit on the high side—an inch above the surrounding soil level. For some reason, a up of soil, or even of mulching materials around the of the plant seems to have a choking action result yellowed foliage and a general sickly appearance. A possibility is the rabbit manure might have been too This, too, could result in a burning action.

You should lift the plants very carefully this mont a ball of earth around the roots, and replant in deep planting holes filled back with nothing but old sa Don't clip the tops at this time. And please, no mo tilizer until late next April.

My lettuce has come up and formed a fine bunch of l but no heads. Why? T.E., Phoenix, A

I presume you have attempted to grow head lettuc ing the summer. It will not do well during this time o and will form poor heads or none at all. Leaf lettuc should be planted in late spring, summer, and earl Head lettuce is planted from late fall to early spring

What is a good reference book on rhododendron cu I would like one that explains in detail how to start plants from cuttings. Mrs. B.L.S., Salem, O

As you well know, you come from one of the best r dendron-growing areas in the whole world. I sugges purchase a copy of the Yearbook of the American R dendron Society to help you in growing this most bea shrub. O camellias bloom in early spring, and I would like to know when to fertilize them. W.A.B., Oakland, California

You'll get the best results with your camellias if you apply the first feeding soon after the flowers have finished blooming. Then follow with light applications once each month all through the summer until early September. There are both liquid and dry foods on the market now.

Personally, I prefer the liquid because there is virtually no danger of overfeeding. It is no trouble at all to load up your hose-end sprayer with the proper fertilizer and feed your whole collection in just a few minutes.

My new gardenia plant has been getting yellow leaves at the base. Can you tell me what is causing this and how I can stop it? B.K.C., San Francisco, California

Don't worry too much about the foliage on the gardenia. The weather is getting cooler and it is natural for gardenias to show signs of cold distress in this manner. It is a good idea to gradually reduce water so the plants will be in tougher condition to withstand any possible heavy frosts along in February and March. Then, in the spring, with the first flush of full growth, start feeding with an acid plant food once a month until the first of September. You are in a borderline gardenia area—they like more heat—so don't be disappointed if flowers aren't as large as those grown further south where it is warmer.

How can I encourage my pampas grass to have plumes? It is growing in full sun and reasonably good soil. It appears to be in good health. M.B.W., Reno, Nevada

Normally, it's pretty hard to stop these plants from growing like mad and yielding fine plumes. You are certainly growing the plant in the right spot—full sun, not too rich a soil, and moderate water. It is certainly not due to lack of heat, for my brother lives in Reno and I know from experience how warm your summers can be. The best pampas grass clumps I have ever seen were growing in a cliff of almost pure sand not far from Santa Barbara. The starved condition, both as to food and moisture content in the soil, seemed to be responsible for the extra fine crop. So do not feed or give any water to your plant next year, and hope for a change in its flowering habits.

I would like to know how often an avocado tree should be pruned, and when. M.L.R., Santa Monica, California

Avocados do not need regular pruning. Prune only to remove ill-shaped limbs or dead wood.

Would it take long for me to grow a redwood tree from seed? Mrs. L.McB., Santa Barbara, California

May I suggest that you start with a young redwood rather than try to get one from a seed? You will save a lot of time and be assured success by beginning with a husky plant that is well started.

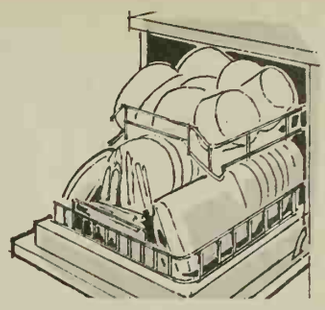
low to get the most rom your dishwasher

Water temperature: Water of the proper tempera-ture means better soil removal, more complete sanita-tion, and faster drying of the dishes. Some dishwashers have a built-in water heater or hot water tank to heat water—neither the washing nor the rinsing action starts until water temperature is correct. Do not confuse these heating its, though, with the units which, in other dishwashers, simply aintain temperature. The hot water entering dishwashers with-t built-in water heaters should be 150° to 160°. Water tempera-re is affected both by your home's water heater control setting ould be set to 150°-160°) and the distance the water must trav-from the heater to the dishwasher. The farther the water must vel, the greater the drop in temperature. For dishwashers with-t a prerinse cycle, drain the cold water out of the water faucet in sink until hot water flows. This insures hot water for the wash cle. In machines with a prerinse, the line is automatically ained, except in cases where the distance between the water ater and the dishwasher is too great. The hot water is cooled by cold dishes and interior of the machine as it enters the dish-sher. This is why many manufacturers use a heating unit in the shwasher to raise or maintain the water temperature during cycle and/or to provide heated air for drying. Spots and film-g on glasses and flatware can result from water temperature ich is not high enough as well as from hard water and water th high mineral content.



Loading: Getting the dishes ready for loading is easy. Refer to the manufacturer's instruction book on preparation of dishes. With many models of the past few years, it is not necessary to pre-rinse the dishes. Simply scrape the large or loose food particles. However, if the dishes are to stand overnight, it is helpful to rinse starchy and excessively greasy dishes. Many dishwashers have a setting for rinsing the dishes in the machine rather than hand rinsing prior to loading. The dishes may then be left until a full load accumulates (for economy). Utensils which would require a presoak for hand dishwashing re-quire the same treatment for a dishwasher. Some homemakers prefer to let the dishwasher do what it can first and then do a touch-up after they come out of the dishwasher. Many recent models have a pots and pans cycle specially designed for washing loads of heavily soiled utensils.

Load the dishwasher so the water may move freely to all areas. Again, refer to the instruction book for detailed information on the loading and placement of various items in the dishwasher. Some additional suggestions to follow are: place pans, bowls, and platters so the water can reach the soil and the water can drain from them. Mix pieces in the silverware basket to prevent nesting. Place cups and glasses bottom-side-up or tilted, to catch the full force of the water and permit good drainage. Place aluminum ware away from the detergent dispenser. Some colored aluminum ware may be damaged by hot water and detergent action. It should be washed in the dishwasher only upon the recommenda-tion of the manufacturer. Heat-resistant plastic (melamine) can be placed anywhere in the dishwasher. But hand-wash thermo-plastics (polystyrene and polyethylene). [Continued on page 109

Most fine china can be washed in a dishwasher. If there is any uestion, check with the china manufacturer, or wash a small iece for several weeks with the regular load; then compare. An- que or hand-painted china should be washed by hand rather ıan in the dishwasher as the high water temperature and dish- asher detergents will cause the pattern to fade.

Detergents: Always use the low-sudsing detergents developed specifically for use in automatic dishwashers. Regular soaps and detergents prevent the dishwasher from doing a good job. (You might also end up with a sudsy kitchen floor.)

Since water conditions vary, try several brands to find the one that gives the best results. Use most of the box before making a decision.

Use the proper amount of detergent. It should be measured according to the dishwasher manufacturer's instructions, or the irections on the detergent box. Generally, the amount to use deends upon the mineral content of the water, the amount and ype of soil on the dishes. Many models have dual detergent disensers. For normal food soil, single detergent wash, fill one secon of the dispenser; for heavy soil (grease, lipstick), fill both secons for a double detergent wash (prerinse becomes first detergent ash). Too little detergent causes greasy film or food stains on ıe dishes. The dispenser should be dry when the detergent is dded; a damp dispenser can cause undissolved detergent to reıain in it. For best results, the detergent should be put in the dispenser or machine just prior to starting the dishwasher.

A rinse-agent dispenser found on many models automatically injects a wetting agent into the final rinse. Under most water conditions, this results in sparkling dishes. The rinse water flows more freely and drains more completely from the dishes, reducing the formation of water droplets which, when dried, cause unsightly spots on glasses, silverware, and dishes.

A dishwasher can be a real friend if used frequently and to the fullest. The more it is used, the more know-how you will gain.

Below are some tricks you'll want to use often.

- Use it to warm clean dishes before a meal. Plate-warming makes use of the dry setting of the cycle. Load clean plates in the usual manner, advance the control dial to the dry setting, and start the machine. In a few minutes, the dishes are warm and ready for use. Many dishwashers today have a special Plate Warming Cycle incorporated into the controls. Refer to the instruction book for specific instructions on how to use it.
- Store soiled dishes in the machine and keep kitchen counter tops clear for work space. This keeps the kitchen always looking "slicked up."
- Let the dishwasher help with house cleaning to remove dust from company dishes and the special-occasion crystal.
- Set the table directly from the dishwasher. Dishes get handled only once.
- Pots and pans can be washed while eating dinner. Baking day is lots simpler with the dishwasher to do the utensils as soon as you are finished with them.
- To do two loads in a hurry, open the door at the end of the final rinse and pull out the racks; most of the dishes will "air-dry" by the time they're cool enough to remove. Place the next load in the dishwasher.

How to with pie

Pumpkin Pie

If you like a gently spiced, golden pie, choose the amounts of spice given first in the recipe. The larger amounts give a filling with full-bodied flavor and deep color—

1½ cups canned or mashed cooked pumpkin
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 to 1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
½ to 1 teaspoon ginger
¼ to ½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ to ½ teaspoon cloves

3 slightly beaten eggs
1¼ cups milk
1 6-ounce can (⅔ cup) evaporated milk

1 9-inch unbaked pastry shell

Thoroughly mix pumpkin, sugar, salt, and spices. Blend in eggs, milk, and evaporated milk. Pour into unbaked pastry shell (crimp edges high—filling is generous). Bake in hot oven (400°) 50 minutes or till knife inserted halfway between center and edge comes out clean—see picture below. Cool before serving. Trim with giant California walnut halves.

All-American Apple Pie

This favorite is even better topped with vanilla ice cream and drizzled with maple syrup—

6 or 7 tart apples*
¾ to 1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ to 1 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash each nutmeg and salt

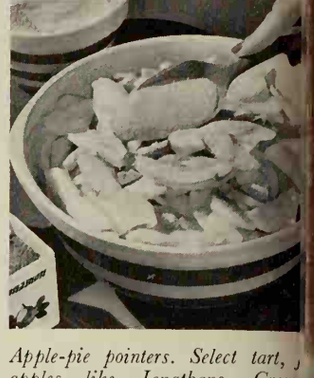
1 recipe Plain Pastry
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Pare apples and slice thin (¼ inch)—for a nice fat pie, you'll need 6 cups sliced apples. Combine sugar, flour, spices, and salt; mix with apples. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry; fill with apple mixture and dot with butter. Adjust top crust, fluting edge; sprinkle top with sugar for sparkle. Gently fold a strip of foil or pie tape around rim of crust, covering fluted edge. (This keeps juices in pie, guards against boil-over in oven and over-browning.) Bake in hot oven (400°) 55 to 60 minutes or till apples are done. Serve warm.

*If apples lack tartness, sprinkle with 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Better Homes & Gardens Test Kitchen note: To save time, you may use 2 No. 2 cans (5 cups) sliced pie apples, drained.



Apple-pie pointers. Select tart, j apples like Jonathans, Green Staymans—later use Winesaps.

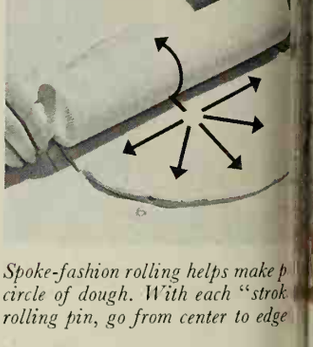
Pare and core apples, then cut in slices. Combine sugar mixture g with apples so slices won't break.

Plain Pastry

Remember to use a light touch to always handle the dough as l as possible—

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup shortening
5 to 7 tablespoons cold water

Sift together flour and salt; cu shortening with pastry blende blending fork till pieces are size of small peas. Sprinkle 1 ta spoon of the water over part of t ture. Gently toss with fork; pus side of bowl. Sprinkle next ta spoon water over dry part; lightly; push to moistened pa side. Repeat till all is moiste Form in ball. For double-crust divide dough for lower and u crust. Form each in ball. Fla ball slightly and roll ⅛ inch t on a lightly floured surface. M enough pastry for one 9- or 10- double-crust pie or two single-c pies.



Spoke-fashion rolling helps make p circle of dough. With each "strok rolling pin, go from center to edge

How to choose and use colors with confidence

Color should be fun to use—not frightening. Once you understand the traits of color and some basic principles, you can color your home with confidence—and enjoy doing it.

You probably have more skill with color than you realize. For instance, most women are keenly aware of the difference between a lipstick with a cool bluish-red tone and another with a warm orange-red cast. Both lipsticks are considered red, but there's a big difference. The same is true with color in your home. Paints, carpeting, or wallpaper can be red, but either a cool or a warm red, depending on the amount of blue or orange added to the primary color.

To state another color characteristic, bright colors advance while light colors recede. It's the bright red car or orange taxi in the supermarket parking lot that catches your eye, while the misty gray car is scarcely noticed—unless, of course, it's yours. In your home, bright colors will stand out. A vivid blue on the walls will tend to make the walls come toward you, while a pastel blue or very light color will make the walls recede. This principle lets you paint your room to make it look larger than it really is.

Color is affected by its neighbors. You know that if you used a bright yellow cushion with a gold sofa, the cushion would seem drab, but the same cushion would look very bright on a black sofa. Next time you're buying paint or draperies, remember color will be affected by colors around it.

Now, how do you choose the right color for a room? You buy clothes because you like their color, or buy a car because the color is pleasing to you—why not let your instinct decide what colors you use in your home? If you like green, use green! Just remember, there are warm greens and cool greens, and which you select may depend on the location of your room. If it's a bright, sunny room, you'll want to select a green that has a cooling blue in it. If the room tends to be dark, brighten it with a yellow green.

Distribution of the colors you choose is important, too. In dressing, you know when you're overdoing accent colors. In your home, the same principle applies. Remember, unequal amounts of color are more interesting. Use your accent colors sparingly, and they'll be more emphatic.

Remember these shopping tips when you've decided on your colors: Always work with the largest samples you can. Small bits of color, when isolated, can be misleading. So if you're buying carpeting and you want it to blend with your sofa, take a cushion with you . . . or bring a large carpet sample into your home. Always make your selection under lighting similar to that of your room. Fluorescent light is much different from daylight, so don't let it fool you. Always shop for a blending color rather than a perfectly matched color. Flat paint, silky drapery, and fuzzy carpet will never look identical in color because of the difference in surfaces. The trend is to blend, rather than match colors.

If you keep the characteristics of color in mind, work with colors you particularly like, and follow the rules for color shopping, you're going to find decorating your home an exciting new experience—and a very rewarding one.

How to group accessories for that final touch

Accessories can be almost anything—but are alwa stamp of your personality. They can add spark to ever in the home, and choosing and arranging them is th touch in decorating. They can be moved easily, are useful, and are always decorative. For example, paintings, sculpture, and plants are decorative; while lamps, ash trays, clocks, mirrors, and pillows are useful and decorative, too.

Arranging accessories into eye-pleasing compositions is a common problem. But with these simple guides, you can hardly go wrong, whether you're creating a wall arrang or planning a coffee table grouping.

Balance is basic to any accessory grouping. The sk of accessorized fireplaces illustrate this rule. Each m piece has objects at both In the sketch above, id objects have been pla each end. This is ca formal arrangement. candlesticks and a p are balanced by a pla lamp in the sketch a left. This balance of objects is known as an mal arrangement. See lustrated in color, pa

Place accessories on a table top so that you have left to use. Use low objects on a coffee table so, when s you can see across the table. Choose accessories that are scaled to the size of the table as in the sketch at right. Another principle to remember is that a few important objects are more effective than many small ones. For instance, see how the tables are accessorized on page 54.

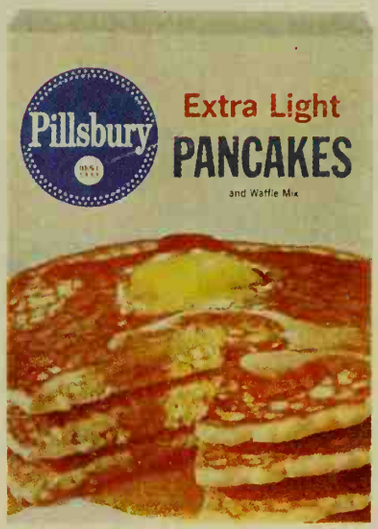
Now, the modern pancake: what makes it so old-fashioned?



Pillsbury Extra-Light Pancakes... the first really modern pancake mix. It's a new recipe. With a remarkable new idea in leavening that keeps the batter creamy-light, so you get consistently light pancakes the whole batch through. With a blend of three flours: soft wheat for tenderness; corn and rye for color and mellow taste. Makes wonderful old-fashioned pancakes. And that's the paradox. How can a pancake that's so modern be so old-fashioned good? Next time you crave old-fashioned pancakes, try the modern pancake mix: Pillsbury Extra-Light Pancakes. Then you'll know.

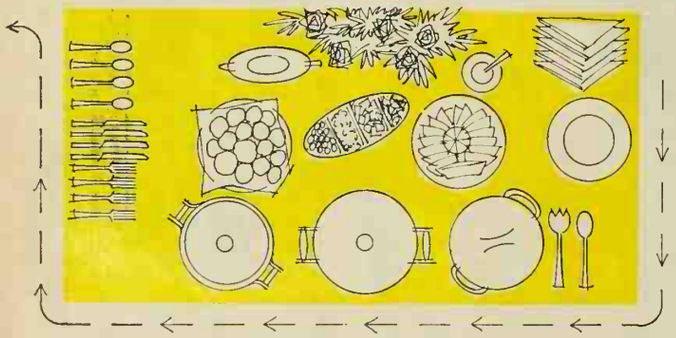
A bunch for lunch or dinner

We show six, but if you have a long table, use it! Meat or main dish goes in front of the host; hostess serves the rest. We suggest completing each person's plate before the the next is started, to avoid confusion. Guest at host's right is served first. Many children? Smallest first!

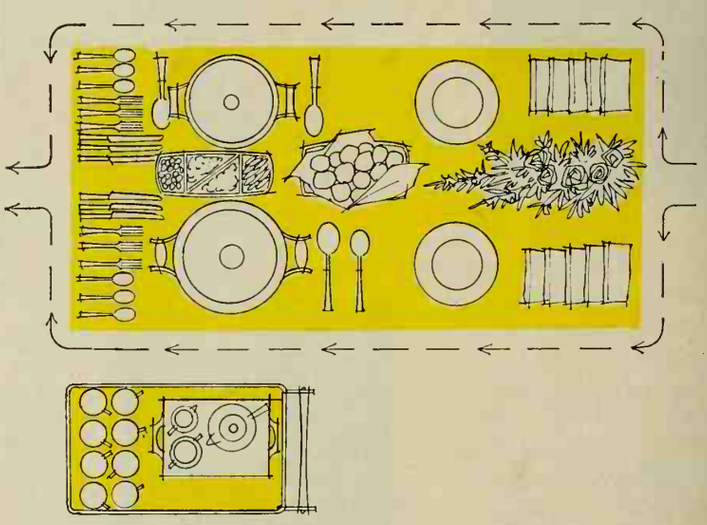
Help-yourself brunch, lunch, suppe

Here the table is nicely organized for a sit-dow meal, but guests help themselves. Utilize buffet fo hot dishes, roasts, other food. Each person picks u his plate and fills it at the buffet. Individual salad and juices can be ready at each place setting, thu eliminating the need to pass a large salad bowl o carry two plates at one time.



Small and skillful buffet

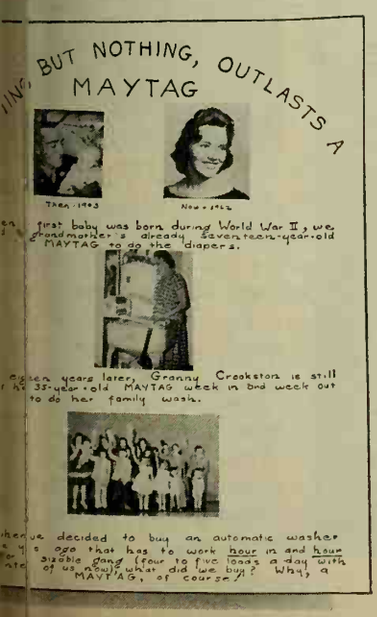
Try the table backed against the wall, even if it means change. Centerpiece should be placed at rear center. This is the traditional buffet setting, allowing people to pick up napkins, plates, then serve themselves to hot food at front, rolls and relishes at rear, and finally pick up flatware at the end of the buffet. Fine for limited space.



Buffet for a crowd

Here is an example of an informal buffet, with the table in the center of the room. There are duplicate settings on each side of the table, so guests can peel off in two groups, starting with napkins and ending with silver. Try centerpiece between the napkins for a change. Coffee and dessert are placed on handy serving cart.

Mrs. Ray Crookston, mother of 15, writes a Maytag ad for us



At left is the ad exactly as Mrs. Crookston sent it to us from Provo, Utah. It reads:

"Nothing, but nothing, outlasts a Maytag... when our first baby was born during World War II we used her grandmother's already seventeen-year-old MAYTAG to do the diapers.

"Now, eighteen years later, Granny Crookston is still using her 35-year-old MAYTAG week in and week out to do her family wash.

"So, when we decided to buy an automatic washer, three years ago, that has to work hour in and hour out for our sizable gang (four to five loads a day with 17 of us now), what did we buy? Why, a MAYTAG, of course!"

Add a personal touch. Here a few Brazil-nut Daisies turn an ordinary loaf cake into one that's a spectacular.

To make daisies, cover unshelled Brazils with cold water; simmer 3 minutes; drain. Let nuts stand in cold water just a minute; drain, crack, and shell.

Cover shelled nuts with cold water; simmer 2 to 3 minutes; drain. With vegetable parer, cut thin, lengthwise slices for petals. Place around cherries.

Create design, texture with this sophisticated finish. Simply circle walnut halves on top of frosted cake; press chopped ones against sides.

For a children's or holiday cake, why not switch to a design of peppermint-stick candy? Crush some for sides.

Frosting itself can be textured. Swirl fluffy frosting, using tip of spoon or spatula. For confectioners' frosting, crisscross with fork tines.

How to be great with garnishes

Like a master's finishing stroke, a hand garnish completes your cake, casserole, or platter. It can add color accents and app appeal, and perhaps double as a flavor ac paniment, too. The trick is to keep your nishes simple, fresh-looking, and in key the food they are to trim.

Have a center of interest on a plain casserole. For trim, it's smart to call on a suitable casserole ingredient, or a food that's a flavor complement.

If a truck driver lives at your house, better get Gulistan Carpet

It's surprising how much pressure a small boy can apply to carpet, especially on the edges of stairs. That's why Gulistan tests every batch of yarn for strength and springiness, then tests samples of every new carpet with an abrasive wheel for more than 24 hours. If the pile fiber shows excessive wear, you never get a chance to buy that carpet.

Know What You Are Getting

The abrasion wear test is just one of the ways Gulistan protects you. Gulistan Carpets are constantly subjected to pounding, pulling, tearing, and glare; to hard vacuuming and accepted cleaning. They must pass laboratory tests and the kind of tests your family gives carpet . . . tests for resistance to soil, for easy cleanability, for appearance retention. Every Gulistan Carpet must pass 12 tests and 13 to 14 inspections.

Another protection, important to you: every Gulistan Carpet is permanently mothproofed.

First Performance Rated* Carpets

Gulistan has been setting standards for the carpet industry for over half a century. Now Gulistan is first to give you a clear and honest guide to the wearing quality of carpet: the Performance Rated label on the back of every Gulistan Carpet. It helps you choose your carpet wisely, by the way you plan to use it.

Choose Wisely, Confidently

There are four Performance Ratings: for Heavy Use, Medium-Heavy Use, Standard Use, Light Use. Now you can know how your carpet will wear before you buy it. Know you are getting your money's worth.

Price is no longer the only guide to quality. For instance, the most expensive Gulistan Carpet Performance Rated for Medium-Heavy Use is $13.95 per square yard. The least costly is $8.95. Choose either, confidently.

Good Housekeeping Guaranty

Your Gulistan Carpet has the Good Housekeeping Guaranty Seal, too. This is an extra assurance that careful people are checking on careful people.

Most Beautiful Colors, Textures

Now, which of Gulistan's 41 styles and 500 colors will you choose? All you have to wonder about is which color and style you like best. Gulistan takes care of the wear. Gulistan® Carpet, A. & M. Karagheusian, Inc., 295 Fifth Avenue, New York 16, N.Y. ©1962.

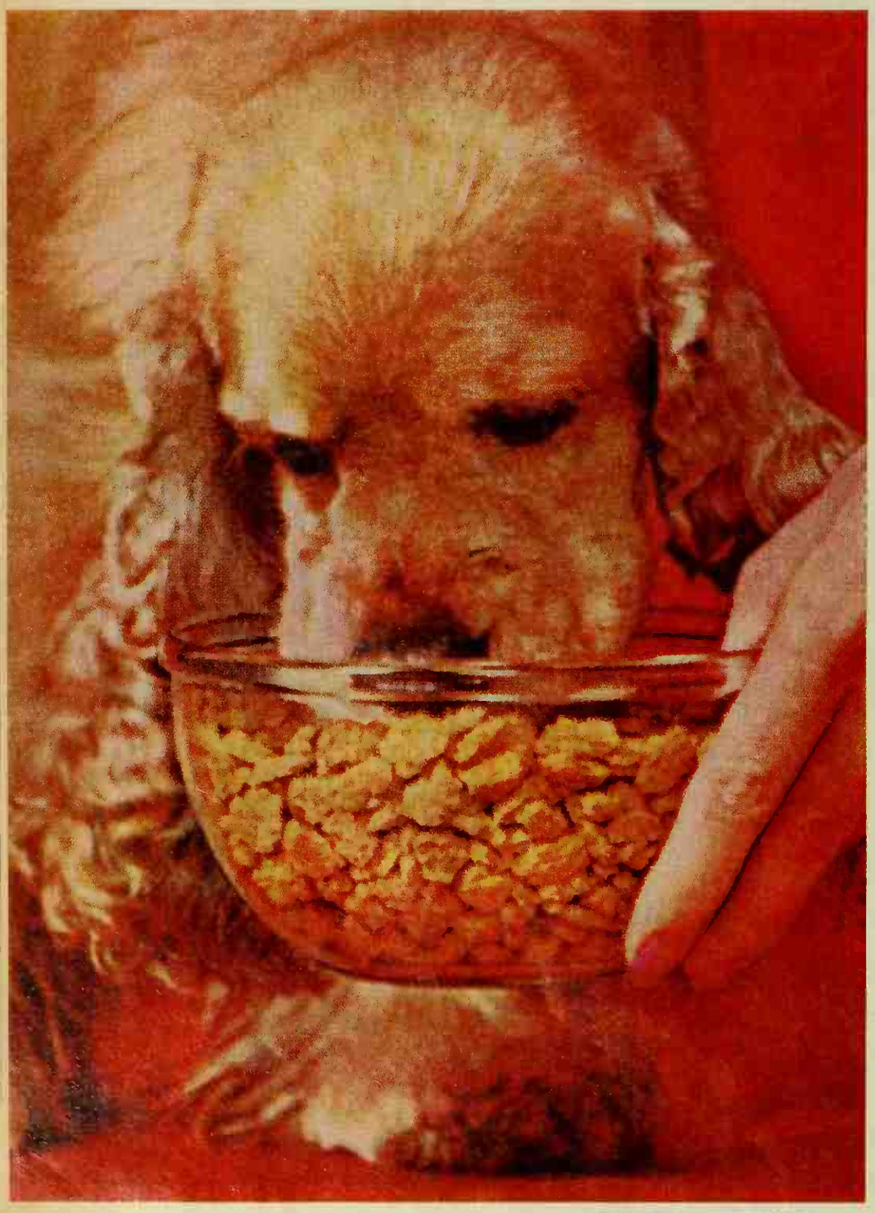
A complete, balanced diet, Ken-L Biskit satisfies all seven of your dog's food needs and cravings:

oven-roasted for YOUR DOG'S "SEVEN HUNGERS"

- Aroma—for appetite
- Texture—for eating pleasure
- Calories—for energy
- Proteins—for muscle
- Minerals—for bones
- Vitamins—for condition
- Concentrated form—for satisfaction without overeating



With Ken-L Biskit you feed less, cup for cup; because it's concentrated. In every bite, your dog gets more satisfying, solid food... oven-roasted for extra flavor and digestibility. Official food at more American Kennel Club Shows than all other dog foods combined.

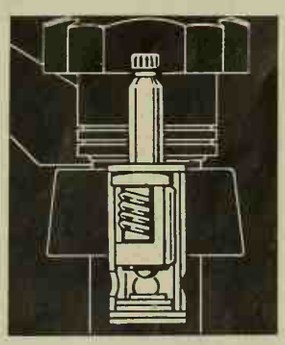
... and still no drip from this Kohler faucet!

We still don't know what it takes to wear out a Kohler faucet, because the testing machine broke down. But one thing's for sure: equip the plumbing in your home with Kohler All-Brass faucets and fittings, and you've practically whipped the expense and annoyance of leaky faucets.

Chief reason is the Valvet—the working part of the Kohler faucet. It moves up and down like a piston to let the water in...and shut it off. This reduces washer wear—washer changing.



This same concern for functional perfection (as well as beautiful appearance) goes into everything Kohler makes for your bathroom—including lavatories, bath tubs, water closets (and sinks for your kitchen).

If the mileage on your Kohler faucet gets so high that your Valvet wears out—just drop a new one in. That's all. No mess, no bother, no special tools.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

STOPS ITCH — RELIEVES PAIN

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all — results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

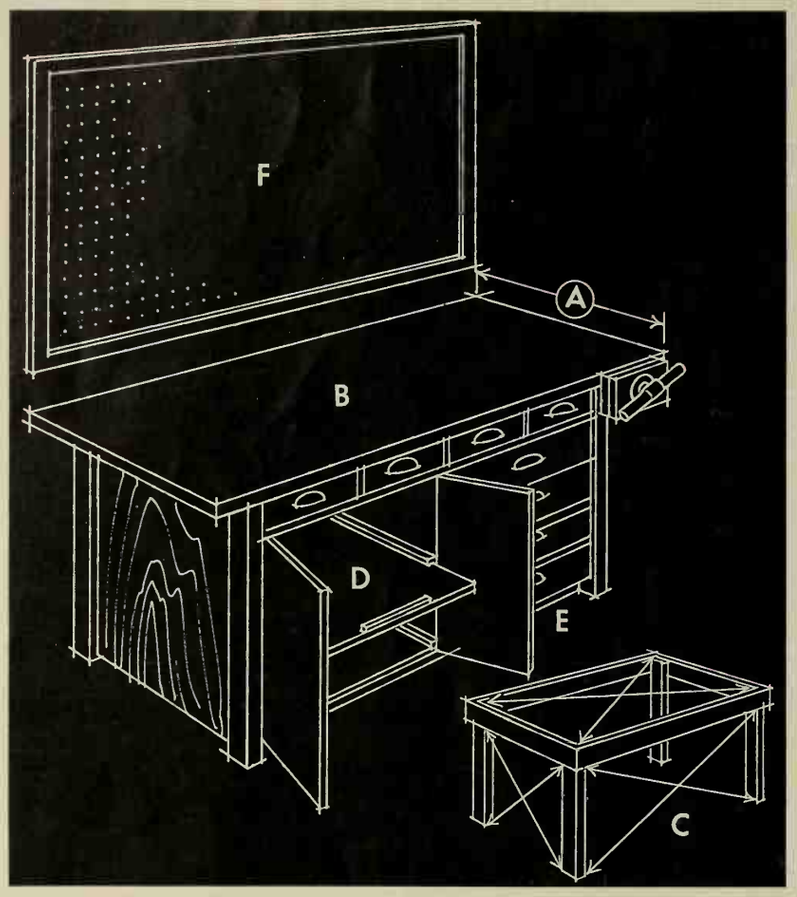
How to plan a workbench that's right for you

The ABCs



When planning the workbench that will best suit your shop, keep the following ideas in mind.

A The width of the bench top is more important than the length. Don't make it too wide, however, or you won't be able to comfortably reach across it to the tool board. 30x60 inches is a good size for most small workshops. To reduce stooping, the bench top should be just as high as the top of your hip bone. This will be around 42 inches if you're of average height.

B The bench top should overhang the lower framework by 2 inches in front and 6 inches at the ends, to let you clamp work to the top and to provide space for a vise. A piece of ¾-inch plywood makes a good top. Cover the top with ⅛-inch hardboard fastened on with brads but no glue. When top becomes marred, turn it over.

C Sturdiness is important in a workbench, so carefully plan for diagonal bracing. Plywood ends and back, plus bench top provide bracing easily. ¼-inch plywood is heavy enough for end and back bracing. You might want to move your bench sometime, so don't build it too big to get out of the shop. If you don't build in doors and drawers, plan construction for easy addition of them later.

D The number and sizes of drawers and shelves in your bench depend on what you'll be storing there. The best all-around system is a series of large and small drawers s some shelves. Shallow drawers just under bench top are great for storing edge tools fasteners. Shelves are less expensive to n than drawers and are better for storing b tools and material. Pull-out-type she eliminate a lot of fumbling and stoop Hang doors over shelves to make shop cl ing easier.

E Plan for toe room under the front of bench, but add a board across the bac the front legs to keep shavings from accu lating under the bench.

F Don't fasten the tool board to the be Pounding and other heavy work will c the tools to vibrate off. Leave enough s between the bench top and the bottom of the tool board for easy cleaning. The l tion of your bench is a major factor in p ning the design. Usually, a location ag the longest wall in your shop is best. A room to work around both ends of the be Remember that you might have long bo that will extend a considerable distance the ends of your bench, so don't crowd it closely. In a small shop, locate the benc let work extend out a doorway. If you l lots of space, you might consider an is workbench that sits in the middle of room. You can work on all sides of it v assembling large projects, and it m handling of sheet material easier.

Should gardeners stop dusting and spraying?

Right now, in some circles, there is quite an uproar the use of chemical insecticides and weed killers. We refe course, to the recent New Yorker magazine series (and bo "The Silent Spring" by Rachel Carson.

The report is well documented and is disturbing in the r profound sense. It points up tragic carelessness in the la scale uses of today's chemical killers—on our farms, along roadsides, in parks, streams, lakes. Strong control laws already on the books, and strong steps must be taken to force them. No editor here believes otherwise.

But what are the implications for the home garde Should you be panicked into throwing out all your dusts sprays? Well, if you're going to use them carelessly, the swer is yes. Throw them out. There is, however no real r for such drastic action if you exercise caution and modera in the use of these chemicals.

It is true that there are many natural insect controls fo enemies in our gardens. And many of them have been in duced for commercial projects with favorable results. does not include the small gardener like you and me. W are we going to get these biological controls, and how lon we have to wait to get them?

We are faced with problems of immediacy. We have inv ed money in our gardens. We put a lot of work into them. do not set out ornamental plants deliberately to feed inse To protect out investment and maintain the beauty we h planned, we must spray or dust.

I have not yet come across a report on natural controls tells an ordinary gardener the amount he needs in an ave garden to do the job so well that chemical controls ca eliminated. Lady bugs are supposed to consume aphids the hundreds. I sometimes wonder if this happens onl laboratories, because lady bugs have never been efficien my garden. It will be said that I don't have enough? Obvi ly. And praying mantises have never impressed me as li up to their reputation as decimators of enemy insects- though they certainly are entertaining to observe whe action.

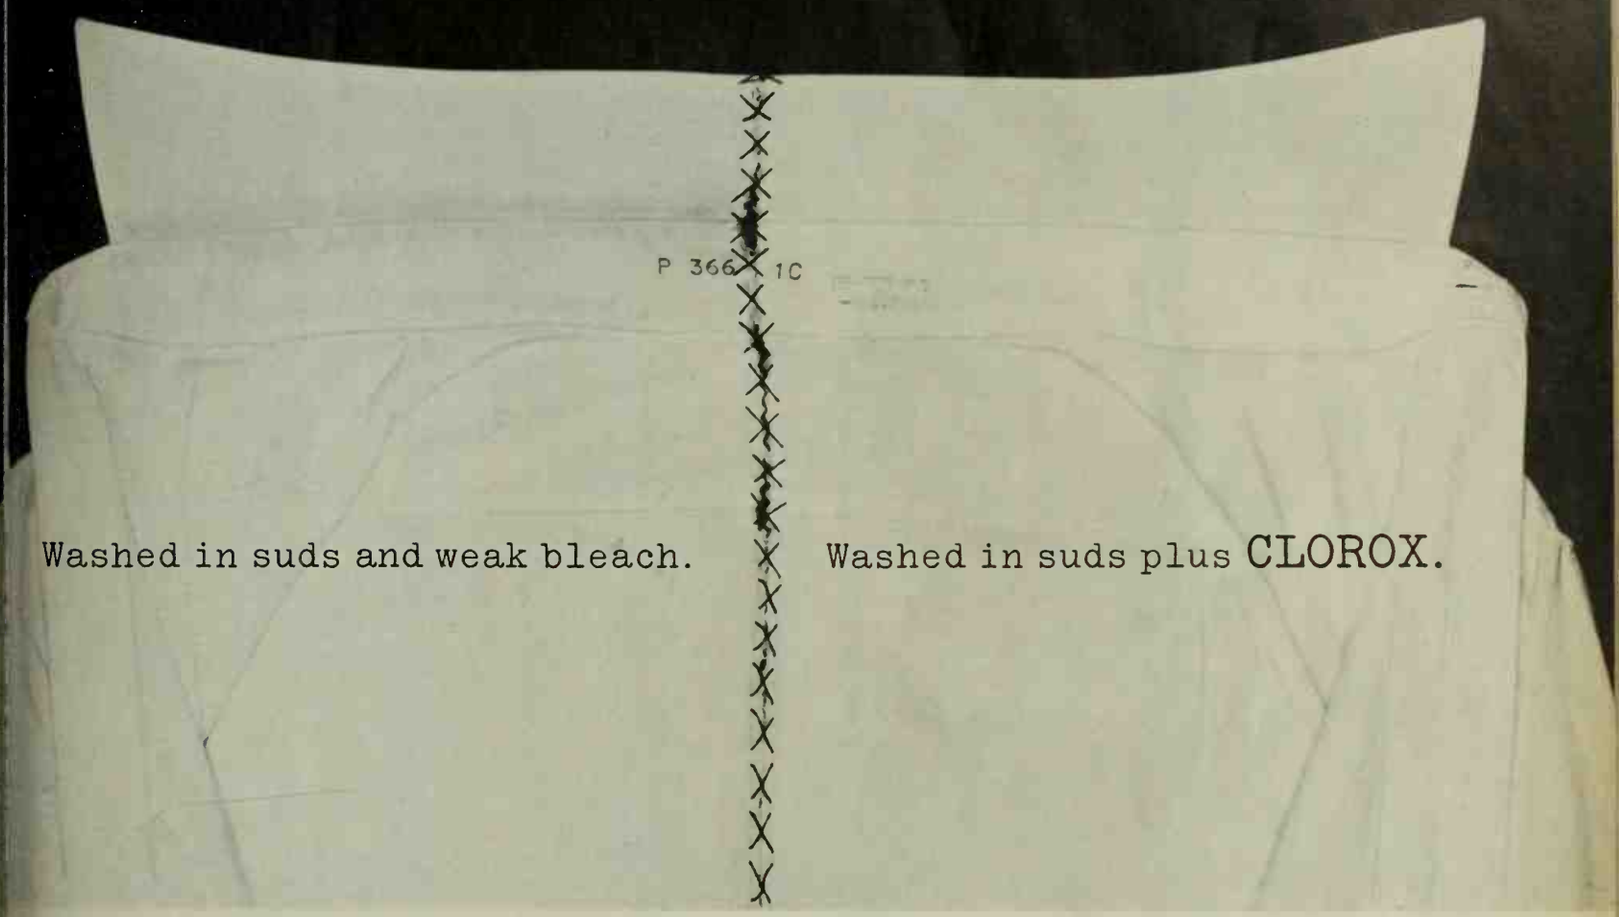
I must admit, though, that I have never had the will po to sit back for two or three years—or however many it require—and let my garden go to pot until natural preda could move in and get everything under control.

But I have had the will power to use pesticides with crimination and caution. I realize that any material wi capacity to kill may also be harmful to me, so I have greatest respect for it when putting it to its proper use— as I do when handling a knife, glass, medicines, power t cleaning fluids, and a host of other everyday necessities.

I read the small print on bottles and boxes, which should do, too. I use only the amounts of an insecticid fungicide recommended by the manufacturer. I don't fi that if a little does good, a lot will do better. And I spra dust on a windless day—selectively, where needed—not reckless abandon. You do the same, please!

Hamilton Mason, Garden E

Split-shirt test shows why your suds need the added cleaning power of CLOROX®



Washed in suds and weak bleach.

Washed in suds plus CLOROX.

You can see the difference!

The shirt above was normally worn and washed several times. After the last wearing, it was cut in two. Half was laundered with detergent and a weak bleach; the other half with the same detergent . . . plus Clorox bleach.

The results demonstrate why you should launder with Clorox every time: the added cleaning power of Clorox gets out dirt that suds and weak bleach leave in. You'll find that your whole family wash, from shirts to bed sheets, comes out cleaner with Clorox.

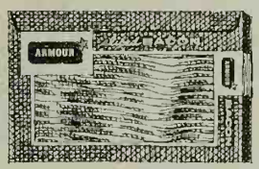
ARMOUR REPORTS TO THE CONSUMER

READING TIME 2:10 MINUTES



How you can recognize bacon that will fry crisp

Look carefully at the uncooked slice of Armour Star bacon on the adjoining page. It is a fine example of the crisp frying kind.

You will notice it is not an excessively lean bacon, and therein lies the secret of crispness. Too much lean is what makes a bacon tough and stringy.

The amount of lean that a bacon has is determined by the age of the pig and what it has been fed. Armour selects from hard-grain fed pigs that are brought to market at their tendermost age—6 to 8 months. They produce the kind of bacon that you see illustrated. That cooked slice is every bit as crisp and tender as it looks.

If you and your family would like to know where to find this kind of bacon —look for the bright red package with the Armour Star.

Armour Star Franks don't really need any more cooking

Everyone grills or broils or simmers Armour Star Franks. The heat makes them a little more juicy, it's true.

Actually, these Armour Star Franks have been cooked and smoked as long as 2½ hours, at temperatures up to 160 degrees. They are fully-cooked before you see them at the store.

For a change someday, make a cold-dog. Some people think they taste every bit as good as when they're hot. They're every bit as good for you. Armour Star Franks have a balance of nourishment value that equals sirloin steak pound for pound.

The reason the "Ham-What-Am" costs so little to serve

It has been said many times in these advertisements that the "Ham-What-Am" is one of the most economical hams to serve. This is true because it is all meat. What you cannot eat has been trimmed away.

Were you to prepare a ham as the "Ham-What-Am" is prepared, you would throw away the bone, gristle and fat that you trim off. Armour is able to make good use of them. This is what keeps the cost of the "Ham-What-Am" to about 29c a serving.

You can hardly afford not to serve it often.

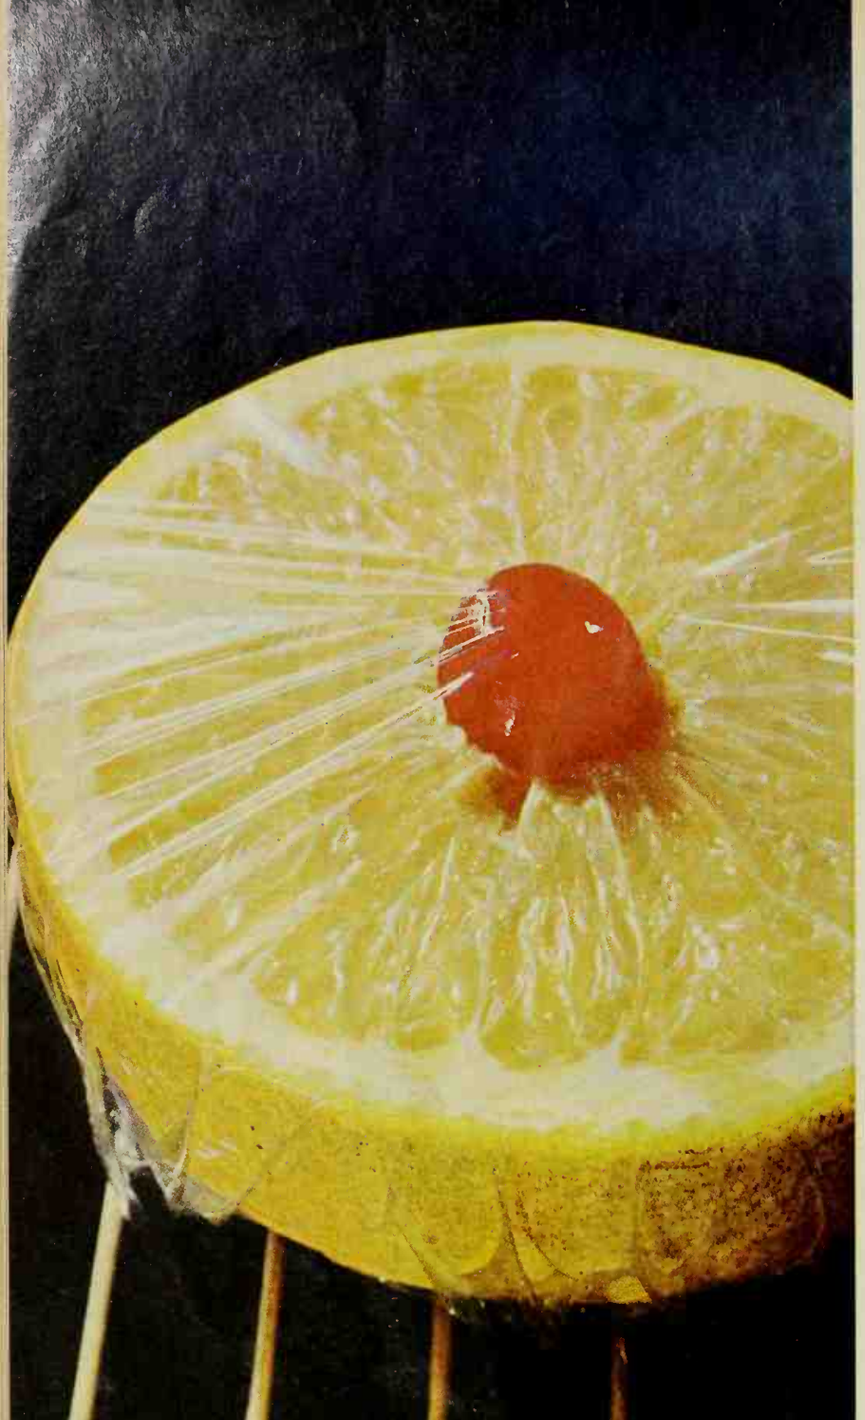
Have you heard about the new "meat" breed of pigs?

The old breed of pigs was raised and fed to produce a large amount of fat, principally for lard. They were brought to market only after they had reached full maturity and weight.

Today, farmers are raising a lean variety of pig, fed on hard grains and marketed at an early age. Pork from them is one of the leanest meats you can buy. It's abundant in thiamin, food iron and complete protein. (An average serving of "Ham-What-Am" provides almost half of your daily protein requirements.)

Armour buys these new meat type pigs, and Armour Star products are made from them.

The meats that wear the Armour Star are the meats the butcher brings home



'twas the night before breakfast

And breakfast was made.

Such a special breakfast, too: grapefruit—halved, sectioned, marinated with sugar, wrapped and refrigerated. All done while you have the time.

Come morning: a wonderful surprise for your family. How good and clean and fresh a grapefruit tastes when the sugar's been allowed to soak through all night long!

Nicest thing of all: you'll have time to enjoy your own grapefruit, along with compliments from a happier, healthier family. Try it soon and see.

THE BEST OF TWO WORLDS! SUBURBAN PLEASURES—BIG-CITY CONVENIENCES!

RIO RANCHO ESTATES is only five minutes away from one of the fastest-growing, friendliest "sunshine resort" cities in the world. In metropolitan Albuquerque you'll find the finest in educational, cultural and medical facilities—church, social and fraternal activities—well-stocked shops and department stores—a big university, theatres, restaurants, rodeos, fairs and fiestas, college and professional sports. A major city that offers well-paying part- or full-time jobs plus a wealth of career and business opportunities—a world of culture; art, concerts, crafts and hobbies.

LET ALBUQUERQUE'S LAND BOOM MAKE MONEY FOR YOU!

If you had invested $1,000 in choice land at Albuquerque, New Mexico, 20 years ago, before the city's fantastic 700% population increase, your land today would be worth at least $20,000 to $30,000—with the end nowhere in sight. With 274,000 people living here today, and booming Albuquerque expected to add more people in the next nine years than in all its previous history . . . land prices, which have been doubling and redoubling every few years, are now starting to skyrocket!

At this very moment you still have a chance to get in on the amazing profit potential of choice property at this booming Southwest resort paradise for as little as $1 down, $10 a month. A chance for you to own a rambling ranch-type estate in a scenic Western setting along the banks of the romantic Rio Grande River, where hundreds of friendly families are now building homes . . . an area so attractive, so desirable, and growing so rapidly that land today is bringing up to $4500 or more an acre right to our property lines!

NOW COMES YOUR CHANCE TO BUY LAND AT A FRACTION OF CURRENT PRICES!

Yes, with competitive land already $4,500 to $12,000 an acre right up to our very doors, the one and only place at Albuquerque where you can still buy choice homesite land at far below current market prices is RIO RANCHO ESTATES, where you pay pennies instead of dollars in comparison with every other choice piece of land in sight. Only $795 for a half-acre site! You get a big piece of property equal to more than 10½ standard 20' x 100' city lots . . . at a low, low price that figures out to less than $74 a lot. Nowhere else in the Southwest can you buy a choice ½-acre site so low in price—so close to a major city—and on easy terms as low as $10 monthly.

THIS LAND BARGAIN CAN'T BE MATCHED ANYWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST

Whether for investment, a new life now, or for eventual retirement, you can make Albuquerque's golden future your future. It's easy to take advantage of this special offer. There's absolutely no risk or obligation on your part at all.

The Reservation Coupon, accompanied by a refundable $1 good faith deposit, reserves a valuable ½-acre or larger estate for you at beautiful RIO RANCHO ESTATES. We'll rush you a free Property Owner's Kit containing a CERTIFIED LAND MAP showing the exact site we have chosen for you, along with descriptions in such detail it's like standing on the property at RIO RANCHO ESTATES and inspecting the land yourself.

6-MONTH MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

You must be completely delighted with your ranch estate or your money back at once, with no questions asked. What's more, if you should visit your property anytime within 6 months and aren't even more delighted with your purchase, you get back every penny in full.

"I can clean everything but the fish with my new Frigidaire Washer and Tide,"

people at Frigidaire know the kind of r it takes to get heavy dirt out of camp-othes," says Mrs. White. "They know derful detergent, too. They put a box le in my washer. The clean-ups after mp-outs are no problem any more." Tide and her Frigidaire Washer Mrs. has certainly found an outstanding nation. Together they'll lick most any f camping dirt—smoke, fish oil, insect nt, you name it.

e has the cleaning power to remove all ugh outdoors dirt a camping family gathers. And once dirt's removed, Tide holds it suspended in the water so that Frigidaire's special "fresh running water" rinsing can carry it away and down the drain.

In Frigidaire's giant 12-pound wash tub dirty water is never re-circulated through a filter and back through clothes. As a result you get thoroughly clean clothes every time—Tide-clean and rinsed clean.

"Whenever we start out on a camping trip now, we're the cleanest looking group of campers you ever saw," says Mrs. White.

Frigidaire, naturally, wants to keep everyone as happy with their washes as Mrs. White. So does Tide. Why not see how this combination solves your cleaning problems?

Teen-age investors—they're learning to make money

Teen-age investment clubs are living examples of learning by doing. Operating within various high-school groups around the country, youngsters are now jumping into a business adventure formerly limited only to their elders. These teen-age clubs invest a fixed amount of money in stocks each month. As a result, members continue to learn about the stock market by following their investments and discussing new possibilities with the director of the club, who is often a business or economics teacher.

How can your youngster start his own club or get into an existing one? It usually happens like this: Several interested students go to a favorite instructor and ask if there is some way they can actually make an investment with professional help and watch the investment grow. The instructor then takes charge, often contacting a local broker for additional information.

Often school clubs will raise from $50 to $100 among 10 to 15 members. Then the faculty adviser and students set off to a broker's office, where he explains the workings of the stock exchange. The club weighs its information and comes to a buying decision. The group then returns on a regular schedule enlarging on purchases already made.

Growth of teen-age clubs has been substantially helped by the Uniform Gift to Minors Act, which has now been accepted in some form by at least 39 states. Under this act, minors can accept as gifts, stocks, bonds, mutual fund shares, or other securities in the name of a custodian. Not only is a great deal of red tape reduced by this law but, more importantly, a real tax saving is created. Income from investment other property given to a minor will be able to the minor, if at all, at much lo rates than to an adult. By giving to his dren while he is still alive, an adult can his gift taxed at a lower federal tax rate to 57¾ per cent) rather than at the es tax rate (up to 77 per cent).

Over-all teen-age investment clubs o a world of commercial opportunity to yo people. And if nothing else, such experie teaches them much about managing t own—and their parents'—money.

The National Association of Investm Clubs has published an Investment C Manual, which can be adapted to the t age investor. It points out three basic p ciples for private investment: a) In funds regularly—to benefit from total average; b) Reinvest earnings to take vantage of compounding; c) Invest onl growth companies until the club portf reaches approximately $12,000. (This amo is considerably lower for teen-age c working with less original capital.)

There are several qualities associa with "growth companies." Some of the n important: a) Stock priced at five ti earnings; b) 10 per cent sales growth year; c) 10 to 25 per cent earnings on equ

"FLAMELESS ELECTRIC HOME HEATING HELPS KEEP OUR HOUSE CLEANER THAN WE EVER DREAMED"

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Harden of Graham, North Carolina, describe the cleanliness and comfort of electric home heating, and offer some surprising facts about its economy

According to the Hardens, converting their 20-year-old house to electric heat was one of the smartest moves they ever made.

"It's just wonderful how clean the house stays now," says Edna Harden. "Ever since we changed over to electric heat I've had much more time to do all sorts of things for Pete and the children I never was able to get around to before. The house never gets too hot or too cold, and there are never any drafts or sudden hot blasts."

"Edna's right," says Peter Harden. "But I'll tell you what I like even more—and that's the cost. A lot of people told me that our heating bills might be higher after we converted, bu I find that electric heating costs no more than our old syster —and it's a lot more convenient."

These same advantages of electric home heating which the Hardens have discovered are already being enjoyed by more than a million families all over America. If you're planning or buying or building a home, or modernizing your present home the benefits of electric heating can be yours as well. There are five basic systems to choose from and your local electric company will help you get all the information for the system tha suits you best.

YOU LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY • Edison Electric Institute, 750 Third Ave., New York 17

YEAR-ROUND COMFORT is provided by the Hardens' heat pump. "It certainly is convenient," says Mr. Harden. "Keeps our whole house like springtime all year long—and it's completely automatic."

EVEN ON THE HOTTEST DAY the Harden house is cool, thanks to the heat pump. Even Little Pete's own room on the top floor stays comfortable.

"IT'S WARM AS TOAST all winter long now," says Janet to her friend, Nancy. "And it's wonderful not to have to bundle up on cold nights."

NEW RECREATION ROOM in the basement measures 14' x 21'. It was made possible by the space gained when the Hardens converted to electric home heating.

How your group can get practicall anything with trading stamps

Briefly, it works like this. The members of a church, scho or civic group get together and determine what they need a fire truck, school bus, little league uniforms, classroo supplies, or whatever. Then they approach the group sa ings department of a trading stamp company in their ar to find out how many filled books it would take. Grou generally start at about 50 people, with each member co tributing a minimum of one book. When many more a needed, volunteer workers can canvass the town aski everyone to save a particular kind of stamp for, say, month or six weeks. The stamps accumulate quickly b cause most people find it easier to give stamps than mone

What can you get with stamps? Some recent example

In Old Bridge, New Jersey, the St. Thomas the Apost School acquired a brand-new school bus—usually tagged $8,000—for 5,000,000 trading stamps.

In Melbourne, Florida, a church congregation pool stamps—a total of 400,000—to buy pews.

In Denver, Colorado, members of the Denver Episcop Church got the church parking lot paved through stamp

In Napanoch, New York, Father Matthew Killion is tr ing to collect 100,000 books for a $150,000 chapel. The Cha el to be called "St. Jude's Within the Walls," is for priso ers at an Eastern correctional institution.

▼ '63 CHEVROLET IMPALA CONVERTIBLE

GO CHEVROLET FOR THE GREATEST GOING EVER—Cover this car's price tag and you might think it cost a thousand dollars more. It offers luxurious styling, extremely comfortable, spacious and silent interiors . . . plus ways to keep it looking and running like a new car when a lot of others have started to sag and sigh: a new way to air-wash rocker panels under the doors of its Body by Fisher to guard against rusting . . . self-adjusting brakes to save you time and expense . . . Delcotron generator for longer battery life. And there's a lot more to find out about the Jet-smooth '63 Chevrolet. Best way is to drive one.

It's Chevy Showtime '63! Come

GO CHEVY II for '63-IT'S EXCITING!

'63 CHEVY II NOVA 400 SPORT COUPE

Hard to believe, but this year's Chevy II is better than last year's. It shares all the new easy-care features of the big Chevrolet and adds its own attributes of parkable size, four- or six-cylinder economy, and interiors that'll match cars with twice the price and half the charm. In one short year Chevy II has made a permanent place for itself. If you want maximum car for minimum dollars, Chevy II is your car. . . . Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit 2, Michigan.

GO CORVAIR for '63-IT'S EXCITING!

'63 CORVAIR MONZA CONVERTIBLE

Change it? Calm yourself, nobody's going to mess with a winner like this one! We did add self-adjusting brakes and a more fully aluminized muffler; interiors are refined a bit, and you'll notice some trim changes on the front and sides, but the rest is pure untampered-with Corvair with all the over-the-road goodness that implies. Oh yes, we changed the taillights so all those people you pass will know you're driving a '63.

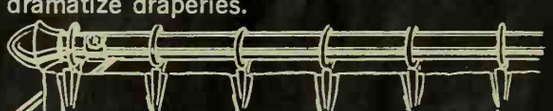
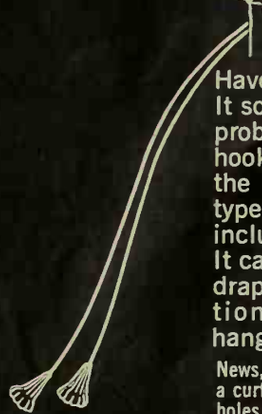
Windows are well-dressed these days . . . smart reflections of the good taste and decorating skill of the homemakers behind them. As in fashion, however, the "hardware" underneath can make all the difference between the merely ordinary and stunning perfection in appearance.

As in fashion, too, there are new styles in drapery hardware each season. Now, for example, you can have the combined charm of a cafe rod and draw action of a traverse rod in one of our new gleaming tarnish-resistant brass Traverse-Cafe Rods. It's the newest thing to dramatize draperies.



Have you seen our Adjust-Rite Drapery Hook? It solves once and for all your drapery hanging problems. No chance of using the wrong size hook. Adjust-Rite sets instantly to the exact position needed for any type of rod, any kind of installation, including ceiling and traverse-cafe. It can even shorten or lengthen your draperies or adjust minor imperfections without re-sewing or re-hanging.



News, too, is our versatile Spring-Tension Rod — a curtain-cafe rod in white or brass that makes no holes in your woodwork, goes up instantly almost anywhere. Available in extensions up to five feet. See it and loads of new window ideas in my book offered below.

White Star is the tuna that's all prime fillet

NATURALLY HIGH IN PROTEIN

Only the prime fillet of the tuna–naturally high in protein–is accepted for White Star. Then, a special method of pressure baking protects this natural protein. And it's this gentle pressure baking that keeps the prime fillet so moist, so firm, so delicate in flavor. Yet even this superior brand of tuna costs so little you can serve it often! Look for the mermaid on the label, for the tuna that's naturally high in protein. White Star is the tuna that's high in poly-unsaturates, too!

NEW RECIPE IDEA! TUNA SWEET 'n SOUR

For 6 servings: Mix 1½ cups pineapple tidbits and juice, ½ cup coarsely chopped green pepper, ½ cup sliced celery, ½ cup coarsely chopped pimiento, ¼ cup vinegar, ½ cup water, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon soy sauce, few drops tabasco in saucepan. Bring to boil. Combine 3 tablespoons cornstarch with water to form paste. Add to vegetable mixture. Boil 1 minute. Add 2 regular size 6½ oz. cans or 1 Giant Size 12½ oz. can White Star tuna. Heat to serving temperature. Serve over Chinese noodles.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE

...to win the Better Homes & Gardens Home Improvement Contest

Here's a perfect example of a project that you can still begin and complete before our Home Improvement competition ends. You have until December 31 to mail your final entry.

This room was really transformed by adding new convenience and color. Starting with just an ordinary bathroom, this family put in a new lavatory and built-in mirror unit. The built-in gives far better light and much more storage behind its sliding mirrors. After this part of the project was completed, a large unpainted cabinet put the cluttered wall to work, inexpensively. Behind its louvered doors, cabinet shelves hold linens, extra towels and various cleaning supplies.

The new color scheme then completes the over-all freshness of the room: a bright blue carpet, some olive green paint for the cabinet. Towels and curtains repeat the basic blues and greens.

Project entries compete only with those of comparable size; a small one has just as much chance as a large, costly one. First four prizes look like this: $10,000 for first, $4,100 for second, $2,100 for third—with a $5,000 award for the special teen-age contest winner.

Get started soon. To enter, just send this coupon, and we'll supply you with templates, graph paper, and other helpful planning materials.

HE LIKES TO cook

Wolff, Bla

Scott

Burl Ives, this month's guest author-chef, says I can make good music . . . just pickin' on a chic n bone." Here Burl tells how you can get next to t t chicken in three of his favorite ways.

Balladeer Burl Icle Ivanhoe Ives, from beginnings as American as the ice-cream cone, as Midwest as succotash, has built one of the most diversified—and versified—careers on record. The Ives were known from way back as a folk-singing family. Songs his grandmother taught him started Burl out as a singing evangelist at the age of four. After two years of college, Ives and his guitar hoboed the United States. These were depression days, and he sang and learned songs all across the land. One night, at a hobo camp, the young teen-ager was told to "make the Mulligan." Burl says his interest in cooking started with that savory stew, because, believe it or not, whether it was hunger or not, the stew was a great success. Known as the Wayfaring Stranger, Burl Ives has authored many a book, including the recent "Song in America" (Duell, Sloan and Pearce). Ives is actor, singer, writer, sailor, collector of curios. Now meet Ives the cook.

In the sunny days of my ranching enterprise in the San Fernando Valley, I had along with some Anglo-Nubian goats, the kinds of chicken fit for a man's table—hot-and-cold running chickens. My two great Danes kept them running—and I had them, hot and cold: young broiling squabs, chesty frying birds, mature boiling hens, and the cock of the walk, my favorite roasting chicken.

We had our traditions about chicken in the Midwest where I was reared. A chicken wasn't just a number, incubated from an unloved egg. It was a hearty white Leghorn or a Rhode Island Red, whose crowing voice was just breaking, a chicken who had the chest to think he could crow the sun up, who had scratched in God's green acres, grubbed in the woodpile, and enjoyed the soul stirrings of his first Spring.

You no longer have to know how to judge the age of a bird. Today, if you would have a traditional feast of roast chicken, you don't pick out a bird. You pick it up. Oven-dressed at the meat counter. Perhaps a plump little roasting chicken or a big fat capon. Or a brace of modern broiler-fryers.

However, if you're out in the country, beware of a chicken who can outrun you or jump higher than the hood of your station wagon. If you sight a nice youngling, though, a trail of grain will get the chicken to cross the road into your pot. Bury the feathers.

Roast Chicken—like the one impaled on my cooking fork—I enjoy with white asparagus, risi-pisi (rice and green peas), giblet gravy thereon, and hot rolls with herb butter, preferably sage or thyme. Also a green salad with dressing of 3 parts salad oil to 1 part vinegar, and plenty of dry mustard, salt, and pepper. To round out the feast, a dessert of fresh pears and assorted cheeses.

Now for the chicken: Rub the inside vigorously with the cut side of half a lemon and season with a bit of parsley and tarragon leaves. Butter the skin well, and if bird is lean, tie a strip of salt pork around the breast. Bend wing tips to back and truss drumsticks together. Roast in a 350° oven until chicken is tender—takes about 2 to 2½ hours for a 3-pounder (unstuffed).

While chicken roasts, baste it with melted butter every 10 minutes or so, taking your bastings from the pan. About half an hour before time is up, snip cord on drumsticks. To tell when done, tweak a leg, i.e., pinch the big part of the thigh, using paper towels—the meat ought to feel very soft. Also pump the drumstick up and down—this will be easy if bird is thoroughly cooked.

Soon after chicken goes in the oven, put the giblets in a pot, add water to cover, salt lightly, and put on the lid. Simmer until fork-tender, about 1 to 1½ hours. Let giblets cool in the broth, then lift them out and chop.

Transfer chicken to a hot platter and pour the juices from the roasting pan over it, leaving 3 t spoons fat in the pan. Free chicken skin sticking to the pan blend 3 tablespoons flour into drippings. Pour in 2 cups of g broth, and, stirring steadily, until you have a nice gravy. chopped giblets, then season salt and pepper to your own t

Succulent Boiled Fowl: If can find it, get the kind of ste hen that keeps the foxes up chilly night. Otherwise settl two of the heaviest fryers you find.

Flavor the cavity with some ragon leaves and a bay leaf; with skewers. Put bird in a kettle and cover with hot w Cook covered, long and slowly til you find the legs tender. I last hour, add salt, ½ teaspo the pound, and a baker's doz onions and carrots.

Strain the broth, reduce i boiling, and give everyone a to start the meal. Meanwhile the chicken hot. Serve it with bread, freshly baked and stean

Bachelor's Fried Chicken tured on the platter): Cut up 2-pound fryers into sizable pi Beat 2 eggs and mix in ½ cup Pour over the chicken and stand 2 hours in the refrigera

Take 1½ cups fine dry b crumbs and mix with ¾ cup f 1 tablespoon salt, and ½ teas pepper; dip chicken in mixtu

Get the fat hot in a Dutch or chicken fryer that is 4 in deep. I like a good inch and a of fat. Put in the largest piec chicken first—don't crowd, slip others in. (You'll prob need to fry in two batches—the first warm in a slow oven

Brown quickly, cover and cook 10 minutes. Uncover a to crisp and cook tender.

Buttered corn and hot bis are my usual with this, but i peckish, I also have a pound o of pan-cooked mushrooms.

Fare thee well!

THE NEW FASHION IN DECORATING: BE YOURSELF!

By Florence Byerly and Margaret Casserly

Today's decorating lets you throw out the rules, lets you go beyond the sameness of a single style or period. There's a new freedom to live as you like to live, with the things you enjoy. On the next 12 pages, we show you some ways expressive people have decorated their homes—homes which are as individual as fingerprints and snowflakes, but which all have the seal of beauty and unity so necessary in good decorating. Most important of all, let these rooms inspire you to give your home the kind of identity that's labeled for all to see: "very personally yours!"

Imagine getting away from it all in a quiet retreat like this. Though it is daring and coolly sophisticated, it's the perfect place for easy conversation. You can just feel yourself being caught up in the excitement of color. Electric reds and oranges encircle the setting and are a vibrant contrast to the pale background. The main attraction is a gently curved sweeping staircase highlighted by a panorama of pictures.

BE YOURSELF!

Left—For a kitchen that causes comment, hang a painting you did yourself and put it in a setting all its own. This skillfully treated area peeks out of the Early American past to harmonize with a contemporary kitchen—here the modern clues are a new door, and smooth, vinyl flooring. The informal charm of this cozy spot is sparked by the rush-bottomed chairs, an antique cabinet, and real plants and painted flowers. Old, salvaged bricks form a rustic backdrop that sets the area apart from the working end of the kitchen. You can try a similar idea on unused wall space between doors.

Above—If you want a scene stealer in the living room, try a large, dramatic painting like this one. Then surround it with furniture and color that make it the center of interest. Here the furniture is scaled low and arranged so that the painting catches your eye, no matter where you are in the room. The painting sets the color pace, too. The heavy neutral of the black-brown furniture makes it sparkle. Dots and dashes of orange in the pillows and ash trays were taken from the accent colors of the picture. Any large and lovely painting can be a focal point—or, you can get the same overpowering effect from even an inexpensive print.

Right—Make a room unmistakably yours with your favorite collection or hobby, whether it's stamps or sea shells. In this room, it's a collection of odds and ends—all antiques with irregular shapes that express a taste for the unusual. You see a united wall accessory arrangement because all the items—including a cooky mold and a weaver's shuttle—have been hung in relation to the height and width of the table. You can also unite odd-shaped accessories by attaching them to a large piece of felt hung on the wall.

BE YOURSELF!

Left—Pamper a room with playful patterns for a devil-may-care look—and don't forget bright colors! The owners of this room got off the beaten track—they experimented with the new and different for a living room that's livable and lively. The striking red rug leads the pattern parade. It's followed by a quiet blue print covering the chairs and wrapping around spacious windows. The slate blue walls and vaulted ceiling surround the room in quiet color.

Below—A new way to handle the television is to give it a mood and setting all its own. The portable TV is part of an accessory arrangement which includes Persian prints and antique Oriental chest stools. The TV is paired with a piano (not shown) for an entertainment area.

BE YOURSELF!

Left—Cold is never a problem here, because even when the fire dies down, the warmth remains. Warmth is literally built into this living-dining room. You can see it in the great copper fireplace hood that juts into the room with its heavy, graceful shape and burnished brown glow. All the warm browns—furniture, floor, and walls—are highlighted by a white, painted brick wall. And there's even a touch of the Near East. It's a fluffy Moroccan rug soft enough to sit on for glowing conversation or just plain fire-gazing.

Above right—If you put your imagination to work, there's no limit to what you can do with everyday materials. In this room the material is vinyl that has been given a custom look. The tailored effect of the stripes that march across the floor and up the stairs started with random-width vinyl strips cut into tiles. The colors of the floor—orange, terra cotta, and beige—are a smooth complement to the deep orange tones in the textured wall covering.

Right—Feast your eyes on this floor and you'll forget you've ever seen another. Brilliant color is warm and alive and magnetic in its attraction. The floor, which is actually quarry tile dressed up with custom glazing, radiates the vibrant orange through its shiny surface. Each 6 by 6-inch tile was glazed separately to create the 4 by 6-foot abstract picture—the epitome of self-expression. The rest of the room was color-keyed to the wide-awake orange on the floor. Weathered stick paneling and a textured painting contrast with the icelike surface.

BE YOURSELF!

Left—There isn't a phone conversation going on behind these folding doors, but they're often the topic of conversation. The doors (salvaged from some old phone booths) serve as a room divider between the dining and living areas. As attractive accessories, they bring early 20th century charm to a home that's a mixture of many periods. Gold paint and small curtains perk up the oak doors.

Below left—A delight to any collector who's a quick-change artist, this room can have a new look every day just by switching the pictures around. The owners love art and gallery browsing, so they decided to have a gallery right in their living room. To relate the collection to the color scheme, they made picture mats from the sofa fabric. Weaving is another family hobby—which makes the yarn display on the piano a natural part of the room.

Below—Even small, out-of-the-way spots in a home can reflect individual tastes. This charming setting, situated in the hallway from the garage to the house, greets backdoor callers. The owners didn't spend much money—the project only involved browsing in a resale shop, some effort hanging the weathervane, and lots of ingenuity.

Right—Imagine dining in different atmospheres at the same time! The people who dine here enjoy every meal in the mellowed charm of Old Mexico and Early America. A tall, Mexican tin candlestick brightens the room and highlights the table. The time-weathered shaker chest sets a soft gold color scheme and warm character, a character that demonstrates so well the meaning of relaxed living—with a very personal touch.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE YOUR FIREPLACE?

Would you like it bold (right), with a massive raised hearth and the heavy texture of field stone? Plan it in a cozy conversation area—and whether there're just the two of you, the whole family, or a group of friends, all the other seating in your home will go begging. The hood over the fire is black iron; the trim is copper. The floor is a step down.

Or would you rather have it mellow (far right) as old pine, with atmosphere to match? Start one like this with a floor-level hearth and firebrick construction. Then add the wood, stained the tone you want. You'll want at least this many books close at hand—they give you a good reason to curl up for hours at a time.

If you prefer a trim glow (left), choose a prefabricated fireplace. This model spreads its warmth through a ceramic shell; the oval opening shows off the dancing flames. Installation is as easy and economical in an old home as in a new one. Choose the hearth that makes you happiest—the small stones here were picked to match the carpeting.

Fire is really heart-warming (right) against a simple background. The thick slate surround lets you frame the flames with the richness of today's panelings. Carry out your simplicity theme with a screen as unobtrusive as the black one here. You can get new metal units to create this kind of fireplace more inexpensively than ever before—and they're planned so that you can build around them any way you like.

You'll hear every crackle and snap (far right) when you group your furniture close around a raised hearth like this one. (And, it's wide enough for logs—or a guest or two.) The fireplace is new, but the old brick makes you feel at home. To complete the picture, just toss on a fresh log, prop your feet up—and relax.

UNICOM: A BOLD NEW IDEA TO CUT THE COST OF HOUSES!

By A. M. W

During recent years, the editors of BETTER HOMES & GARDENS have spoken out repeatedly for greater simplification and standardization in home building. This is the only way you can get full value for your building dollars in a new house or in remodeling.

We therefore commend the lumber industry for its development of a highly flexible new system of standardized component parts for houses. The full meaning of the new system—called Unicom—can be simply stated: Lumber and the labor to install it represent the biggest single cost item in most houses, and this new system of standardization could cut the structural costs in houses by as much as 20 per cent (and probably considerably more in the long run).

This new standard—called Unicom for "universal components"—represents an attack on one of the biggest and most perplexing causes of waste and inefficiency in house construction in the United States: The chaotic lack of standardized parts and components for houses.

This does not mean standardization of styles, leading to look-alike houses, but only the co-ordination of a few key dimensions in houses so that the same-size parts can be mass-produced at low cost for easy use by all builders.

Other industries long ago settled on a few standard bolts and nuts, standard light sockets, standard spark plugs for cars, a standard gauge for railroads, and literally hundreds of other standards that are a key reason for American supremacy in mass production. (For that matter, we have comparable standards in music, where frequencies of notes and scales are fixed, and in painting where artists build on a range of standard colors.)

But not so in housing. A typical house today is built with approximately 3,000 individual parts and pieces. As a rule, nearly all of these separate parts and pieces are made in a bewildering variety of sizes, shapes, and conflicting dimensions. Even the length of floor joists and individual 2x4 wall studs generally varies from house to house (by only a few inches, perhaps, but enough to rule out the use of economical precut lumber that would eliminate costly hand labor and waste due to cutting, sawing, and fitting on the job). The result is a designer's nightmare, which costs an inestimable amount of waste and inefficiency in building. And this waste is not li to lumber and carpentry, but is reflected in most associated building trades. For instance, the lack o form standards in pipe sizes alone leaves the plu to wrestle with 5,000 different washers for houses

Here is where Unicom fits in. It gives us a syst co-ordinated dimensions for houses—order out of The result of a three-year, $250,000 research progran for in part by the National Lumber Manufacturers As tion (NLMA), it is simply a set of standard basic d sions for each key part of the house structure, for such as windows, doors, as well as walls, floor, ceiling, anc It ultimately promises a uniform basis for dimen standardization of nearly everything else inside of h

This means simplified building because, in effect, body can use the same yardstick. All of the diverse and pieces in houses will fit together almost as easil set of Tinker Toys (which is a classic example of stru standardization in that literally thousands and thou of different designs can be built from merely 13 basic Because there are no common dimensional standar houses today, a typical full-line window manufa produces about 500 different window units to satis most common window openings found in houses. Fifteen Unicom door sizes would replace hundr variations in doors that suppliers and lumber yard must stock. Similar reductions ultimately could pected in number and sizes of a variety of other c nents, from floor to roof, including interior partition stairways, clothes closets, and most, if not all, parts and fixtures for kitchens and bathrooms.

Unicom is simply a system of "modular" building lar repeats of the same basic dimensions. THE CLASSIC KITCHEN

By Rita Marie Schneider and Georgia Tonelli

Here is a timeless kitchen filled with surprises wherever you look, from the beams and archways, to the brilliant colors, to the graceful furnishings. The style is French, but it's the individual touches that make this kitchen a success. It was designed by the Editors of Better Homes and Gardens to whet your appetite with ideas that can be adapted to your kitchen, whether building or remodeling.

Here, the most discriminating cook can find conveniences galore right at her finger tips—from the latest all-gas appliances to strategically located towel hooks. There's storage for every pan and dish in spicewood-finished cabinets, and durable surfaces make for easier cleaning. The kitchen can be bathed in lots of day-bright light from an all-luminous ceiling, or softened with lamplight for cozy Sunday night suppers.

Romantic Normandy influenced the strong architectural beams and archways (opposite page) which frame the kitchen and open it to an inner courtyard eating area. Above the indoor garden are make-believe birds in a bizarre French bird cage all multicolored and turreted. Planters and tools are housed in open shelves behind the sink area facing the courtyard. A blue and white Toile de Jouy window shade is edged with yellow and white fringe.

For quick serving and cleanup, there's an ample amount of counter space angling into the room from the indoor garden spot. The double sink has an exciting new push-button control system for selecting a preset water temperature. There's plenty of room to clean fruits and vegetables, and to stack soiled dishes at the same time for quick loading into the under-counter dishwasher.

Characters in typical Norman costumes, reproduced on ceramic tile, set the stage for the picturesque barbecue alcove shown below. The barbecue unit is adaptable to spit cooking as well as grilling. The family grill chef will appreciate its tilt top that keeps grease from flaming.

THE CLASSIC KITCHEN

Continued

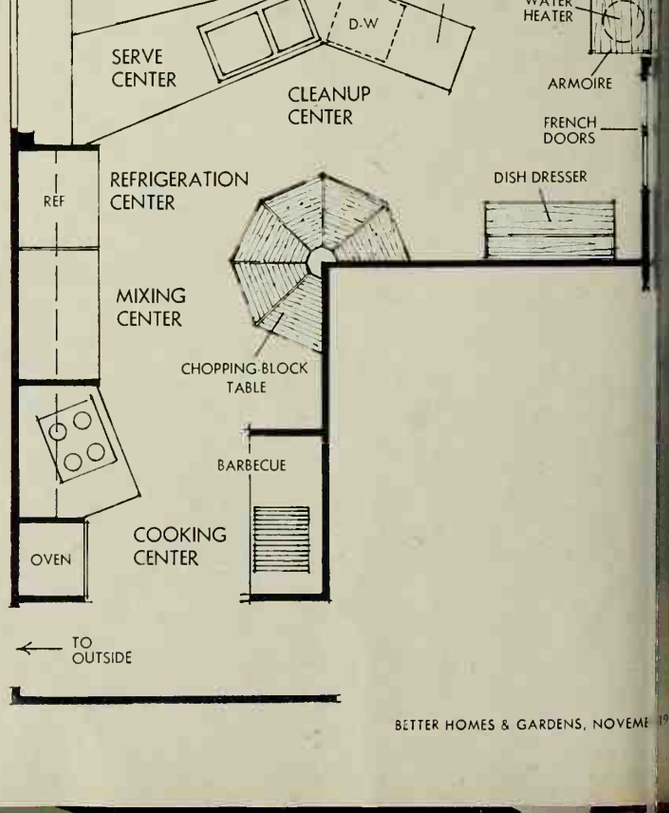
Right This kitchen gets its distinct originality from new products and equipment which have the sculptured look of fine old-world craftsmanship. A handsome dish dresser (the French call it vaisselier) has raised panels and interior lights to silhouette fine china and pewter, while above it and along the wall, a tilt-out plate rail displays petal-shaped plates. Slender black chairs have tall, delicate spindles and rush seats. The luminous ceiling clearly defines the strong architectural features of the room. And on the floor, splashes of copper in the vinyl tiles highlight the plaid design.

The five basic work centers surround the six-sided table. Combined serving and cleanup areas separate courtyard dining from kitchen dinette; the mixing center separates refrigerator and cook-top. A portable intercom and outlet for small appliances are stationed on the serving counter by the refrigerator.

An impressive array of gas cooking equipment is built into the compact cooking corner (below left). A copper-tone lift-up cook-top and waist-high broiler are designed for extra easy cleaning. Large capacity oven with rotisserie has special low setting to keep foods at serving temperature. Recessed lights in the overhang above cook-top shine directly into the pots.

All counters in the cooking area are heatproof. Hand-decorated tiles surround washable backsplashes. Ventilator fans and lights are hidden behind the white paneled frame above the barbecue (see plan) and black iron hood above cook-top. A flattened projection at the bottom of the black hood protects hanging copper pans. The barbecue hood has an easy-to-clean stainless steel lining.

Cutlery, cooking tools, and hot pads are stored in the drawer just below the cook-top; utensils are on pull-out shelves behind the doors. Large, infrequently used items are stored above and below the oven.



The hub of the kitchen wheel is the six-sided table (above). Equidistant from each work center, it is quickly accessible as an eating space for up to six people; as preparation surface for salads, meats, and soups; and as space for buffet service. The pie-shaped wedges were cut from laminated maple counter and framed in walnut; then the unit was attached to the corner post with wrought-iron brackets. The bronze hanging lamp above it is really a ceiling fixture which was bracketed from the decorative lamppost.

The drop-leaf tea cart is tucked below the counter in its own paneled compartment. A four-door utility cabinet on the far wall houses gas water heater and cleaning materials. It matches the dresser and sets on a curved base to simulate a French armoire (wardrobe). To give a trompe-l'oeil (fool-the-eye) touch to the square-paned French doors, we cut a large scenic print into segments and glued them to the glass.

The mixing center beside the gas refrigerator-freezer has shorter cabinets which provide the right counter height for stirring, kneading, or rolling dough. A cutting board in the counter fits over a stainless steel insert so it can be removed for cleaning. Staples and baking supplies are stored above, with utensils, cake pans, and pie tins below. Open shelves display cook books plus baking pans, casseroles, molds, and colorful canisters. Mixer, along with many other everyday items, remains on the counter.

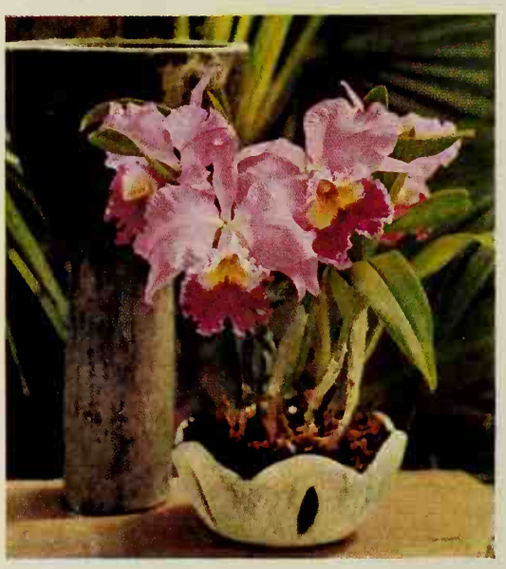
NOW! ANYONE CAN GROW ORCHIDS

Success with orchids no longer depends upon special equipment and complicated know-how. Thousands of gardeners have proved it by flowering them in sunny windows of their homes. Plants are reasonably priced now, too. Start modestly with a plant or two of hybrid cattleyas (florist's orchid), and if you choose blooming-size plants, you'll have flowers while you learn to care for your plants.

Upper left The fascinating cypripedium is a very popular orchid species. Its flower stays fresh for 6 to 8 weeks when left on the plant, or 3 weeks in a corsage. Plants can be taken from their windows to feature on a table. This type is ideal for home culture because of low light needs.

Center left Cymbidium orchids present spikes with up to 30 lovely flowers each. Hollywood's Van Heflin is a great admirer and grower of this popular kind. Cymbidiums of almost every color can be found, including green bronze, and white. Mr. Heflin is holding a cypripedium.



Right The many popular species of orchids and their thousands of varieties offer an unending parade of flower shapes and colors. Arthur Freed, the movie producer, is shown with some of his orchids. Cattleyas (lower and left center) are separated by the delicate, yellow oncidiums. The waxy, pouched cypripedium is in the lower left. White sprays of the phalaenopsis fill the upper left corner while cymbidiums form a perfect background.

ITALY

Welcome to these new-to-America Italian recipes! Now that pastas and pizzas have been lovingly adopted, let's see what else they cook in the old country. The dishes we present here are authentic, typical of the delicious fare you might enjoy if you sat down to dinner with an Italian family in their homeland. On the platter: Pollo con Salsa Gialla (Chicken and Rice with Yellow Sauce) that boasts fresh tartness. In the oval bowl: A delightful salad called Insalata Piccante di Gamberetti (Shrimp in Spicy Sauce). In basket: Superbly seasoned Pomodori Ripieni (Stuffed Tomatoes). And popping out of its baker is Souffle al Limone (Lemon Souffle), a dessert beauty, oven warm and airy light. These are just a sampling—more in the recipe section. In giving thanks this season, let us add this old Italian saying, "Buon pasto loda Iddio" —"Good food praises God."

FRANCE

As French as mayonnaise or hollandaise, these less familiar classics we bring you now. And so luscious that we'd like to say a thanksgiving for some dedicated cuisinier or cuisiniere who, long ago in a kitchen in France, created these great dishes—for example the Caneton a l'Orange (Roast Duck with Orange Sauce) or one of the feast-day sweets. For the duck, we give a short-cut recipe as well as the meticulous traditional version. We offer long and short versions of Mousse au Chocolat (Chocolate Mousse), too—that's the rich, rich dessert shown in little souffle cups. Center of picture, at top, you see Savarin Chantilly (Savarin with Whipped Cream). A yeast-raised cake, savarin is first cousin to both the syrup-drenched baba-style cake and the feather-light type of bread called brioche. Our recipe calls for a final glaze of apricot preserves. C'est magnifique! At far right is a platter of warm Crepes Frangipane (Crepes with Almond Cream Filling). BACK TO THE OLD COUNTRY!

NEW ENGLAND

From the "old country" of our own land, we offer a happy revival of heirloom recipes. And in doing so, we pay tribute to those stalwart Pilgrims who gave us not only our first Thanksgiving but a full heritage of English cookery. (However, the Pilgrims can't take credit for discovering turkeys—this bird was popular back in merry old England long before the sailing of the Mayflower.) It is time again for a festive table to be laden with Roast Stuffed Turkey—with all the trimmings, like Cape Cod Cranberry Mold, and Grandmother's Pumpkin Pie, spicy scented and smooth as velvet. And let's not forget the more frugal foods of New England, such as were served on a cold Saturday night—Baked Beans blessed with molasses and salt pork, accompanied by steaming Brown Bread. There's homespun Yankee cooking at its best! To add to your storehouse of old-time "rules," we also bring you Scalloped Oysters, rich Lobster Stew, Indian Pudding and Boston Cream Pie and the most luscious Maple Chiffon Pie ever. Try the recipes. They have stood the test of time, from Thanksgiving to Thanksgiving, and from day to day—whenever good food was the first order.

BACK TO THE OLD COUNTRY!

GERMANY

Lüchow's in New York is as close to Germany as you can get without crossing the Atlantic. Since 1882, this venerable restaurant on East 14th Street, just off Broadway, has offered the best in good German eating. And more than that, it provides, in the midst of a hustle-bustle world, one of the last remaining havens of Gemütlichkeit, or comfortable geniality as in yesteryear.

In celebrating the restaurant's 80th anniversary, we honor the memory of jolly, rotund Herr August Lüchow, the founder. And we thank the young owner, Jan Mitchell, for sharing the excellent recipes we present here. It is he who brought back to the menu the original delicacies, and who resumed the festivals—in November, the Venison Festival; in January, the Goose Feast.

Grilled Bratwurst, and Boiled Beef with Kraut (ordered time and again by Caruso). The restaurant has its own sausage-making department and its own bakery. In seven dining rooms, uninhibited patrons satisfy big appetites—mention of dieting is verboten.

Amidst the splendor of dark mahogany paneling, colossal mirrors, prized oil paintings, and chandeliers of the gaslight era, have dined—and dine—the world's gourmets. And here it is in the Steinway Room that Fred Hecker (left), a Lüchow waiter for 45 years, is carving Sauerbraten (a favorite of Diamond Jim Brady's) for today's guests. This specialty is pictured mit Kartoffel Klosse und Kartoffel Pfannkuchen which means with [Continued on page 80

Sauerbraten. The marinade tenders the beef, adds characteristic tang. Victor Herbert liked the Gingersnap Gravy over Potato Dumplings.

3 to 3½ pounds beef round or rump, cut thick
4 bay leaves
½ teaspoon peppercorns
8 whole cloves
2 medium onions, sliced
1 small carrot, minced
1 stalk celery (1 piece), chopped
1½ cups red wine vinegar
2½ cups water
¼ cup butter
Gingersnap Gravy

Thoroughly rub meat with 1 teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper; place in deep earthenware crock or ovenware glass bowl with all the spices and vegetables. Heat the vinegar and water to boiling and pour hot over the meat. Let cool. Cover bowl well and refrigerate. Let marinate at least 48 hours, turning the meat twice a day.

When ready to cook, remove meat from marinade and dry with paper towels. Melt butter in Dutch oven or kettle and brown the meat all over. Strain the marinade and pour over meat. Then put on a tight-fitting cover. Let simmer slowly 2½ to 3 hours or until fork tender. Remove meat to warmed serving platter, slice, and keep warm while making Gingersnap Gravy. Makes 6 servings.

Gingersnap Gravy: For 2 cups gravy, melt tablespoons sugar in a skillet, stirring all the while until a nice golden brown. Gradually stir in 1½ cups hot marinade and ½ cup water. Add ⅔ cup gingersnap crumbs (about 8 gingersnaps); cook, stirring until mixture thickens. (If you like, add ½ cup dairy sour cream.) Salt gravy to taste, ladle some over Sauerbraten and pass remainder in a bowl.

Huhn im Topf (Chicken in Casserole) with vegetables, noodles, Marrow Dumplings, above, is typical of plain-and-hearty German cooking.

Shown at right are three desserts, any one a fitting climax to a Lüchow meal. Up top is Cherry Torte, Black Forest Style, made of sponge-cake layers with two luscious fillings, cherry and butter-cream. Slices of the Torte, at left on lower platter, let you see the pretty red squares of cherry filling. Also on the platter are Lüchow's apple strudel, and, to the rear, Almond Horns, a pastry of incredible lightness with a delicious filling of almond paste rolled up inside.

Under the pleasant spell of the front room, called "The Restaurant," or of the Gentlemen's Grill, the Garden or the Café, the Niebelungen or Hunt Rooms, or The New Room (1898), it's no wonder guests forget to worry about becoming a gerollter Marmeladepudding (roly-poly)!

Potato Dumpling and Potato Pancakes. Wunderbar!

William Steinway of piano fame, with his loan of $1,500, set August Lüchow up in business, and ate there daily. Now the fifth-generation Steinway is a frequent patron.

Victor Herbert had his own corner (guests may request to eat in this same spot where he composed many an operetta). He was always welcomed by strains of his music played by the Lüchow Vienna Art Quartette.

Although its members have changed, the Viennese orchestra still entertains diners who often sing along with the Herbert music and Strauss waltzes. When Helen Traubel enters the restaurant, she is greeted with Elsa's aria from "Lohengrin."

Around the turn of the century, Lüchow's was the inspiration for the song, "Down Where the Würzburger Flows," and on one of the tablecloths was first penned the lyrics for "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby."

Lüchow's is as popular a rendezvous for today's celebrities—Leonard Bernstein, Billy Rose, the Gabors—as it was with those of the past—Lillian Russell (the room named in her honor, as well as the Steinway Room, is available for private parties), O. Henry, Paderewski, Sarah Bernhardt and John Drew, John Barrymore, Andrew Carnegie and J. P. Morgan, Teddy Roosevelt, and later on, Al Smith.

In all the years, no one ever enjoyed Lüchow's more than August Lüchow himself, unless perhaps it could be the present restaurateur, Mr. Jan Mitchell. Swedish-born Mitchell, educated at the University of Stockholm and at a school of hotel management in Zürich, took over from the Lüchow heirs nearly 13 years ago. His pledge is to keep Lüchow's and the glories of its German kitchen unchanged.

Below are the recipes as approved by Chef Hellerling and Pastry Chef Truffa.

Hausplatte (House Platter)

Photographs: Scott

Created by August Lüchow himself for selected guests whom he invited to sit at his Stammtisch (head table). Each food complements the other. Great for a stag party—

Use a large oval plank or platter with a 1-inch rim. Decorate around edge of platter with Potatoes Duchesse. Fill the center with Weinkraut and top with these: Corned Pig's Knuckles, Boiled Beef, grilled precooked Bratwurst, and cooked Knackwurst (heat briefly in boiling water).

Baste the meats with brown stock from the beef, well flavored with Burgundy. Put platter under broiler 5 to 8 minutes to brown potatoes lightly. Serve very hot. Pass a mustard sauce and horseradish.

Weinkraut (Winekraut)

Remember this when you serve a game dinner, too—

- ¼ cup butter
- 1 small onion, grated
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- 1½ cups dry white wine
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 small potato, grated
- 1 quart sauerkraut, drained
- 2 sour or green apples, pared and cut thin or diced.

Heat butter in pot and saute onion. Add sugar and let melt; add salt, vinegar, wine, chicken broth, potato, and kraut. Cook uncovered 30 minutes, then add apples and cooked Corned Pig's Knuckles. Cover, simmer 30 additional minutes. Drain extra liquid and use kraut as the base of the Hausplatte (House Platter). Makes 6 servings.

Corned Pig's Knuckles

Cover corned pig's knuckles (some markets will cure them for you) with fresh water, no salt. Add a small onion, cut in half, and a few peppercorns and bay leaves. Simmer 2½ to 3 hours or till tender, cooking the last 30 minutes with the Weinkraut. Serve hot as part of the Hausplatte (House Platter). Allow 1 knuckle for each person.

Boiled Beef

Served with kraut and a stout horseradish sauce, this has tickled the palates of the most distinguished patrons—

- 4 pounds fresh lean beef short rib (about 3 ribs)
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 2 or 3 sprigs parsley
- 4 peppercorns
- ½ teaspoon thyme

- 2 onions, peeled
- 2 carrots, scraped
- 1 parsnip, peeled
- 1 small turnip, peeled
- 1 bay leaf

Rub meat with the salt and place in pot. Cover with boiling water, bring quickly back to boiling and cook 10 minutes. Skim top. Add parsley, peppercorns, and thyme. Cover pot, reduce heat, and cook slowly about 3 hours till very tender. For last half hour of cooking, add vegetables and bay leaf.

For Hausplatte (House Platter), lift out chunks of meat and place (without vegetables) on Weinkraut. Boil the stock, reducing to a rich gravy; add Burgundy—about ¼ cup to ¾ cup stock. Spoon some over meats, pass remainder in bowl. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Potatoes Duchesse

To 4 cups hot mashed potatoes, add 1 tablespoon butter, 2 beaten egg yolks, and salt and white pepper to taste; mix well. Using pastry bag with No. 7 or 9 star tip, pipe hot potato mixture around rim of plank or platter and drizzle with 2 tablespoons melted butter. Potatoes brown when filled Hausplatte is placed under broiler 5 to 8 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cherry Torte, Black Forest Style

Time was when, if a young man invited a girl to Sunday dinner at Lüchow's, it was tantamount to declaring his intentions. The proposal came during dessert which was often this glorious torte—

Cherry Filling:

- 1 1-pound can (2 cups) pitted dark sweet cherries
- ⅓ cup kirsch
- 1½ tablespoons cornstarch

Butter-cream:

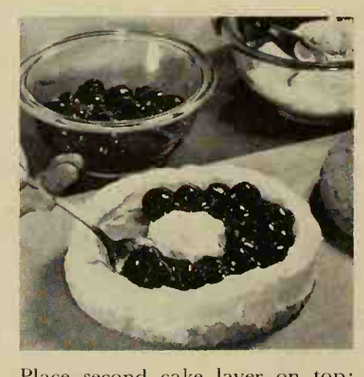
- ½ pound moderately soft butter (1 cup or 2 sticks)
- 1 1-pound package confectioners' sugar, sifted (about 4½ cups sifted)
- 3 egg yolks

• • •

- 2 8-inch spongecake layers, 1 inch thick
- Chocolate shot
- 1 1-ounce square semisweet chocolate, finely shaved (⅓ cup)

Drain cherries, reserving ¾ cup syrup. Halve the cherries, and pour kirsch over; let stand at least 2 hours. Place cornstarch in saucepan; gradually blend in reserved syrup; add cherry mixture. Heat quickly till mixture thickens and comes to boiling, stirring constantly, then cook and stir 1 minute. Cool. Chill.

For Butter-cream, beat butter and sugar together until smooth; beat in egg yolks and continue beating until light and fluffy. Place one layer of spongecake on serving plate. From 1 cup Butter-cream, make a ½-inch border (1¼ inches high) around top of cake. Use ½ cup Butter-cream to make circle in center of cake, about 2½ inches in diameter and 1¼ inches high (same height as border). Spread chilled cherry filling between border and center of Butter-cream.



Place second cake layer on top; press down just sufficiently to make layers stick together. Cover top, and sides of both layers with remaining Butter-cream. Sprinkle sides with chocolate shot, and the top with shaved chocolate; garnish with maraschino cherries. Chill. Let stand at room temperature about 20 minutes before serving. Slice like a cake into 6 to 8 servings.

Kartoffel Pfannkuchen (Potato Pancakes)

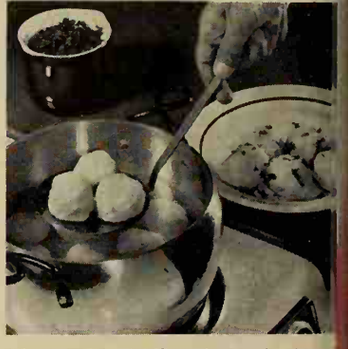
Crispy edged and delicious. You'll think you're eating in Hanover, birthplace of August Lüchow—

- 6 medium potatoes, pared (2 pounds)
- 1 small onion, grated
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 4 strips crisply cooked bacon crumbled
- 2 beaten eggs
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- Pinch of pepper and grated nutmeg
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- Butter

Cover potatoes with cold water, drain. Grate at once and drain off water that collects in grating. Mix potatoes, onion, flour, bacon bits, eggs, and seasonings, blending well. Heat butter (enough to be ¼ inch deep) in skillet. Just before butter turns brown, drop in ⅓ cup batter for each pancake, and flatten them out. When golden brown on one side, turn pancakes over and cook until crisp and brown on other side.

Remove to paper towels and keep warm while frying remaining pancakes. Makes 6 servings or 12 five-inch cakes.

Kartoffel Klösse (Potato Dumpling)



Traditional with Sauerbraten (recipe on page 78) and with many another German meat specialty—

- 6 medium potatoes, pared (2 pounds)
- 2 whole eggs, slightly beaten
- ¾ cup flour
- ½ cup farina
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt

Boil potatoes and put through ricer (about 4½ cups); let cool. Add rest of ingredients in the order given; beat well. Then roll mixture into balls the size of a golf ball. Drop into plenty of boiling salted water to cover (1 teaspoon salt to 1 quart water).* Let simmer 20 minutes. Lift out dumplings and serve hot, sprinkled with parsley. (If desired, spread tops of ho

Lüchow's Almond Horns

Like a Danish pastry with almond filling. Beautifully light. You'll wonder how anything could taste so good!—

¼ pound soft butter (½ cup or 1 stick)
½ cup sugar
5 slightly beaten eggs
2 packages active dry yeast
⅓ cup warm water
⅔ cup milk, scalded
5½ to 6 cups sifted flour
• • •
¼ pound butter (½ cup or 1 stick), firm, but not brittle-cold
Almond Filling
Sliced almonds

Thoroughly mix the soft butter, sugar, and eggs. Soften yeast in the water. Cool milk to lukewarm, then stir into egg mixture along with softened yeast. Last, add enough flour to make a soft dough, mixing well. Refrigerate 3 hours to chill.

On lightly floured surface, roll dough to a 14-inch square, about ½ inch thick. Now roll in remaining butter this way: Dot the butter over half the dough, then fold other half of dough over butter-dotted area; seal edges. Now roll the dough to a 20x12-inch rectangle, ¼ inch thick; fold in thirds; seal edges and repeat this step 3 more times, chilling dough after each rolling if it softens. Put the dough back in refrigerator until next day (or until well chilled).

Next day, divide dough in fourths. On lightly floured surface, roll each piece to a 15-inch circle, about ⅛ inch thick. Cut each circle in 6 wedges like a pie. Along side opposite point, put about 1 tablespoon Almond Filling; roll up, going toward point. Place point down on greased baking sheet. Cover and let rise in warm place until almost double, about 30 to 45 minutes. Just before placing in oven, brush tops of horns with mixture of 1 slightly beaten egg yolk mixed with 1 tablespoon water. Sprinkle with almonds. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 20 to 25 minutes or till done. Serve warm. Makes 2 dozen.

Almond Filling: Thoroughly mix ½ pound (1 cup) almond paste, ⅔ cup sugar, and 1 egg.

Griddle above can double as a hot tray for serving hot appetizers when entertaining. Set temperature control at 200°. Crackers will be heated and stay crisp; toppings remain soft and appetizing. Hot foods will stay hot and keep their flavor.

Electric skillet, used to keep casserole dishes piping hot without overcooking, is ideal for buffet or everyday meals. After the hot casserole comes from the oven, place it in the skillet, preheated to 200°. Need a chafing dish? Controlled heat makes the electric skillet perfect.

Toaster becomes an oven to take care of browning or baking rolls, muffins, biscuits, canapes or hors d'oeuvres when the regular oven is being used for other foods at mealtime. Or why not serve breads directly from it at the dining table?

Blender is wonderful for making quick soups—simply combine ingredients, whiz, heat (or chill), and serve. The blender brings out the flavor of soup ingredients and aerates them to make a fluffy consistency that is smooth and light.

Cheddar Turkey Casserole

There's a quick cheese-soup sauce beneath, crushed cheese crackers atop—

1 cup packaged precooked rice
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
½ 10-ounce package frozen green peas, thawed and broken apart (about 1 cup)*
4 to 6 slices cooked turkey or 2 cups diced cooked turkey (or chicken)
1 can condensed cheese soup
1 cup milk
1 cup finely crushed rich round cheese crackers
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

Prepare rice according to package directions, adding the instant minced onion to the boiling water. Fluff cooked rice with fork and spread in greased 10x6x1½-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with peas, then cover with turkey. Blend soup and milk; pour evenly over the turkey. Combine crumbs and butter; sprinkle over casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 35 minutes or till heated through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

*Or use 1 cup drained canned peas.

Cranberry Cottage Cake

Double cranberry! Fresh cranberries dot the cake; cranberry juice makes the easy sauce—

¼ pound (1 cup) cranberries, coarsely cut
¼ cup sugar
2 cups packaged biscuit mix
½ cup sugar
¼ cup soft butter or margarine
¼ cup milk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
• • •
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1½ cups bottled cranberry-juice cocktail
¼ cup butter or margarine

Sprinkle cranberries with ¼ cup sugar. Combine mix and ½ cup sugar, stir in butter, milk, eggs, vanilla, and salt. Beat vigorously 2 minutes. Stir in cranberries. Pour into a greased 9x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 25 to 30 minutes or till done. Cut in squares. Makes 9 servings. Serve warm with Cranberry-juice Sauce: Mix ½ cup sugar and the cornstarch; stir in cranberry-juice cocktail. Cook, stirring constantly, till mixture thickens and comes to boiling; cook 2 minutes longer. Stir in butter. Serve warm.

Cotolette di Maiale alla Mostarda
(Mustard Pork Chops)

Family fare, a tasty new way—

4 pork chops, about 1 inch thick
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Salt and pepper

1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon flour
1 beef bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup hot water
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles

Trim fat from chops. Slowly brown chops on both sides in butter. Season with salt and pepper. Cover and cook over low heat 45 minutes or till chops are done—no pink. Remove chops to platter and keep hot while making gravy: Cook onion slightly in pan juices; blend in flour. Gradually stir in bouillon. Cook, stirring constantly, till thick. Add mustard and pickles, heat briefly and pour over chops. Makes 4 servings.

Pollo con Salsa Gialla
(Chicken and Rice with Yellow Sauce)

The sauce has the bright fresh taste of lemon to accent both chicken and rice—

1 3- to 3½-pound whole ready-to-cook broiler-fryer chicken
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 stalk celery with leaves
3 sprigs parsley
1 medium onion studded with 2 whole cloves

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 cups hot cooked rice
Parsley
1 recipe Yellow Sauce

Place whole chicken and giblets in Dutch oven. Add water to half cover chicken; add salt, pepper, celery, parsley, and clove-studded onion. Cover tightly and simmer (don't boil) 1 to 1¼ hours or till chicken is almost tender, turning bird once. Transfer chicken to rack in shallow roasting pan; reserve 1 cup broth for Yellow Sauce. Combine butter with paprika and brush over chicken. Roast breast up in moderate oven (350°) about 35 minutes or till nicely brown, basting occasionally with pan drippings. Place chicken on warmed platter and trim with sprigs of dill or parsley. Spoon rice around chicken and snip parsley over. Pass Yellow Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Yellow Sauce: Melt ¼ cup butter; blend in 3 tablespoons flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Slowly stir in the 1 cup reserved chicken broth; cook, stirring constantly, till thick. Stir small amount hot mixture into 1 slightly beaten egg yolk and return to hot mixture. Add 2 tablespoons butter; stir till melted. Gradually add 2 tablespoons lemon juice; heat and stir just till sauce bubbles. Makes 1½ cups.

Pomodori Ripieni
(Stuffed Tomatoes)

Flavor's terrific! Serve with fried chicken, broiled steak or chops, or a roast—

4 medium-size ripe tomatoes
1 slice Italian or French bread
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
1 small clove garlic, crushed
½ teaspoon crushed oregano
½ teaspoon crushed thyme
¼ teaspoon crushed basil
Dash nutmeg

½ pound ground veal
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter or margarine melted

Cut a slice off top of each tomat and scoop out centers. Invert t matoes to drain. Soak bread slic in 2 tablespoons water; crumbl and combine with parsley, garli oregano, thyme, basil, and nutmeg Brown veal in hot oil; add t herbed mixture. Stir in chees salt, and pepper. Spoon filling int tomatoes. Mix bread crumbs an butter; sprinkle over filling. Bak in shallow baking dish in mode ate oven (375°) about 20 to 2 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Souffle al Limone
(Lemon Souffle)

High and handsome dessert. Whisk nonstop from oven to table, spoon it ou golden and fluffy and warm—

½ cup sugar
6 slightly beaten egg yolks
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Dash salt
½ cup butter or margarine

6 egg whites

In top of double boiler, combi all ingredients except egg white Cook over hot, not boiling, wate stirring constantly, till butter mel and sauce begins to thicken (abou 4 to 5 minutes). Cool mixture abou

15 minutes, beating now and then with electric or rotary beater. Beat egg whites to stiff peaks; gently fold in lemon mixture. Pour into ungreased 1½-quart souffle dish or casserole. Set dish in shallow pan filling pan to 1 inch with hot water. Bake in slow oven (325°) about 45 to 50 minutes or till knife inserted comes out clean. Serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Stufato di Manzo al Pomodoro
(Beef and Tomato Stew)

This Italian stew is a pot roast with well-seasoned vegetable gravy—

3 pounds beef pot roast
2 tablespoons olive oil or salad oil
⅓ cup vinegar
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
• • •
¾ cup chopped carrots
1 8-ounce can (1 cup) seasoned tomato sauce
Canned condensed beef broth

Place beef in 12-inch skillet. Combine oil, vinegar, and seasonings; pour over meat, turning meat once. Sprinkle carrots on meat; pour tomato sauce over. Cover and simmer (don't boil) 2½ to 3 hours or till meat is fork-tender. Remove carrots from meat and set aside. Slice meat and keep warm on platter. Skim fat from meat juices and add juices to carrots; blend in electric blender, or sieve. Add enough broth to make 1¾ cups. Heat through. Serve as sauce with meat and parsleyed potatoes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Insalata Piccante di Gamberetti
(Shrimp in Spicy Sauce)

A delightful main-dish salad—or could be an appetizer. Note the flavor-saving way to cook shrimp—

1½ pounds raw shrimp in shells
¾ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
¼ cup finely chopped sweet pickles
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
1 tablespoon finely chopped capers
2 teaspoons finely chopped green onion

Rinse shrimp in cold water. Remove from water, and without draining, place in saucepan. Cook gently, tightly covered, over low heat, about 10 minutes or till shells turn pink; drain. Peel shrimp; remove vein that runs down back. Combine mayonnaise, pickles, parsley, capers, and green onion. Add shrimp; chill. Garnish with water cress. Makes 4 servings.

Souffle di Riso
(Rice Souffle)

Swiss cheese lends its good flavor. Could be lunch or a partner for the meat platter—

¾ cup uncooked rice
2 cups milk
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 cups milk
1½ teaspoons salt
8 ounces Swiss cheese, shredded (about 2 cups)
4 egg yolks
4 egg whites

Cook rice uncovered in 2 cups milk over low heat till tender (about 15 minutes), stirring frequently with a fork. When all milk is absorbed, remove from heat. Melt butter; stir in flour, and cook, stirring, 1 minute. Remove from heat and gradually add 2 cups milk. Cook and stir till smooth and bubbly. Remove from heat. Add salt and cheese; stir till cheese melts. Add rice. Beat egg yolks till thick and lemon-colored. Fold in cheese mixture; cool slightly. Beat egg whites to stiff peaks; fold cheese mixture into whites. Pour into ungreased 1½-quart souffle dish or casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 65 minutes or till knife inserted comes out clean. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

Roast Stuffed Turkey

Traditional roasting, handsome look—

Stuff and truss: Stuff turkey just before roasting. Allow about ¾ cup stuffing per pound ready-to-cook weight. Rinse bird; pat dry with paper towels. Stuff wishbone cavity and skewer neck skin to back. Tuck wing tips behind shoulder joints. Rub large cavity with salt. Spoon in stuffing. Shake bird to settle stuffing; do not pack. Close opening by placing skewers across it and lacing shut with cord. Tie drumsticks securely to tail. (If opening has band of skin across, push the drumsticks under, and you won't need to fasten opening or tie legs.)

Grease skin thoroughly. If you use a meat thermometer, insert it in the center of the inside thigh muscle adjoining the cavity.

To roast: Place bird breast up on the rack (but breast down if using V-rack) in shallow roasting pan and leave in this position for entire roasting time. Cover with loose "cap" of aluminum foil, pressing it lightly at drumstick and breast ends, but avoid having it touch top or sides. Roast at constant low temperature (see chart below).

When turkey is about two-thirds done according to turkey roasting chart, cut the cord or band of skin so heat can reach inside of thighs.

Doneness tests: About 20 minutes before roasting time is up, test doneness by pressing thick part of drumstick between fingers (protect hand with paper towel). Meat should feel very soft. Also move drumstick up and down; it should move easily or twist out of joint. (If you use a meat thermometer, it should register 195°.) When turkey is done, remove from pan and keep warm while you make gravy from pan drippings. Let turkey stand 20 minutes to firm before carving.

Turkey roasting chart

Set oven at 325°. Times are for chilled turkeys, stuffed just before roasting, and are approximate only.

Ready-to-cook weight (before stuffing)	Time (total)
6 to 8 lbs.	3½ to 4 hrs.
8 to 12 lbs.	4 to 4½ hrs.
12 to 16 lbs.	4½ to 5½ hrs.
16 to 20 lbs.	5½ to 7 hrs.
20 to 24 lbs.	7 to 8½ hrs.

Foil-wrapped Roast Turkey

Foil shortens roasting time—

To wrap: Use heavy, wide aluminum foil. Place trussed turkey, breast up, in center of greased foil. (Foil should be wide enough to have 5 to 6 inches extending beyond leg and breast ends of bird; if it isn't, join 2 pieces together with drugstore or lock fold, pressing to make leakproof joining. To prevent puncturing, wrap small folds of foil around tips of drumsticks and wings.) Grease skin. Bring one end of foil snugly over top of turkey; bring opposite end up, lapping over first (overlap should be 2 to 3 inches). Now fold foil down snugly at breast and legs; then press remaining two sides of foil up (foil should come up high enough to prevent drippings from running into the pan and burning).

To roast: Place foil-wrapped bird, breast up, in shallow pan (broiler pan is convenient)—do not use rack. Roast at constant, high temperature. (See chart below.)

Foil-wrapped-turkey roasting chart

Set oven at 450°. Times are for unstuffed chilled turkeys and are approximate only. For stuffed turkey, add 30 to 45 minutes to the total roasting time.

Ready-to-cook weight (before stuffing)	Time (total)
8 to 10 lbs.	2¼ to 2½ hrs.
10 to 12 lbs.	2¾ to 3 hrs.
14 to 16 lbs.	3 to 3¼ hrs.
18 to 20 lbs.	3¼ to 3½ hrs.
22 to 24 lbs.	3¼ to 3¾ hrs.

When turkey has cooked to within 15 to 20 minutes of total cooking time given in the foil-wrapped-turkey roasting chart, open foil for browning. Continue roasting till turkey is tender (test doneness in usual ways). When turkey's done, lift from foil to warm platter. Use drippings in making gravy.

Frozen turkeys (unstuffed)

Thaw frozen unstuffed turkey in original wrapping shortly before time to cook. To speed up thawing, you can place wrapped turkey under cold running water. See label directions that come with turkey.

Thawing timetable for frozen turkeys (not stuffed)

Ready-to-cook weight in pounds	Days in refrigerator at 40°
4 to 12	1 to 2
12 to 20	2 to 3
20 to 24	3 to 4

What turkey figure is for you?

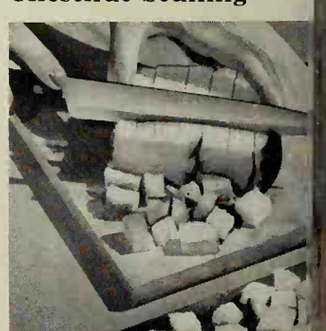
Turkey size	Servings
4 to 8 lbs.	4 to 10
8 to 12 lbs.	10 to 20
12 to 16 lbs.	20 to 30
16 to 20 lbs.	30 to 40
20 to 24 lbs.	40 to 50

Giblet Gravy

In covered pan, simmer (don't boil) turkey giblets till tender in lightly salted water to cover—add few celery leaves and onion slices to the water. Heart and gizzard take about 2 to 2½ hours—be sure they are cooked fork tender. Liver takes only 30 minutes, so add it last half hour. Let giblets cool in broth; remove giblets and chop. After transferring cooked turkey to a warm platter, leave crusty bits in pan and pour the liquid from pan into a measuring cup. When fat comes to the top, skim it off. Then, for each cup gravy, use these proportions: Measure 2 tablespoons of fat back into roasting pan. Add 2 tablespoons flour and blend thoroughly—no lumps with wire whisk.

Cook over low heat till frothy, stirring constantly. (For richer flavor and color, add a little kitchen bouquet.) Remove from heat and add 1 cup lukewarm liquid (meat juices from roasting turkey plus giblet broth). Stir smooth, return to heat and cook till thick, stirring constantly and scraping bottom and sides of pan to blend in crusty bits. Add chopped cooked giblets. Simmer about 5 minutes. Season to taste.

Chestnut Stuffing



8 cups dry bread cubes
2 cups boiled chestnuts, shelled and chopped
1 cup chopped celery
⅓ cup chopped onion (optional)
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
Sage to taste
⅔ cup butter or margarine, melted
Hot broth or water to moisten

Combine bread, chestnuts, celery, onion, and seasonings. (If you like, first cook celery and onion till tender in a little of the butter.) Add butter and enough liquid to moisten. Toss gently to mix. Stuffs 10- to 12-pound turkey.

To cook chestnuts: Cut a cross in flat side of each shell. Cover chestnuts with boiling water; simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat and taking only a few nuts or water at a time, use knife to strip off shell and inner skin while warm.

½ teaspoon salt
• • •
½ teaspoon vanilla
3 stiff-beaten egg whites
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
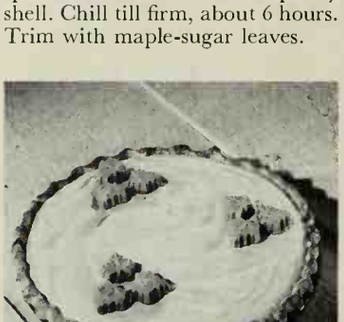
1 9-inch baked pastry shell

Soften gelatin in cold water. In saucepan, combine syrup, egg yolks, and salt. Cook, stirring constantly, till slightly thick. Remove from heat and add softened gelatin; stir to dissolve. Add vanilla. Chill till partially set. Beat with electric or rotary beater till light and fluffy, and caramel-colored. Fold in beaten egg whites, then whipped cream. Chill till mixture mounds when spooned. Pile into cooled pastry shell. Chill till firm, about 6 hours. Trim with maple-sugar leaves.



Scalloped Oysters

1 pint oysters
2 cups medium-coarse cracker crumbs
½ cup butter or margarine, melted
¾ cup light cream
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Drain oysters, reserving ¼ cup liquor. Combine crumbs and butter. Spread ⅓ of crumbs in greased 8x1¼-inch round pan. Cover with half the oysters. Sprinkle with pepper. Using another third of the crumbs, spread a second layer; cover with rest of oysters. Sprinkle with pepper. Combine cream, reserved oyster liquor, Worcestershire, and salt. Pour over the oysters. Caneton a l'Orange (Roast Duck with Orange Sauce)

One of the most famous of all French dishes—you can't beat it for tantalizing flavor. To simplify, you can make Parts I and II of Traditional Orange Sauce ahead—or choose the Quick Orange Sauce that's less mellow but very tasty just the same—

Select a duckling, 4 to 5 pounds ready-to-cook weight or 6 to 7 pounds dressed weight. Clean duckling; remove wing joints and tips, leaving only meaty second joints. Prepare Parts I and II of Traditional Orange Sauce.

Rub duckling inside with salt and pepper, stuff with one-third of the cooked orange peel prepared in Part II. Skewer opening, lace shut. Prick skin around thighs, back, and lower breast to allow fat to escape. Place bird breast up on rack in shallow roasting pan. Do not add water. Roast uncovered in hot oven (425°) 15 minutes, then in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour and 40 minutes longer, or till done, spooning off fat occasionally. If done, meaty part of leg feels tender when pressed (use paper towel). Tip duck slightly so inside juices drain into roasting pan. Place duck on hot platter; sprinkle lightly with salt and keep warm while preparing Part III of Traditional Sauce. Arrange orange sections in a row atop duck. Spoon some of the sauce over all and pour remainder into heated gravy boat. Makes 4 servings.

Traditional Orange Sauce

You prepare Parts I and II before duckling is roasted, Part III, afterward—

Part I:

Giblets and neck from duckling
1½ tablespoons salad oil
1 medium onion, sliced
1 medium carrot, sliced
2 sprigs parsley
½ bay leaf
Dash thyme
2 cans condensed beef broth

Cut giblets in chunks. In hot oil in skillet, brown giblets, neck, onion, and carrot. Add herbs, and broth to cover (add water if needed). Cover skillet; simmer about 1 hour or till done. Strain stock and skim off fat. Add water to stock to make 2 cups.

Part II:

4 medium oranges
• • •
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons arrowroot starch
2 tablespoons port wine

While giblet stock cooks, prepare about 1 cup orange peel: With knife, score peel of each orange lengthwise in narrow strips, then use a vegetable parer to shave off several strips at once. Add peel to 1 quart boiling water and simmer 15 minutes. Drain peel; pat dry with paper towels. Use about one-third of the peel to stuff duck; set remainder aside. Section oranges, discarding membranes, and reserve as garnish for duck.

When stock is done, combine sugar and vinegar in heavy skillet and heat, stirring, about 5 minutes or till sugar has caramelized and mixture is a rich brown. Immediately remove from heat and add ½ cup stock. Return to heat and simmer, stirring constantly till caramelized sugar dissolves; add to remaining stock along with reserved cooked orange peel. Blend arrowroot and wine; gradually stir in a little of the stock, return to hot mixture, and cook, stirring, 3 to 4 minutes or till thick and clear—don't let bubble. Set sauce aside until duck is done.

Part III:

½ cup port wine
3 tablespoons orange liqueur
2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine

After transferring roast duck to a platter, skim off fat from juices in roasting pan. Add wine to juices and boil down rapidly, stirring constantly and scraping sides of pan until liquid is reduced to about ¼ cup; strain into the sauce from Part II, and heat without bubbling. Stir in orange liqueur and butter. Serve hot. Makes 2½ cups.

Quick Orange Sauce

While duckling roasts, you can get this sauce ready except for the finishing touches—

2 medium oranges
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
¼ cup orange liqueur
Juices from roast duck

Grate peel from one orange (2 teaspoons). With vegetable parer, shave peel from other orange in long thin strips (¼ cup). Then squeeze juice from both oranges (⅔ cup).

In heavy skillet, cook and stir sugar and vinegar just till sugar caramelizes to a rich brown. At once remove from heat; add grated orange peel, orange juice, and liqueur. Return to heat and simmer, stirring constantly, till the carmelized sugar dissolves. After transferring roast duck to a platter, skim off fat from juices in roasting pan. Add orange-juice mixture to juices in pan. Cook, stirring constantly and scraping sides of pan, for a few minutes or till of desired sauce consistency. Stir in the strips of peel. If you like, squeeze in a little lemon juice to taste. Spoon part of sauce over duckling; pass remainder in hot gravy boat. (If desired, garnish bird with sections cut from additional oranges.) Makes about 1⅓ cups sauce.

Mousse au Chocolat (Chocolate Mousse)

Simply luscious—rich, fluffy, mocha-flavored. For a Parisian touch, dot the whipped cream topper with crystallized violets—

4 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup orange liqueur
1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semisweet chocolate pieces
1 teaspoon instant coffee dissolved in ¼ cup cold water
½ cup soft butter or margarine
¼ cup finely chopped candied orange peel
4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

In top of double boiler, beat egg yolks and ¾ cup sugar with electric or rotary beater till thick and lemon-colored. Beat in orange liqueur. Cook over hot, not boiling water, beating constantly, just till hot and mixture thickens slightly (about 10 minutes). Transfer top of double boiler to pan of cold water and beat till consistency of mayonnaise, 4 or 5 minutes. Melt chocolate over hot water; remove from heat and beat in dissolved coffee. Gradually add butter, beating smooth. Add peel; stir into egg-yolk mixture. Beat egg whites with salt till soft peaks form; sprinkle 1 tablespoon sugar over, and beat to stiff peaks. Fold into chocolate mixture. Pour into soufflé cups, petits pots, or small sherbets, filling ⅔ full. Cover and chill at least 3 hours. Serve topped generously with whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

Easy Chocolate Mousse

A no-cook version that's very, very good—

2 4-ounce packages sweet cooking chocolate
6 tablespoons sifted confectioners' sugar
6 egg yolks
• • •
6 egg whites
Dash salt
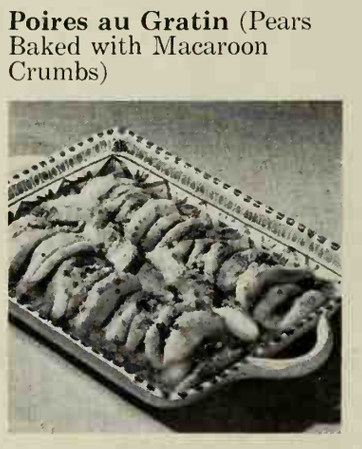
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Break chocolate into mixing bowl. Cover with boiling water; let stand 5 minutes, then carefully pour off all water. Gradually add sugar to chocolate. Add egg yolks and beat with electric or rotary beater till smooth. Beat egg whites with salt till stiff peaks form. Fold into chocolate. Pour into soufflé cups, petits pots, or small sherbets, filling ⅔ full. Cover and chill at least 3 hours. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

Poires au Gratin (Pears Baked with Macaroon Crumbs)



A simple fruit dessert with sophisticated flavor—

5 ripe pears (about 2 pounds), pared, cored, and cut in ½-inch slices
¼ cup apricot preserves
¼ cup dry white wine
½ cup dry macaroon crumbs
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Overlap pear slices in layers in buttered 10x6x1½-inch baking dish. Heat apricot preserves and put through sieve; add wine and pour over pears. Sprinkle with macaroon crumbs and dot with butter. Bake in hot oven (400°) 20 to 25 minutes or till pears are done and crumbs are lightly browned. Serve warm. Makes 4 servings.

Boeuf a la Bourguignonne (Beef Stew with Burgundy)

Like a great chef's stew. Serve with parsleyed potatoes, fluffy rice, or buttered noodles—

6 strips bacon, cut in ½-inch pieces
3 pounds beef chuck, cut in 1½-inch cubes
1 large carrot, sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons flour
2 cans condensed beef broth
2 cups red Burgundy wine
1 tablespoon tomato paste
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon thyme
1 bay leaf
• • •
1 quart (about 1 pound) mushrooms
1 pound (18 to 24) small white onions
Beurre manie

In Dutch oven, cook bacon till crisp; remove from pan. Brown the meat in small batches in bacon fat, turning often. Remove meat. In pan drippings, brown sliced carrot and onion. Spoon off fat and return bacon and beef to pan with vegetables. Add salt, pepper, and flour, stirring to coat meat lightly. Reserve ½ cup broth; add remainder to stew along with wine, tomato paste, and herbs. Cover; simmer (don't boil) about 3 hours or till meat is fork-tender.

Meanwhile, quarter large mushrooms (leave small ones whole). In large skillet, sauté mushrooms in 3 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons salad oil about 5 minutes; lift out mushrooms and set aside; in the same skillet, brown the small whole onions (add a little more butter and salad oil if needed), about 10 minutes, shaking skillet occasionally. Add reserved broth to onions, cover and simmer till onions are tender but still hold their shape, about 10 minutes.

Thicken stew with beurre manie: Cream together ¼ cup flour and 2 tablespoons butter; roll into tiny balls the size of a pea. Skim fat from stew, then drop in the tiny balls. Stir over very low heat until gravy thickens. Add the cooked mushrooms and onions; bring just to bubbling and serve at once. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

varin Chantilly (Savarin
h Whipped Cream)

east-day dessert in France, it can be company-day spectacular. The airy is made like bread—package active dry yeast or 1 cake compressed yeast

4 cup water
2 cup milk, scalded
⅓ cup soft butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 egg
1 recipe Savarin Syrup
1 recipe Apricot Glaze
1 recipe Crème Chantilly

Soften active dry yeast in warm water or compressed yeast in lukewarm water. To hot milk, add butter, sugar, and salt; stir till butter melts. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in ½ cup of the flour. Beat in egg and softened yeast. Add remaining flour. Beat vigorously 5 to 7 minutes. Cover; let rise in warm place till double (about 1¼ hours). Stir down batter and spoon into well-greased 6-cup ring mold. Cover and let rise till almost double (about 45 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (350°) about 35 minutes or till done and top is nicely browned. Cool 5 minutes and remove from mold. Prick top of Savarin in several places and gradually drizzle with Savarin Syrup; let stand about 30 minutes, basting frequently to soak well. Now brush entire surface with warm Apricot Glaze. Trim top with blanched almonds, candied cherries, citron. At serving time, fill center with Crème Chantilly. Makes 14 servings.

Savarin Syrup: Combine 1 cup sugar and 2 cups water; bring to boiling. Remove from heat and cool to lukewarm. Stir in ½ cup kirsch, rum, or cognac.

Apricot Glaze: Heat and stir one 12-ounce jar (about 1¼ cups) apricot preserves; sieve.

Creme Chantilly: Whip 2 cups whipping cream with 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar and 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Crepes Frangipane (Crepes with Almond Cream Filling)

These fragile dessert pancakes boast a flurry of grated unsweetened chocolate atop. You can stow filled crepes in refrigerator till time to heat—

Crepes:

⅓ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
Dash salt
1 egg
1 egg yolk
¾ cup milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Measure ingredients into blender container or mixing bowl; blend or beat with electric or rotary beater till smooth. Refrigerate several hours or till thick. Heat heavy 6-inch skillet till drop of water will dance on surface. Grease lightly and pour in 2 tablespoons batter. Lift skillet off heat and tilt from side to side till batter covers bottom evenly. Return to heat and cook till underside of crêpe is lightly browned (about 1½ minutes). To remove, invert skillet over paper towels. Cook remaining crêpes same way, just on one side.

Almond Cream Filling:

1 cup sugar
¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 cup milk
2 eggs
2 egg yolks
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup ground toasted blanched almonds

Mix sugar and flour. Add milk; cook and stir till thick, then continue cooking and stirring 1 or 2 minutes longer. Beat eggs and yolks slightly; stir some of hot mixture into eggs and return to hot mixture. While stirring, bring just to a boil and remove from heat. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cool to room temperature. (Chill if not to be used promptly.)

To serve: Spread about 2 tablespoons Almond Cream Filling on unbrowned side of each crêpe; roll up and place folded side down in buttered 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Brush crêpes with melted butter and heat in moderate oven (350°) 20 to 25 minutes or till hot. Sprinkle with grated unsweetened chocolate and sift confectioners' sugar over. Serve warm with whipped cream. Five servings (10 crêpes).

NOVEMBER GARDENING WHERE YOU LIVE!

With
Better Homes and Gardens
WESTERN FIELD EDITOR
Norvell Gillespie

My soil is infested with thousands of tiny worms that are eating the roots of my geraniums and killing them. Is there a chemical I can use to get rid of these pests?
Mrs. D.R.R., San Francisco, California

Luckly, soil pests are reasonably easy to control today. On the shelves of your nursery are scores of trade-named preparations containing chlordane or dieldrin. Either of these powerful ingredients will clear up your soil for the successful culture of all plants. Do follow the manufacturer's directions closely. Soak the entire area with the solution—not just where the plants are growing. A hose-end soil-and-turf sprayer greatly simplifies this job.

We vacationed in Hawaii recently and the beauty of the anthuriums is something we'd like to "transplant" to Arizona. What are their main cultural needs for growing in containers? J.E.A., Tucson, Arizona

Anthuriums are natives of the South American jungles and this offers a clue to their cultural needs. It rains every day there and the air is hot and humid. Your job is to duplicate the jungle conditions as nearly as possible. Set the potted plants on trays or large saucers of moist soil. Spray the plants several times a day. Or, grow them under a canopy of polyethylene or plastic. The higher the humidity, the more favorable the growth. Keep the plants out of drafts. Let them be close to a source of light from a window, yet not in direct sunlight.

Heat is a must. They will thrive in the normal indoor temperatures of a home in the winter time. Be careful with summer air conditioning though. Below 65 degrees they stop growing, and at 50 degrees they can die. Repot anthuriums once a year, preferably in the spring as the new surge of growth appears. They like light but frequent feedings of liquid fish fertilizer—once per month, year round.

I have just about given up trying to bloom a Christmas cactus. Is there anything I can do now to be sure of flowers next month? Mrs. W.O., Nampa, Idaho

Normally these plants are reasonably easy to handle. Here are some possible reasons for the bud drop: too much or not enough moisture at the roots; sudden changes in temperature (plants placed too close to an outside door); fumes from gas heaters. It is best to water thoroughly, then wait until the soil surface is dry before watering again. Keep house temperatures between 55 and 70 degrees.

Please advise me on the hardiness of the Blue Atlantic Cedar and the Cedar of Lebanon, east of the Cascades in Washington. Mrs. R.C.P., Spokane, Washington

I found magnificent specimens of both these trees in the mile-high gardens of Denver last summer. If you give them a protected spot in a shrub border, I think they'll do very well for you.

I would like some information on culture of coral-bel particularly soil requirements. Mine are not doing as w as I feel they should. A.L.K., Seattle, Washingt

Generally speaking, there is no great mystery about t culture of coral-bells. Air, water, temperature, soil comp sition, and food are the basic requirements that gove growth. When normal demands are met, these plants thri with no trouble. The soil that suits them best is a war light type that drains well. Any of the popular balanc fertilizers, either dry or liquid, seems to perk up th growth. Keep in mind that the best time to divide o clumps is in October; then they will bloom from June un August. Clumps should be divided every two years.

After seeing the beautiful rhododendrons in Oregon, I a determined to have some. Are there kinds that take o 20-degree-below-zero weather? A.C., Weston, Ida

There are some "ironclad" varieties that will withsta cold climates. Many kinds will take 20-degree winters. mentioned this hardiness factor of rhododendrons in n new book "How to Grow Azaleas, Camellias, and Rhod dendrons" that came out in February of this year. T recommended "ironclads" in my list include: Americ hardy red; Boule de Neige, medium-size white; catawbie album, late-blooming white; Charles Dickens, mid-seas red; Cunninghams White, late slow-growing white; Cara tus, red; Roseum Pink, rosy-pink; and Lee's Dark Purp Start with small plants and give them protection the fi two or three seasons until they become established.

I would appreciate your tips on easy ways to protect fuchsias from the frosts. I recently moved here from Jolla and have never had to fight frosts before.
Mrs. H.L.H., Portland, Oreg

Oregon is known as pretty good "fuchsia country thanks to the pioneering efforts of the late John Bacher. H tests proved that an 8-inch mound of leaves, peat, or str around a plant is sufficient to protect the roots and lo stems. The tops may get burned, but new growth will bre out in the spring. Do not prune damaged tops until th

The foliage of our young Carolina cherry tree has turn yellow and is dying. It has had periodic heavy waterin with soft water from a softener. Do you think this is t cause? B.E.K., Sacramento, Califor

It sounds to me like you've put your finger right on t trouble—use of water from your softener. Minerals c tained in such water eventually will kill almost any kind plant. Regular watering, plus the winter rains, sho leach away part of the salts below the root area, so no m of your plants will be harmed.

Please tell me how to grow Hawaiian, Austrian, and B ton ferns outside? Mrs. J.M., Los Angeles, Califor

Ferns in general, including the three you mention, ha the same cultural requirements—light, fibrous soil tha kept constantly moist, and protection from midday sun icom efficiency adds up quickly—as this picture shows. Pre- studs can be assembled (lower right), and nailed together hout cutting. Precut siding also speeds construction.

ld cut lumber to Unicom s, saving freight costs for local nber dealers—and builders.

The Unicom grid system accom- dates many floor, wall, ceiling, l roofing materials now avail- e. It conforms to the widely d 4-inch modular standard for sonry, introduced by the con- te and masonry industry. (By king its products available in dular sizes, this industry has e probably the best job of stand- ization in the building indus-) The grid also conforms to the inch widths used for sheet ply- od, hardboard, and gypsum rd.

ull details are available in a phlet, "The Unicom Method House Construction" (free from ional Lumber Manufacturers n., 1619 Massachusetts Ave. V., Washington 6, D.C.).

Unicom was developed by Rich- B. Pollman, Toledo architect, conjunction with the NLMA. llman says it can reduce inven- es in building by 20 to 80 per t. It would mean manufactur- economies (through longer duction runs on fewer sizes), a reduced distribution costs fewer products). Other Uni- advantages would be faster gn of houses (and lower archi- ural costs), more efficient con- ction (thus lower on-site labor s), and better-built houses.

effect, building a house would b down to erecting preassembled s in place at the site—without ing or fitting.

he NLMA sponsored the con- ction of two houses near Chi- to demonstrate Unicom.

The houses went up without a h," the construction superin- ent told Better Homes & Gar- de. "We had no saws on the job, a none of the usual filler pieces a extra studs to make things fit."

Other test houses are planned, and at least three major manufacturers of windows and doors have decided to begin production of products conforming to Unicom.

However, not everyone in the building field endorses Unicom. Some skeptics oppose it because they don't understand it, others because they think that modular co-ordination restricts design freedom. Yet Unicom represents one of the most flexible modular systems ever developed for houses.

Other critics say builders will not use Unicom until low-cost Unicom products are readily available for houses; they add that manufacturers can't make low-cost standard Unicom products until enough builders put up houses designed for Unicom products.

In answer, the National Association of Home Builders has endorsed Unicom, and is encouraging builders to adopt it. The use of Unicom can simplify planning and construction of houses for many builders—most products for houses are already available in sizes that conform to Unicom dimensions. And lumber manufacturers have launched a national program to make Unicom known to the industry (this includes their 124-page manual describing its principles).

The lumber manufacturers certainly rate praise for their efforts. However, the next step calls for a very clear-cut set of instructions explaining Unicom—something that can be used easily by every member of the building industry.

One thing is certain: standardization of parts is the only way to simplify home building. And there must be complete industry co-operation to extend the use of such methods as Unicom in every product area. Only then can the costs of home construction be reduced significantly.

HOW TO HELP YOUR CHILD IN SCHOOL 2 READING

By Darrell Huf

YOUR CHILD CAN'T LEARN IF HE CAN'T READ

Responsibility for teaching the child to read does not rest with parents. This is a job for specialists. But parents can supplement what is done in the classroom and give their children the help and encouragement that might make the difference between a good reader and a poor one. Just keep these principles in mind:

1. The school can't do it all. If you look behind the child who quickly learns to read and continues to stand out, you'll usually find an interested father or mother, frequently both. The parental place in the learning process is in the background— but not too far back. The best thing you can do is to keep reading material constantly available. Make it a part of your child's life, whether he is a pre-reader or a high-school student.

Help your child when he comes to you for assistance, whether or not that moment is the one most convenient for you. Keep yourself quietly aware of his progress so you can step in when help is needed.

2. Don't play teacher. Taking over the school's job o formal and compulsory instruction can lead to cross-purposes The result may be confusion in your child's mind and over anxiety that will defeat your good intentions. The best rul is to offer instruction only when your child is eager and t stop while he is still interested.

3. Remember, every child has a reading problem. Even a child who reads well now will have to keep improving in both speed and comprehension to meet the demands ahead. As competition makes colleges tougher, high-schoo requirements are rising to meet the challenge. This, in turn is reflected in the work expected in the primary grades.

4. Reading is learned in many ways. Most good teach ers now use them all, and so can you.

Word recognition is where learning to read usually begins Without formal teaching, you can help a young child tak his first step by getting him to recognize his own name an then other words without knowing the letters that mak them up. Show him some of the key words in stories you read aloud. Let him spot them as they recur. Soon, when he is able to pick these words out wherever he sees them, he'll enjoy the stories all the more.

Phonics, sadly neglected in recent years, is used early now in most schools. All it means is learning new words by the logical process of sounding them out. You probably learned to read mostly by this method yourself.

Ask your child occasionally to sound out words wherever he sees them—in his own picture books, in stories you read to him, sometimes in a book or magazine you are reading to yourself, or on signs and posters.

But remember that even simple words are not simple when first met. Even after your child knows the sounds of the letters, he still has a great bridge to cross in converting duh-aw-guh to dog. Patience!

Word guessing, or using clues from context, had great emphasis a few years back. Though it has more dangers than merits when pushed too far, you'll find a place for it in your home-teaching.

Show your child how he can use context clues to verify a word that he almost recognizes or has sounded out. Learning a language in which sounds of "a" and "o" often overlap, a child may easily be in doubt as to whether what he has attacked through phonics is pronounced "pork" or "park." Help him to see that the sentence is about a place to play and he'll easily decide which word is intended.

Writing as a direct road to reading is the basis of some special systems of teaching. You can use it best in conjunction with the other techniques.

Begin with single, short words. The child who knows "cat" by sight and by sound will quickly learn to print it. Supply him with a neat alphabet of small letters similar to those in the books with which he's working.

The process you begin by having him write his name and single words can soon be expanded to include short notes on a blackboard, written both to and by him. Soon you will be able to encourage him to write simple stories, letters to relatives and friends, a journal when on family vacations, and eventually a regular diary.

5. Many failures to read are emotional problems. Parents may be demanding so much that a child dares not try at all for fear of failing. There may be family tensions, conflicts with brothers or sisters, or just plain fear or lack of self-confidence. Any of these things will be hard for a teacher to spot and impossible for her to remedy. You are in the best position to do something about them.

You can also be alert to the beginning of special physical difficulties. Remember that a child has no basis of comparison by which to recognize his own poor hearing or bad eyesight. Watch for symptoms: failure to hear or understand things said to him; redness of eyes; the habit of holding books very close. A vision test annually should be a minimum, arranged by you if not by the school. A complete eye examination every second year is wise. Some kinds of nearsightedness come on very rapidly at adolescence. Even the child whose vision has been excellent should be checked frequently at this time. A simple home test often spots the trouble: pin up newspaper headlines and see if he can read them from as far away as you or some other member of the family can.

If your child is able to read simple stories by third grade—as he almost surely will be if you give [Turn to next page him support—only the first phase of your job is over. There is still a real danger that he will enter high school, or even graduate, a "functional illiterate." This harsh term is applicable to a distressing number of our youngsters—estimated at several million—who know how to read, yet don't.

If you think of your role as "promoter" more than teacher, you will see how it retains its importance through the years. Of course, your approach should change as your child acquires more skill in reading. In the beginning, your emphasis will be on developing the interests and language foundation that educators call "reading readiness." In the next stage, you will be helping—deftly, casually, and from the background—as your child learns how to read. After that, you will be concerned with how well he reads and how much. Eventually, your concern will be with what he reads.

The preschool years are your golden opportunity. Never again will you have his eager attention with so little competition from other activities. Your small child craves your undivided attention, and he gets it most effectively when you read to him. As this satisfaction becomes associated with books and reading, a pattern begins to develop—and at least half the battle has been won before he enters school.

Getting a child ready to read begins ahead of the printed word. Enhance his perception with little games: "Show me the cow in the picture book." "Where is the red barn?" Have him observe a few objects on a table; cover them and have him name them.

As you read or tell stories, involve him in the process. After an interruption, ask him, "Where was I when the phone rang?" Stop sometimes while reading to him and ask, "What do you think the boy in the story will do next?"

Your very success may bring on another problem that often worries parents of bright youngsters. You may find that your child is beginning to read successfully for himself before school age.

Should you encourage him? Will he be a misfit in the first grade? May this lead to boredom and inattention, as some educators warn?

Be comforted by two facts. One is that of the ablest students in the higher grades, a good many were readers when they started school. The other is that if your child develops a real desire to read early, you probably can't stop him anyhow by any reasonable means. So have no fears about following the common-sense course: Don t push, but don't hamper.

The first three grades are the period when teaching reading is the school's main order of business. You can best mesh your efforts with those of the school by introducing your child to recreational reading.

It is an unfortunate fact that the books your child has in school at this age are probably pretty dull. As an antidote to them, give him enjoyable books to remind him that reading can be the best of fun. Bookstore people and children's librarians will guide you to books suitable to his age and ability, ones that stress pleasure more than step-by-step development.

Backstop the work of the school by continuing to give him reasons for learning to read better. Notes from Mom and Dad will help, especially if they come addressed to him in the mail.

For trouble-shooting, try auxiliary equipment. Scrabble, anagrams, and junior crossword-puzzle books fit all ages. Flash cards, often with tests sheets, are inexpensive and sold in many book and department stores.

In the middle grades, reading in school is taught more as a part of other subjects than as a technique of its own.

The assumption is that by this time the child knows how to read. If this is true of your youngster, you can help most by guiding him to the best kinds of reading. One thing you are likely to come up against—hard—is the comic book.

Should you discourage or forbid the reading of comic books? Most authorities have come to agree that reading comics is far better than not reading at all, and that it does little harm unless it pushes other reading aside. What you should do is to gradually divert your youngster from comics to real books. Nudging him from a pirate comic to Treasure Island is far easier than turning a nonreader into a child who reads.

But how can you be sure that your child really has learned to read by the middle grades?

One thing you can do is try him on one of his school books. More than five mistakes to a page should be taken as a warning. His progress in other school subjects may be a clue, too; his report card will tell you something about this. Reading failure is commonly at the heart of difficulties with English composition, literature, and social studies. When a child does well in the mechanics of arithmetic but badly with word problems, his reading comprehension may be poor.

The later grades are the time for consolidating gains and preparing for the more exacting high-school years just ahead.

It is essential at this time that a child become thoroughly familiar with such helps as encyclopedias, almanacs, atlases, regular and specialized dictionaries, guides to magazines and reference books, library card files.

To supplement his use of public and school libraries, you should establish some kind of reference shelf in your home, either for his or general family use. Although an ideal collection of encyclopedias and reference books will run into quite a bit of money, cost need not prevent the establishment of a working reference library. A one-volume encyclopedia is far be than none, and paperback atla almanacs, and dictionaries are r widely available.

You should continue to deve your child's interest in wo Word games help. So do din table conversations built—casu —around words that come up chance or happen to be in the d news. You needn't know m about word derivations; in fact often more effective to be so ig rant (stretching a point if ne sary) that your youngster has "look it up" himself and bring the information.

Keep your eyes open for reading habits. A poor reader o mouths words or runs his fin along the lines. He may be set i pattern of painful reading, vealed by a tendency to mov slowly through easy materials through difficult. Take this as a for a conference with a teache counselor.

High-school years are ones which breadth of reading inte becomes vitally important. Of a conscientious honor-roll stud runs more danger of neglecting sential outside reading than do student not so interested in get superior grades. You may be a with your better perspective, make a studious son or daug understand this fact in time. weak background of the lim reader, however good his gra may betray him later if he goe a demanding college.

You can help keep his reac interests broad by seeing that has magazine subscriptions of own—a good idea whatever his and reading level. But try si copies first, to find out which really interest him.

High-school years should s transition to adult reading ma al. Try to see to it that even in first of these years, your young is reading partly from adult shel especially those books that are both meanings, ageless. His r ing should mix Steinbeck and inger and Sabatini with works rected at teen-agers.

If your child is slow in gradua from one level of competence t next, always remember that human being is different f every other. Even at a time w reading is increasingly impor to almost any kind of career— excluding motherhood—some ple will never develop into readers. If your child turns ou be one of these people who g greater proportion of their ex ences directly from life itself will not necessarily be the wors it. Or if he does not immedi develop his reading interests a as you might wish, he may merely a late bloomer in thi spect.

What doesn't happen ea may occur with surprising spe college age or even later. What do each year to help him to better reading will have its e in the end.

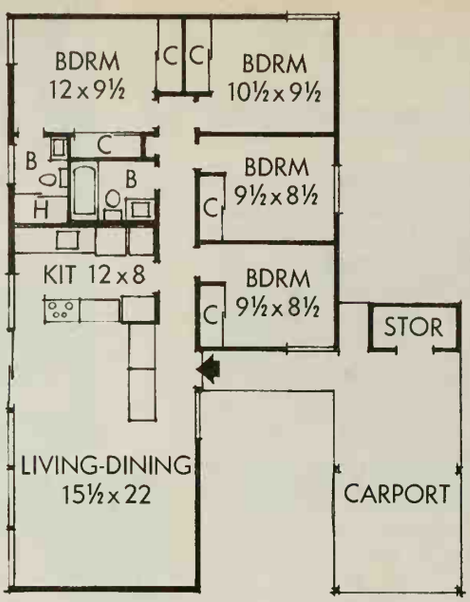
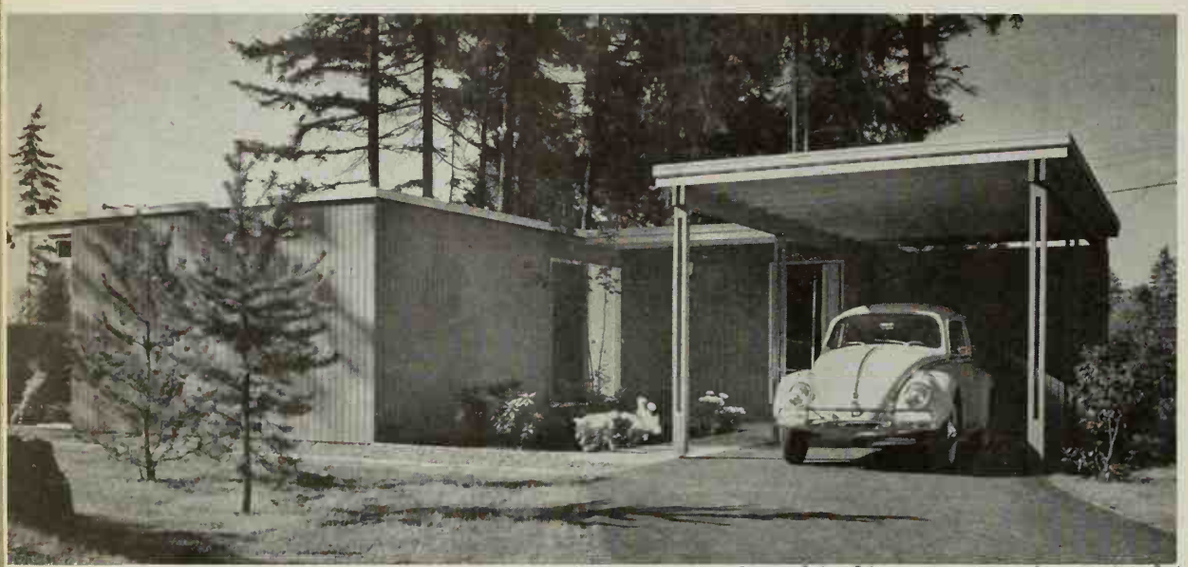
WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS MORE GOOD SMALL HOUSES



All rooms fit together for first class privacy, without the closed-in feeling of many small houses.

From the entry, you can go to kitchen or bath without seeing the living room. The house is 38½x48 feet over all, including carport. Square footage totals 1,104.



Outside, this house is as practical—and inviting—as can be.

The big glass panel beside the front door brightens the hall inside. The projecting carport creates a small court at the entry, and a wide overhang shields the front door from sun and rain.

By John D. Bloodgood

Small houses as good as this one aren't easy to find. It takes real know-how to create a home that will work hard for every member of the family. But if you start with a good design like this, you've got half the battle won. Best of all, you don't need a budget as big as the job your house is built to do.

The secret is simplicity. Only the living room of this home reaches beyond the basic rectangle. Bedrooms, baths, and kitchen fit together as one trim unit, and a perfectly placed carport adds extra dimension to the whole house.

There's no luxury of space. But nothing is sacrificed, and there's not a square inch wasted. All four bedrooms are kept separate from the living-dining area, and the main bathroom is easy to get to. Both the front entry and the master bedroom have two big closets, and there's lots more storage space inside and out.

Stylish utility is the most important feature of the house—and of this two-room area.

If the dining and living rooms were divided, they'd be tiny and cramped, but together they're much more gracious and able to do their work all the better.

Glass does the trick in a small home like this: the living room is brighter—and seems bigger; sliding doors at one end make large patio almost part of the house.

This patio was made with 2x4s and gravel—inexpensive, and a fine base for concrete later.

Card table CAPRICE

Tucked away in a corner of your home can be a private little world of entertainment set out on a card table! It can be a permanent, floating chess game, a party corner for youngsters, or a gossip-and-game center for any age. Vary the covering to suit individual needs (oilcloth now comes in attractive patterns for the paper-and-paste half-pints). We set up three "small worlds" for suggestions. With a few home-designed covers made from yard goods, and some table-top scene-setting, we created totally different amusement areas.

Photographs: Hopkins

Party corner for half-pints is the perfect answer for both inpromptu and planned festivities—dotted eloth is drip-dry, provides a colorful note.

Lollipop tree is a plastic eone studded with pops, filled in with artificial leaves. Menu is eocoa and sandwiehes; dessert's the eenterpiece of course!

← Victorian retreat for guests or family with a taste for tea is the same card table draped in swags and fringe.

The epergne stays even when the tea service retires to the kitehen. Made in minutes to mateh the sentimental cover, it is a series of painted flowerpots and saucers, trimmed with fringe.

Gameeock eorner sports a table eover made from kitehen draperies, pleated from center to corners to permit an uninterrupted parade of roosters.

Team it with a metal candelabra decorated with flowers set in bottle caps, and gumdrops to console the loser of that hard-fought eard game!

Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

STOPS ITCH — RELIEVES PAIN

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all — results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

ACTION IN EDUCATION: A SALUTE FROM BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

By Gerald Meyer

This is the story of a sure thing, a gamble that always pays off. It is the story of public-spirited citizens who bet on education and win. Its theme is progress. Its title: Action in Education.

The story starts where interest in school problems starts, and it follows education into every field. It spreads to all levels of society, adding chapters as Action grows.

The entries in this year's "Action in Education" awards program are proof that important things are being done. The program, set up by Better Homes & Gardens in co-operation with the National Education Association and the National School Boards Association, is designed to give recognition for progress made on the local level and to encourage further efforts.

Many of the solutions presented during 1961-62 were genuine innovations, and the results encouraging. Bond issues that had met with earlier defeat were passed—even in "overtaxed" areas—and school buildings were erected. More and better teachers were hired, and their salaries raised. Undersized school districts were brought together into organized units, and more ambitious programs were made possible. Technical courses were revamped to meet employment needs, and accelerated class groups won new acceptance. Although this was work that had to be done—because of problems that could not be avoided—the fact that people everywhere were eager to do it speaks well for Action in Education.

Spontaneous interest in the present state of our schools caused administrators in King of Prussia, Pennsylvania, to begin a program for teaching microbiology in the sixth grade. It caused an experiment in ungraded primary education in Calhoun, Georgia, and led to the establishment of a school for children with psycho-neurological disorders in Lake County, Illinois. Citizens of Portsmouth, Ohio, an area classified as "depressed" in government reports, contributed over $100,000 for the creation of a branch of the state university, and in East Harlem, New York, teachers volunteered to work nights on a special remedial reading program at the Lewis and Clark school. Pittsburgh volunteers spent 3,400 hours over a period of several months in giving special care to handicapped children. In one newly developed suburban area, contracting companies joined to build an entire school, which they donated to the community.

Probably the most important trend to be observed among this year's entries is a growing sense of responsibility to education. More communities are coming to realize that support of the schools must have social depth and breadth before it can be fully effective. Businessmen, discovering that the schools need their help, are showing new interest in education below the college level. Existing civic organizations are devoting great energy to the improvement of academic programs, and new groups are being formed for the specific purpose of promoting Action.

The growth of Action in Education is reflected in the fact that this year, eight entries have been awarded citations for Exceptional Achievement, almost tripling last year's total. Twenty-three certificates were given for Outstanding Achievement, and the total for all categories was seventy-five.

Here are the eight top entries:

Fall River, Mass.: This year the Fall River Plan, cited earlier by Better Homes & Gardens as "the most important scholarship idea ever developed," reached true national stature. It is now used in 26 states by over 200 chapters of the Citizens Scholarship Foundation of America, and during the past academic year, it provided money for over 1,000 graduating high-school students to attend college. A total of about 1,500 scholarships is expected to be awarded by the Foundation this year, and the plan is now probably the fastest growing movement in the whole field of American education.

The plan was devised by Dr. Irving Frackin, who about five years ago found himself disturbed by the fact that many able young sters in Fall River were unable to attend college. The program that he developed was an original one, so successful that within a few years it became Citizens Scholarship Foundation. The Foun- [Continued on page 12

LIKE TO MAKE THINGS WITH YOUR HANDS?

We have nothing against hobbies. Far from it. Today, hobbies are what separate the men from the boys. But if you must make something with your hands, why settle for ceramic tiles or lamp bases or hooked rugs or number-painting? Live a little! If you must make something with your hands—make music! What could be more glorious...more soul-satisfying... more relaxing...more down-right fun? And you can make music. Right now. Today. Even if you "never took a lesson in your life!"

That's right. With Conn's remarkable new learning method, "Instant Music," you will be playing any one of 39 familiar tunes—in a matter of minutes! All you have to know is your alphabet from "A" to "G." No endless scales and exercises. "Instant Music" gets you off to a fast start and with the right techniques. You play with both keyboards, with various band effects—and with foot pedals, too.

In other words, you play naturally (the way a professional musician does). No lifeless pushbuttons. No recorded gimmicks. You play with true human expression on a professional-quality instrument. The Conn sounds like an organ. The Conn plays like an organ. It is, after all, the product of C. G. Conn, Ltd., world's largest manufacturer of band instruments! There are seven handsomely-crafted models to select from. Prices start at $995, and your Conn dealer can arrange easy terms. Tell him you like to make things with your hands—and he'll have you making music! *For helpful free booklet, "How to Choose an Organ," plus free "Caprice Capers" LP record, just write to Dept. Action in educatio dation is an exemplar of Action in Education and despite its rapid expansion, its purpose and method have not changed. Whatever the community involved, money for scholarships is still raised through the voluntary efforts and contributions of citizens, and virtually all of the money is used directly for college education. Dr. Fradkin himself, with one part-time secretary, operates the CSF central office. He will speak on the Fall River Plan in any community willing to pay his travel expenses. His goal: 5,000 scholarships a year by 1965.

Pittsburgh, Pa.: Educators in the Pittsburgh school system have initiated the largest program of its kind in America—a program which gives new meaning to the term "team teaching." Supported by grants from the Ford Foundation, the team project is designed to co-ordinate teaching, administrative, and community resources in a permanent effort to enrich the educational experiences of culturally deprived children. Nine schools with a total enrollment of 7,500 pupils participated in the program during 1961-62. This year it has been extended to include eight elementary and two high schools.

The most significant aspect of the Pittsburgh project is its inclusion of civic groups and local business as part of the academic "team." The program recognizes the responsibility of citizens to the schools, and calls upon them to carry out many of the co-curricular functions needed to broaden the pupils' perspectives. Public agencies form a basic part of the teaching team, and private agencies have done much to promote the program and provide recreation, study, and library facilities.

Tucson, Arizona: The prize-winning Tucson project began in the fall with what at first appeared to be a routine visit to schools in the border city of Nogales, Mexico. But Arizona teachers and students, surprised and shocked by what they found in Nogales, returned home determined to put a concrete "good neighbor policy" into action. Their determination resulted in one of the truly exceptional undertakings of 1961-62.

Members of the Education Association discovered that the home economics and auto mechanics departments at Nogales High School lacked equipment. They began a drive to provide the school with the needed materials. By April, more than two tons of automobile motors and parts had been sent off to Nogales, together with a station wagon filled with home economics equipment. The Spanish Club at Rincon High School purchased a complete set of silver and china service for use in Nogales home economics classes, and on May 12, a second truckload of engines, typewriters, and sewing machines was sent south.

Atlanta, Georgia: A long period of tension and ill feeling came to a climax and a close last fall wh this city's public schools w opened on a desegregated ba Much of the credit for peaceful segregation of the schools—and the fact that they were even oper —must go to the Organizati Assisting Schools in Septem (Oasis).

Oasis, which co-ordinated efforts of Atlanta's individual ganizations, included everyth from Girl Scout troops to lal unions. It brought together lead from white and colored areas, sti ulated hundreds of meetings in course of the summer, and enco aged prominent citizens to sp out in favor of dignified reopen of the schools. The organizatio religious section promoted the servance of a "Law and Or Weekend" in August, and by end of the month, virtually ev important public official h pledged support of the desegre tion program. When the first "sy bolic ten" Negro students went their classes undisturbed, Oa work was complete. A new sta ard for the South had been set.

Nashville, Tennessee: Back 1953, a fund-raising drive in Na ville provided $20,000 for the tablishment of an educational t vision station, and a foundat was created to put the station the air. Eight years later, in 1 the money had still not been us the foundation had been dea vated, and many people despai of ever bringing the project to c pletion. A last-ditch effort finally provoked by rumors t other civic groups were plann to put the television fund to ot use. A survey was conducted by Radio and Television Council Middle Tennessee, which fin recommended that the $20,000 used to hire an executive direc capable of activating an educat station.

The director was hired an seven-month public relations p gram was launched. By Septem two boards of education agree own and operate the special ch nel, and in March of this yea permit to operate the station issued by the Federal Communi tions Commission. Educatio television had come to mid Tennessee.

Placentia, California: There nothing more tempting for an tor than the chance to boost cir lation through controversy. when schools have problems, th is nothing easier than focusing weak points of the system. C Rospaw, editor and publisher the Placentia Courier, is one n who resisted the temptation. Wh his school district needed help, Rospaw gave it. In the process, accomplished one of the outsta ing public relations jobs of the y ooms. Editor Rospaw took the job upon himself. Working closely with chool administrators and teachers, ie devoted large sections of his veekly paper to outlining local roblems and explaining school olicy to the taxpayers. He went ver the district's financial situaion, won wide support for needed ond issues, and made residents in utlying areas aware of their reponsibilities to the district as a hole.

Detroit, Michigan: The interest hat parents and other private citiens are taking in local school probms is shown here in recent work f the Citizens' Committee for qual Opportunity in Education. hirty-two members of the comittee spent two years and over 39,000 preparing a report on opportunities open to students and achers within the Detroit public chool system. Their final 349-page eport, presented to the board of ducation early this year, recommended 153 changes in the school stem and included an outline of ow the changes could be carried ut. The report has had a powerful ffect upon public opinion in Deoit, and it continues to play an nportant part in the planning of dministrative procedure.

Georgetown, Ohio: It was a big ear for the ladies in Ohio, as the nior division of the State Federaon of Women's Clubs completed s program of assisting elementary nd secondary schools in scores of ommunities. A total of 186 junior ubs, directed by Mrs. Donald omer of Georgetown, conducted udies of the schools and used the sults to help correct deficiencies equipment and curriculum. By pril of this year, member clubs ad helped in the formation of braries, had set up scholarship rograms which award everything om pins to $3,000 stipends, and ad taken a hand in the painting nd remodeling of school buildgs. A final result was the election 25 women (and five husbands of nior club members) to Ohio hool boards.

"Where in the world did he come from all of a sudden?"

We never get as far from working with our hands as some of us like to think. When the wood smoke turns blue against the chilly autumn sky and the last few leaves rattle against the house, it's time to put away the garden spade and rummage out the snow shovel. And young Burt will polish the runners of his sled and hope for the worst.

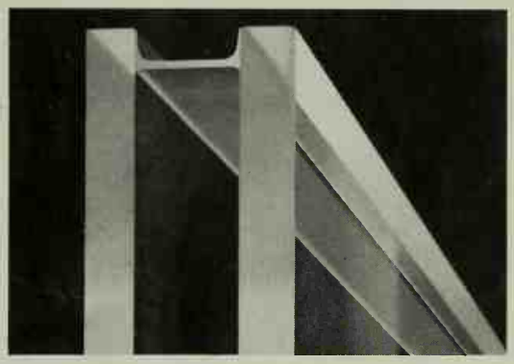
It's insulating glass...but is it Thermopane®?

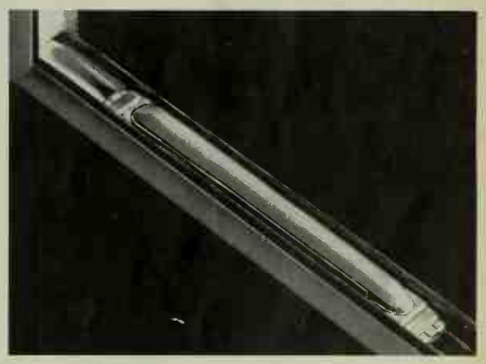
insulating glass

Thermopane is marked for your protection!

1. It's the name you know. Look for the Thermopane trade-mark clearly etched in the corner of units for your protection. It's the mark of the original insulating glass developed by Libbey·Owens·Ford 25 years ago.



2. It's comfort built in. Thanks to a vapor-tight seal. Only Thermopane insulating glass has the patented Bondermetic Seal® that fuses metal to glass—unites them as one*. No "gluing" that can come apart.



3. The captive air between the panes is scientifically cleaned and dehydrated at the factory. To make it even drier, Thermopane has the exclusive Dehumitube (see picture) nestled on the metal seal.

4. It's glass at its best. Thermopane, made by L·O·F, is fabricated with plate glass or "A" quality sheet glass produced in the U. S. This finer quality glass is better to look through.

Now that you know ...tell your builder!

Whether you buy, build or remodel a home, you'll want the comfort and heat saving of Thermopane insulating glass. And the convenience of "no storm sash". Tell your builder you want Thermopane—no substitute—in your home. For additional information, send 10¢ for our illustrated book on Thermopane.

IT USUALLY STARTS AT A PARTY

AT A FRIEND'S HOME

Farewell to Charades, Monopoly, Chinese Checkers, Bridge, and the like. The world's newest and most effective social "ice breaker" is right there in the room. You have trouble seeing it at first because of the crowd clustered around. But you can hear it. And its sweet tones seem to reach right out joyously and pull you into the circle of happy folks. Before you know it, your arm is over somebody's shoulder, you're singing along, tapping your toes, snapping your fingers and generally having one fine old time. Maybe up till this very moment you've never even seen or heard a Conn Organ. Now, suddenly, you find yourself wondering where in your home it would look best!

That's so often the way it starts, the way people first get intrigued with the idea of owning a Conn Organ. And, then, when they find out how easy it is to play... well!

You see, with Conn's amazing new learning method, "Instant Music," you can actually play any one of 39 familiar songs in a matter of minutes. If you know your alphabet from "A" to "G," it's that easy!

Not only that, but you play with both keyboards, with various instrumental effects, and with the foot pedals, too. You play, in fact, just the way a professional organist does—naturally, with true human expression.

That's because the Conn Organ is created by music men, not gadgeteers. It has no gimmicks, no pushbuttons, no one-finger chord makers. It is, instead, a professional-quality home instrument of great tonal versatility and musical potential... created by C. G. Conn, Ltd., world's largest manufacturer of band instruments.

There are seven beautifully-crafted models, with prices starting at $995. Your Conn dealer can arrange payments which are almost as easy as our "Instant Music" learning method! For free booklet, "How To Choose An Organ," plus free "Caprice Capers" LP record, write to Dept. BH-3 Conn Organ Corporation, Elkhart, Ind.

Heirloom crèche figures

Did you notice the meticulously detailed Holy Family shown in the footed bowl on our cover? Though the figures look like carefully guarded masterpieces of the Renaissance, they are no older than this year's dime-store wares.

We bought a group of these figures for less than a dollar each, and turned them into heirlooms by the addition of glued-on scraps of fabric and glitter. The Three Wise Men (above) are a superb tribute to the Christmas season. Apply the same technique to all the other crèche figures. Here are details to help you make them.

First, cover large areas with fabric. Measure and cut velvet into approximate shape—leaving plenty of space for folds and to suggest a fullness of figure.

Don't draw fabric tightly over any part. When material is shaped, turn down one eighth of an inch along edges, over a thin line of transparent glue.

Press glued parts firmly together, and let dry a few minutes. Then brush glue lightly on both figure and fabric. Slowly pat on the velvet, or any other fabric you're working with, one small area at a time. Have cotton-tipped sticks handy to remove excess glue.

For finishing touches, after figures are dressed, trim cro or turbans with sequins rhinestones. Tweezers toothpicks are helpful.

Pluck out bits of fur-fab (gray, white, and brown are ful colors) and apply the t to look like hair and be Paint the stands in dull gol

THE VERY FIRST CHRISTMAS MORNING

An original playlet for children to perform by Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., with illustrations by Jan Balet.

This touching play, like Christmas itself, is meant to be enjoyed by children. Groups of them in churches and schools can perform it over the holidays. The parts are easily learned, and the scenery is very simple. Grownups can help with the costumes.

Or read the play aloud with your family. Assign each child a number of parts appropriate to his age. If your children are too young to participate, they can still enjoy your reading it to them.

Regardless of whether they take part in the play or simply hear someone read it, your children will find the true spirit of Christmas in this story written especially for Better Homes & Gardens.

This play is about the morning after Jesus was born. He was born in Bethlehem, in a stable in back of an inn. The people in the inn slept on soft, warm beds, but all the rooms were full. So little Jesus, in the stable, had to sleep on straw.

This play is make-believe. It is the story of what happened to some lucky children in the inn when they got up on the first Christmas morning. There are no grownups in the play.

The biggest, oldest, most important-looking person is the ARCHANGEL. He (or she) should be about 11 years old. The next oldest person is 10. He is JOEL. His father owns the inn. And there are four spoiled children of a rich merchant from Jericho. They are RUTH, who is nine, RACHEL, who is eight, SUSANNAH, who is seven, and NOAH, who is five.

There are a lot of ANGELS. And there has to be somebody who can crow like a rooster. And somebody who can moo like a cow. And somebody who can baa like a lamb.

Everything happens in the kitchen of the inn. There is a cupboard with these things in it: butter, jam, five slices of bread, cheese, and a pitcher of milk. There is an empty milk bucket on the table.

There are two doorways. One leads out to the stable, where Jesus and Mary and Joseph are. The other leads into the main part of the inn.

JOEL begins the play. He comes out, bows, then speaks to the audience. He speaks loudly, so everybody can hear every word. All of the actors and actresses should do that.

Joel: How do you do, and Merry Christmas. In this play my name is Joel. I am the son of a man who owns the only inn in Bethlehem. This is the kitchen of my father's inn. (A rooster crows.) The sun has just come up. Business is so good that my father's inn is full. Some people have even had to sleep in the stable. (A cow moos and JOEL picks up the bucket.) Every morning I go out to the stable and milk the cow. That is where I am going now. (JOEL goes to the stable.)

(RUTH, RACHEL, SUSANNAH, and NOAH come in from the main part of the inn. RUTH is their leader. NOAH comes last, sucking his thumb. RUTH makes sure they are all lined up right and look nice.)

Ruth: Noah! Stop sucking your thumb. (NOAH stops, but not for long. RUTH speaks to the audience.) How do you do, and Merry Christmas. In this play we are the four spoiled children of a merchant from Jericho. I am Ruth.

Rachel: I am Rachel. Our father is [Continued on page

usannah: I am Susannah. Ve are going to go swimming nd boating.

uth: We have spent the night this inn. We didn't sleep very ell.

achel: The cattle were low- ng and lowing.

usannah: And shepherds ith their lanterns came and ent.

achel: And a star as bright s the sun shone in our window ll night. (A rooster crows.) uth: So we have gotten up at unrise. Now we want break- st. Nobody seems to be here, we'll just help ourselves. RUTH goes to the cupboard.) achel: Noah, do you have nything to say about last ight? (NOAH shakes his head.) hen stop sucking your thumb nd sit down.

uth: There is bread, butter, m, cheese, and milk. There n't much—just enough for us. RUTH starts taking the food om the cupboard to the table. he has to make three trips. The thers go on talking while she akes the trips.) achel: We are lucky we got p so early. Now we get to eat all.

usannah: You know what ather always says: "First ome, first serve."

achel: The early bird gets he worm.

uth: "First come, first serve" —that is what Father said to hose people who came to the n right after we did.

achel: You know where they ad to sleep?

usannah: In the stable!

verybody: Ha ha ha! JOEL yells outside. He has seen ngels in the stable and is scared death. Everybody is startled nd looks in the direction of the ells.) oel: Help! Help! Help! (JOEL uns in from the stable. He does not have the bucket with him.) Somebody save me! (JOEL is panting. He points to the doorway.) The stable! The stable! It's full of angels!

Everybody else: Angels!

Joel: Hundreds of angels! Perched on the rafters! Flying through the air! Singing in the hayloft! (EVERYBODY is looking at JOEL. JOEL is the first one to see the ARCHANGEL when he comes to the doorway. JOEL points to the ARCHANGEL.) Look! Look! (JOEL goes down on his knees and bows his head. He is afraid to look any more. EVERYBODY ELSE is afraid to turn around to see what has scared JOEL. RUTH is the first to look.)

Ruth: Oh! (RUTH goes down on her knees and bows her head. RACHEL looks.)

Rachel: Oh! (RACHEL goes down on her knees and bows her head. SUSANNAH looks.)

Susannah: (SUSANNAH says this softly.) Help. (NOAH is still afraid to look. He sucks his thumb, trying to get his nerve up. He finally takes his thumb out of his mouth, looks around, goes down on his knees and bows his head.)

Archangel: Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. (The ARCHANGEL comes into the kitchen. He is followed by many ANGELS, who line up behind him.) For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

Angels: Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men.

Archangel: The Babe is in the stable here. The mother is Mary. Her husband is Joseph. They are tired and hungry. Give them what you have here to eat, and you will be rewarded a thousandfold.

highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men. (The ARCHANGEL and the ANGELS go back to the stable. After they have been gone for a little while, JOEL dares to raise his head.)

Joel: Hey! They're gone! (EVERYBODY ELSE dares to look, too. They all stand up, still scared.) Is this a dream?

Ruth: I never went through anything like this before in my whole life. We better do what the angel said.

Everybody else: Yes!

Ruth: Is this all the food there is to eat?

Joel: That's all. So many people came last night, they ate everything but what you see. And the chickens and the cow are restless. There are no eggs. There is no more milk.

Ruth: But that isn't fair.

Joel: What isn't fair?

Ruth: If we do what the angels said to do, there will be nothing for us to eat. Mother says we should always eat a good breakfast.

Rachel: I'll get sick if I don't eat.

Susannah: I'll faint!

Joel: I could eat a horse all by myself. I've never been this hungry. (They all rub their stomachs and groan. The ARCHANGEL appears in the doorway. Nobody sees him. The ARCHANGEL puts his finger to his mouth, warning the audience not to let the children know he is there. He loves the children. He is sad when they are selfish.)

Ruth: We have a very young child of our own here. The angels wouldn't want little Noah to starve, would they? (RUTH gives a piece of bread to NOAH.)

Susannah: I'm just a baby, too. I'm only seven.

Ruth: All right. Here. (RUTH gives a piece to SUSANNAH.)

Rachel: I'm only eight.

Ruth: All right, here. (RUTH gives a piece to RACHEL.) And I'm only nine. (RUTH takes a piece for herself.)

Joel: I'm only ten. Besides, I work hard all day long. The angels wouldn't want a hard-working boy to starve. (JOEL takes the last piece. ALL stare at the empty plate. They feel ashamed.)

Ruth: That was the last piece!

Rachel: There are other things left.

Susannah: But what good is breakfast without bread?

Joel: No good at all. We have been very bad. (OTHERS, one by one, repeat, "Bad.")

Joel: We have been very selfish. (OTHERS repeat, "Selfish." ALL hold up their pieces of bread. ALL look at their pieces hungrily.) I am the oldest one here and the strongest. I should be the bravest and the most unselfish. I will try. (JOEL closes his eyes, then opens them and puts his piece back on the plate. The ARCHANGEL is delighted. The ARCHANGEL goes on showing how delighted he is, every time a child does an unselfish thing.) There. (JOEL smiles, showing how wonderful he suddenly feels.)

Ruth: Oh dear, I know I should do the same. I want to do the same, but I don't think I'm strong enough. I'll try. (RUTH closes then opens her eyes. Bravely, she puts her piece on the plate.) There. (RUTH smiles, showing how wonderful she suddenly feels.)

Rachel: I know I can't do it. I want to, but I can't. But I'll try. (RACHEL closes her eyes. Then she opens them. Bravely, she puts her piece on the plate.) There. (RACHEL smiles, too.)

Susannah: If I don't eat the bread, I'll die!

Joel: You won't die. You'll

"IT'S AMAZING how clean our apartment stays with flameless electric heating," Joe Lanning happily reports. And Mrs. Lanning adds, "Our pastel walls and drapes are as fresh and new-looking as the day we moved in."

GIANT REVOLVING GLOBE and sparkling fountain decorate the entrance to Rossmoor Leisure World, new total electric Gold Medallion Community and America's largest senior-citizen apartment development.

"TOTAL ELECTRIC LIVING is a big hit with our apartment owners—and rightly so," says Leisure World administrator Lewis M. Letson, right, to Ralph C. Kiser of the Southern California Edison Company. "As far as I'm concerned, you can't beat it for comfort and convenience."

Nation's largest senior-citizen apartment project choose total electric living for comfort and cleanliness

Rossmoor Leisure World, share-ownership apartment development in Seal Beach, California, features flameless electric home heating, all-electric kitchens and scientifically designed lighting in 6,750-unit Gold Medallion Community.

Located just 25 miles from the heart of Los Angeles, Rossmoor Leisure World is "America's prestige community for happy people over 52." When completed in 1963, it will be the largest project of its kind in the country—and the first to bring together housing and recreational, religious and medical facilities in one centralized location, close to a major metropolitan area. Leisure World is also the first senior-citizen project to include in the monthly payments an insured program for medical care and drugs, except for hospitalization.

Many unusual features attest to the detailed planning that has gone into Leisure World, developed by builder, Ross W. Cortese. Steps and stairs have been eliminated; ramps and gentle grades take their place where necessary. All apartments have been completely soundproofed. Showers have sit-down seats to help prevent slipping. Built-in night lights do away with groping in the dark. And all sidewalks, including the private walks to apartments, are brightly lit at night.

This emphasis which Leisure World places on comfort and convenience is reflected in the total electric design of its apartments. Flameless electric home heating, for example, does away for good with annoying drafts and sudden hot blasts. Individual units let apartment owners adjust each room to exactly the right temperature. And walls and curtains st bright and clean the whole year round.

In the kitchen, a modern electric range helps make cooki fast, clean and cool. There's an electric dishwasher and g bage disposal unit, and a flameless electric water heater th supplies plenty of hot water for every need. Each apartm group has its own electric washer and dryer. And full Hou power wiring provides enough outlets to run all appliances top efficiency—without the worry of blowing a fuse.

Just as in Leisure World, more and more families throug out America are discovering the wonderful comfort and co venience only flameless electricity can provide. And chances that bringing the benefits of total electric living to your family may cost a lot less than you think. Why not talk it over with your local electric utility company sometime soon?

THE TOTAL ELECTRIC HOME that proudly displays this Gold Medallion is equipped with flameless electric home heating and appliances, full Housepower wiring and light for living. And tomorrow it will be as modern as it is today.

.ECTRIC COOKING is wonderful—it's so clean and cool," says Mrs. J. T. Trotter s she shows Mr. Trotter how the all-electric kitchen in their new Leisure 'orld apartment is especially designed to help save steps.

"ROOM-BY-ROOM TEMPERATURE CONTROL is a real blessing," say new apartment owners Mr. and Mrs. John Ford. "Now we can keep each room at exactly the temperature we want." Note how electric outlets and switches are conveniently placed to eliminate stooping and reaching.

It's clean, safe, easy—takes just a few seconds.

The Varaflame uses fuel only when lit. (Other table lighters dry up when they're not in use.)

It's done by an ingenious system of patented valves. These valves let you fill the lighter to capacity at any time (but you can't overfill it). And the valves seal it shut, so the fuel can't evaporate.

The patented valves also make possible the adjustable flame. At the touch of a dial, you adjust the flame from low to high.

Now if you don't have Ronson Varaflame table lighters in your home, you at least know two good reasons why you should get them. And why they make such marvelous gifts.

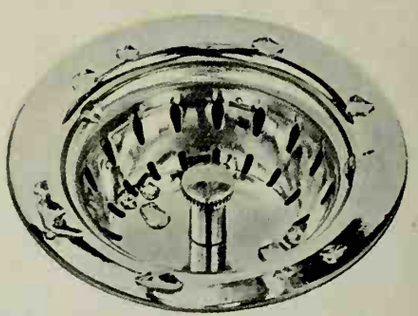
Oh, those food stains! They go deep into your sink surface. You know the rubbing it takes to remove them. And those potmarks. They're even tougher!



After Comet

Deep as food stains go, you can reach 'em and bleach 'em—right down to sparkling whiteness. And, you can say good-bye to the aluminum potmarks. Here's how: Just sprinkle on Comet cleanser and rub a little. Presto! Comet bleaches out the deepest stains, then goes and gets the aluminum potmarks. And, germs in your sink don't fare any better. Comet kills them, too. You do a better job with Comet cleanser—the only one with Chlorinol—best cleaning and bleaching agent in any cleanser. For a sparkling white sink get Comet. It's the best!

A TIME FOR HAPPY DOINGS

"Christmas should be a time of giving of oneself—not just running to the store and spending a given sum of money," says Margaret Landon, attractive and busy mother of four youngsters. She and her husband Dick, of Winnetka, Illinois, know how to turn a home into a little factory of Christmas endeavor. Early in October, Dick's workshop begins to resemble Santa's storehouse, with a collection of wooden figures he and sons Scott and Pete have cut on the jigsaw. But the girls are not to be outdone! While the sawdust is flying, Margaret and her teenage daughters, Lyn and Gail, are busy filling the kitchen with the luscious odor of pecan pies—which are frozen, then later in the season presented to delighted friends. Festive nut trees (bottom) caused so much furor last year that scores of neighbors came over to learn the technique. Christmas cards, too, are an insignia of Landon ingenuity. They've mailed such whimsies as balloons which blow up to reveal a personal message, felt stockings containing Noel greetings, 3-D stars, Santa mobiles. Time out to open presents (below) is both ritual and relaxation . . . with the youngest child doing the honors of passing out the gifts. Each in turn opens his presents, while the family watches. Giant Christmas buffet (right) is a yearly event at which Mrs. Landon's entire clan gathers 22 strong, with each mother heating and serving her prearranged part of the elaborate and taste-tempting spread. Worth all the work? Indeed yes! There's no pleasure—the Landons feel—that could equal the warmth of a happy family get-together on Christmas day.

A TIME FOR SMALL BLESSINGS

Photographs: Scherschel. Data: Lois Rea

"Christmas morning comes . . . and it's still dark. We bundle off to church for the six-thirty Mass . . . such a quiet, thrilling experience to approach the church, with the crib figures out in front and a few stars left overhead." Walter and Dorothy Armbruster of Glendale, Missouri, observe Christmas as the deeply devotional time of year that it is. For their five chosen children, ranging from three to fourteen, the holiday season begins when the family gathers round the Advent wreath (below) for family prayers on the first Sunday of Advent. During the weeks, their home is alive with expectancy and the delight of remembered customs they've established. The Wise Men's walk (left) is one of their cherished observances. On Christmas morning, three tiny figures are started on a stair-step journey from the second floor through the house. For the next twelve days, the children take turns moving the Wise Men till on Epiphany, they arrive at a manger beneath the Armbrusters' colorful International Christmas tree set up in the rumpus room. Toward evening of Christmas day, the children put on a show for the adults.

This, according to Dorothy, was begun as a planned activity to quiet down her exuberant brood, and give the grownups' nerves, which resembled high-tension wires, a chance to uncoil! Their repertoire, a varied one, always ends with father reading the warm and wonderful words of St. Luke while the children act out the Nativity scene. Perhaps their most tender tradition is that of readying the Crib for the Infant Jesus. The Crib (shown at right with three-year-old Jane) is brought out at the beginning of Advent. Each time one of the children does a good deed, he's entitled to add a straw to the bed. There are more, many more delightful activities. The family listens with unceasing pleasure to a select hoard of Christmas records, and often gathers around the piano for carols and hymns. Busily they prepare garlands of popcorn and gingerbread figures for ornaments—secure in their knowledge that Santa will trim a fragrant tree to crown the pure joy of Christmas morning.

Small space! Not much money! But what gaiety and ingenuity Lloyd and Sue Faulkner of Los Angeles bring to their first Christmas together! "With this pint-sized apartment," Sue smiled, "it had to be a choice between Lloyd, me, or a bushy tree!" The answer was the wall-panel tree (left) covered with bright patches of tissue, and tacked-on bits of pine bough. There was no treasure of ornaments to fall back on—so they used the mementos from their wedding and courtship. The effect? Delightful and different! A live tree by the door, (below) based in a paper-striped hatbox, is destined for the front lawn of their first home. Now it's hung with cookies to admire and eat.

Photographs: de Gennaro. Data: Barbara Lenox

Dramatic packages, the Faulkners decided, were a necessity. Though fond of the traditional red and green, they still felt that the spirit of Christmas could be expressed in unusual colors like bright orange and lime green, which they chose. Sue hoarded fabric scraps, odds and ends. Lloyd proved an able assistant during wrap-up days. Their gifts . . . memorable and outstanding!

A TIME FOR GRANDPARENTS

"Come right in and move mama's ju over if you can't find a place to sit," is t jovial holiday greeting uttered by Ep Rixey, an all-time great baseball pitcher the Cincinnati Reds. But he'll be a "mit put out if you don't admire Mrs. Dorot Rixey's "junk"—in reality exquisit designed decorations she starts maki early in the fall for her Episcopal chur bazaar. With unfailing color sense and lo hours devoted to detail, she plans the ho day décor of every room—a group of gia candles nested in evergreen to dramat the enormous gilt pier glass in the hallwa frothy, old-fashioned bouquets for t tree; fanciful centerpieces to grace th polished mahogany table tops. Both them frankly and unabashedly enjoy th role as grandparents at Christmas. "Wh you're a grandmother," Mrs. Rixey sa with a charming smile, "you can find t time to be artistic." The children, like many others, spend Christmas morning home, arrive at the grandparents' home Terrace Park, Ohio, at noon for m presents and fun. Mr. and Mrs. Rixey ready for the onslaught! When the pr ents have been handed out by Grandd the children rush to their own dinner ta which has been as carefully planned as grown-up version, with a pepperm

A TIME FOR BEAUTIFUL SURPRISES

By Russell O'Harra

The wonders of a greenhouse never cease. Every season is greeted with joyful surprises—particularly at Christmas when the beautiful poinsettias, azaleas, mums, and amaryllis stage their colorful show. A greenhouse is a continuing source for gifts proudly given and gratefully received, or for plants to decorate your home every day of the year. If you have always wanted a greenhouse, why not put one on your Christmas list? New construction techniques and building materials have put a greenhouse well within reach. And for a gardener, there can be no better investment than in the joy of beautiful flowers throughout every season.

As night falls, the greenhouse changes its appearance as if by magic. Artificial lights intensify the bright floral colors, further accented by the deep shadows cast by the foliage. The moist, warm air seems doubly comfortable contrasted with the snowy outside. Gloxinias, geraniums, hyacinths, tulips, azaleas, and impatiens bring an early spring to reward the gardener for his time and effort.

Here, Hamilton Mason, Better Homes and Gardens Garden Editor, is shown working with some of his poinsettias. All winter long, his greenhouse is a showcase of lush foliage plants and flowers in bloom. The aluminum structure of this greenhouse is almost maintenance free. Even the barcap strips that hold the large panes of glass in place are aluminum —thus eliminating periodic putty repairs. Photograph: Hopkins

A winter landscape provides the backdrop for colorful greenhouse plants and makes them doubly appreciated. What a different world this child sees as she stands knee-deep in snow to look inside! Hyacinths, tulips, azaleas, and geraniums fill the bright corner.

AND 50 THINGS TO MAKE!

On this and following pages are 50 sparkli symbols of the holiday season—everything fr tassels to trains, clowns to candles, and sleds Santas. Their beauty is beguiling becau they're so easily made and with such sim materials. Gather 'round; get the whole fam into the fun of creating for Christmas.

1. Brighten your walls with the holiday spi Here, a stylized tree is fashioned from a f cutout and glued to a plastic-foam panel. C small holes in the foam and felt and put a stri of small Christmas tree lights in the back fo sparkling star effect.

2. Three impish faces smile their way intc fun-filled Christmas. These packages are rea cover-ups for boxed gifts under the tree. R bons, yarn, and newspaper are all you'll need fashion these funny faces.

3. If your greeting-card list is long, set up family card-making shop. Dress up the ca with such trims as colored picks, buttons, e broidery floss, rhinestones, sequins, or oth items from your sewing box. A quick and ea way to put the lettered greeting on the carc to use a rubber stamp, as we did here.

4. The frame for this star was made from f coat hangers. Tree finials and evergreens co plete the exciting hanging star.

5. Saucy tassels swing from the ceiling to bri holiday cheer to any room. Spools of color thread, yarn, and tree ornaments are all th you'll need to get started.

Opposite page (numbers 6-12): These glitter ornaments can be lavish or simple, scaled to your tree. Splash your imagination with glc ing colors to create results you'll use and enj year after year. Complete how-to informati for all items shown starts on page 88.

13. Elflike figures line up at attention—and they'll get lots of attention, too. These little creatures are clever gift dress-ups that everyone in the family will love. And they're not hard to make. You'll need some odds and ends of jewelry, colorful paper, and the determination to have the most appealing gifts under the tree.

14. A happy little angel is the theme for a stunning wall decoration. She floats on a regal blue background (painted plywood), and is surrounded by a colorful setting that includes tiny gold beads and colorful balls.

15. These doll-like charmers have a very simple beginning: plastic bottles! Fluffy cotton, a dab of glue, and some quick stitches on colorful felt are all that you need to make the smiling Santa, the cheery clown and the long-faced lion.

16. Here's a wreath that will fly its way into the Christmas spirit. The peaceful white doves perch on a circle of evergreen and tiny make-believe oranges to adorn a doorway, wall, or window.

17. Imagine a gleeful glance like this coming from the branches of your tree! With just a little glue and strips of paper, you can dress up ornaments to trim your tree with dozens of funny faces.

Opposite page (numbers 18-26): Start your own fantasy land of pink elephants and pirate chests. But be sure to start with a box that has a gift inside. Details for these and all others begin on page 88.

AND 50 THINGS TO MAKE!

27. Fit for a king's ransom of jewels, or any collection of jewelry, these boxes are precious gifts for mother or daughter. Plain hinged wood boxes were covered with fabric and lined with printed paper. The lid of the box was reversed to give the effect of a shadow box. We've put fabric and paper angels in the lid, but for the same lovely effect, you could use small tree decorations or even jewelry.

28. Make a wonderland of sweets and sparkles to show off on a table or buffet. This candy-laden "tree" is an ornamental footed bowl with a compote cover. Tiny figures keep a watchful guard over the mouth-watering treasure.

29. Surprise your friends with a light-as-a feather centerpiece that hangs from the ceiling. It's easy to make this space-saver with string and paper. Fill the basket with gifts or favors for the holiday guests.

30. A roly-poly Santa and his dapper helper are fashioned of long chenille stems and plastic-foam disks. Santa's "fur" costume is fringed paper. They'll greet guests in a big way.

31. For a gift to give early and one to announce the Christmas season, make a bright hat and handbag. The demure hat stand is a foil-covered oatmeal box; the bag is noncrushable velvet.

Opposite page (numbers 32-39): Here are more of the delicately beautiful and striking towers of glass, similar to the ones on the cover. Just think of all the sparkling possibilities you have hidden away in your cupboard. When you've anchored the scenes inside with double-faced tape or bulletin-board wax, secure the glasses together with dabs of glue. Learn how to make everything shown, starting on page 88.

AND A DOLL HOUSE MAKES NUMBER 50

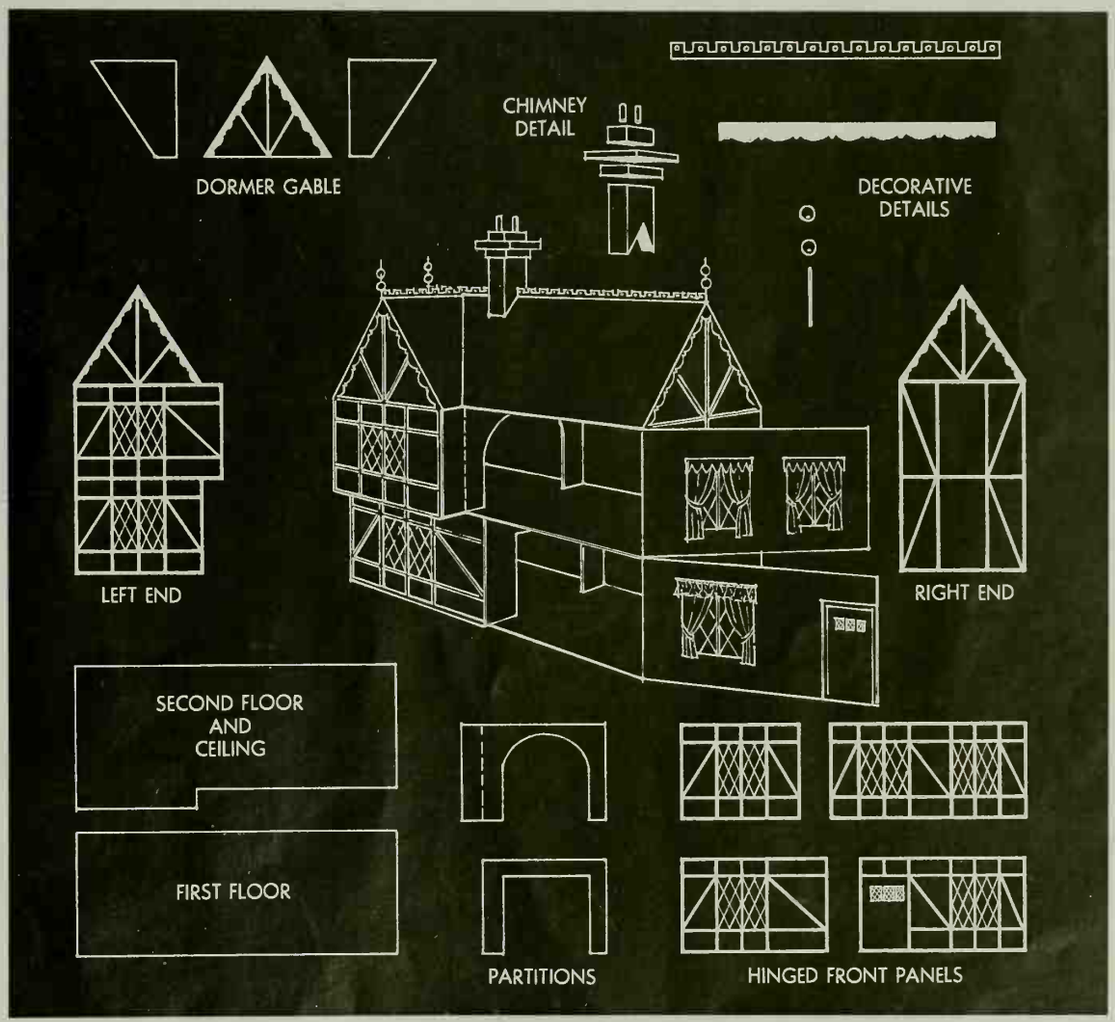
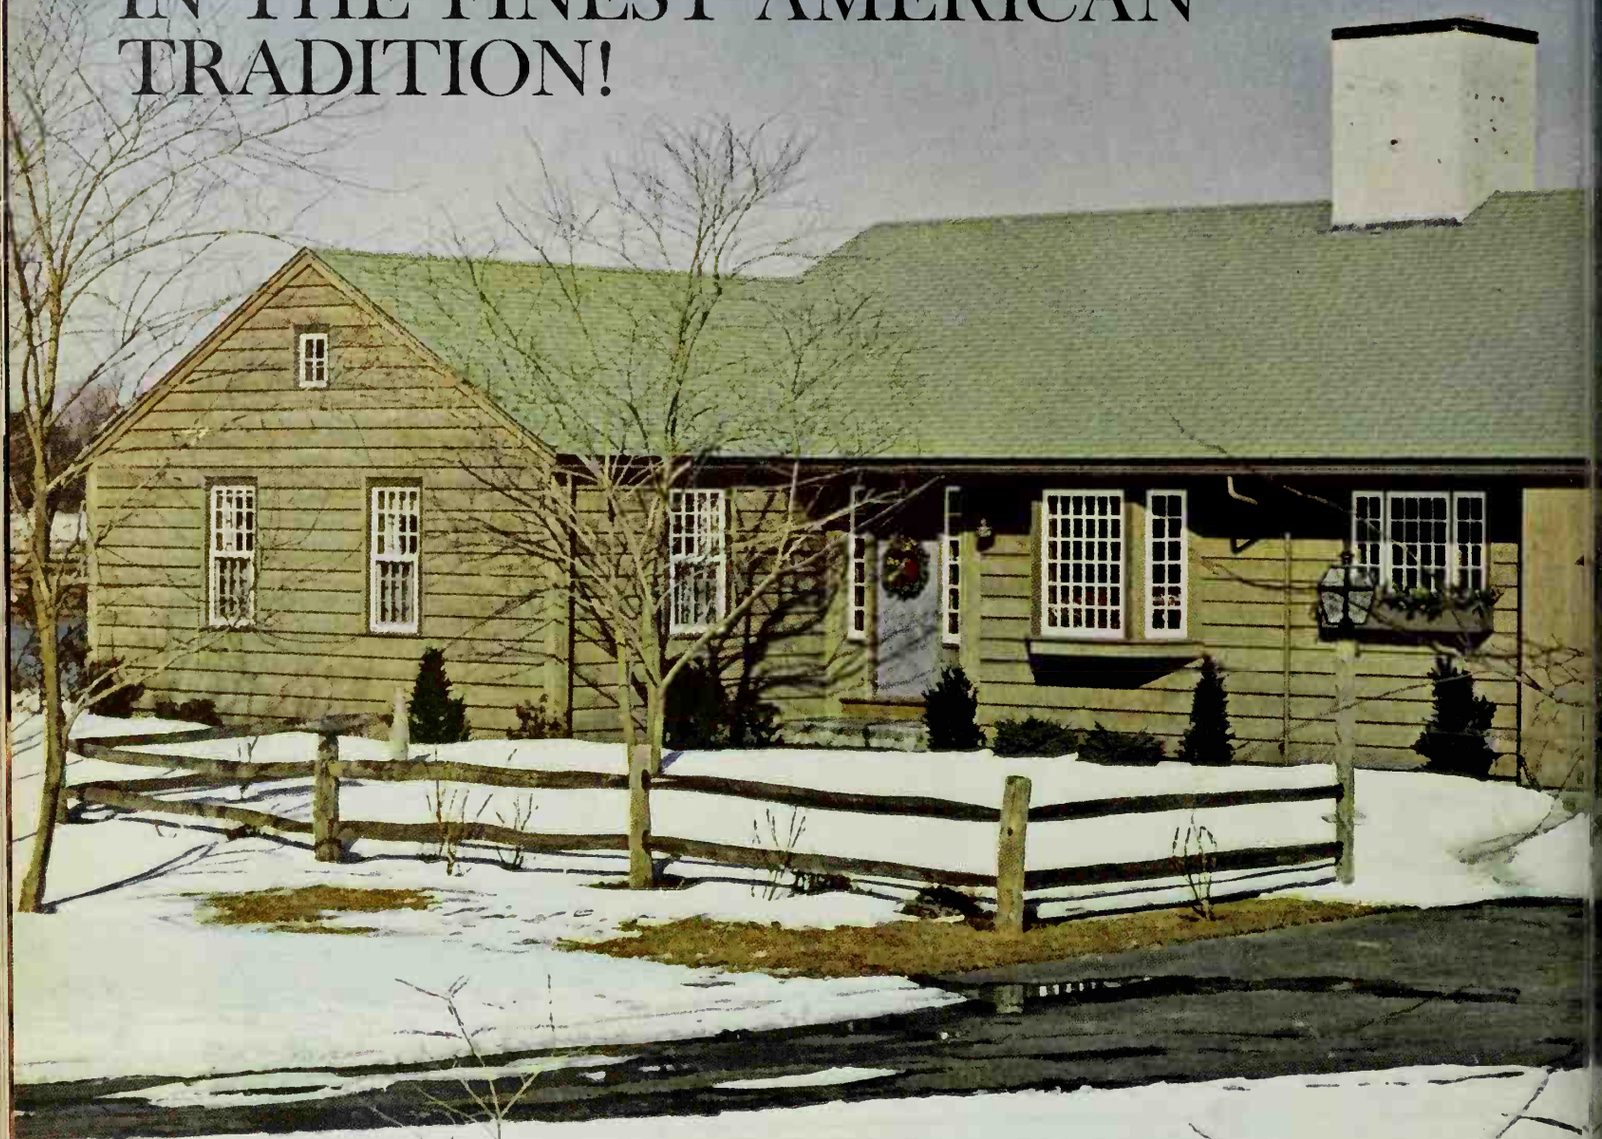
An enchanted little girl completely absorbed in a miniature world is a rich reward for the time spent in building this beautiful doll house. Handyman Editor David Jordan adapted this design from an antique English doll house and built it for his daughter, Lisa. The construction has been simplified to make it easy and inexpensive to do yourself. The entire front of the house opens on hinges to reveal four spacious rooms. This house is built from heavy paper utility board, but you could use plywood or other sheet material. For more details, see page 90.



A good size for this house is 36 inches long, 15 inches wide, and 32 inches high to the roof peak. Or, you could make it larger or smaller to fit the scale of the doll furniture used inside. Fasten the panels together with brads and glue, or use wide masking tape as we did.

IN THE FINEST AMERICAN TRADITION!



When it comes to houses, New England has a special meaning. The lean, solid lines of a Cape Cod like this have a way of stirring up names from our colonial past—Plymouth Rock, Boston Tea Party, Bunker Hill. In another sense, this kind of house means apple cider, pumpkin pie, and Christmas turkey. Maybe it's because so much of our history was made in homes just like it. But there's another reason. A simple, almost plain New England house was sturdy and practical. It did for colonists of the 1600s what we try to do today: make life as comfortable as it can be. And this Five Star home—the best of Cape Cod—was built for today. It bears the mark of the late Royal Barry Wills, one of the foremost architects of traditional homes. With its precise roof pitch, clapboard sides, and small-paned windows, it has the look of a house 200 years old. Its massive chimney stands high, right in the center of the roof. The garage, with a lean-to roof on one side, has the lines of an early salt-box house. But there is more here than charm. Just see the next pages.

IN THE FINEST AMERICAN TRADITION!

New England tradition and efficiency: you'll find both in the Cape Cod home. The welcome begins at either entry. Walk the snow path past the lamppost (upper left) into the wide, covered entry and then to the kitchen beyond. Or, if guests choose the front door, there's no plainer invitation to relax in the living room than the main hallway (above). Its firebrick floor, bright walls, and chestnut beams frame a view of the living room that fairly beckons you in. Once in this big living room (left), a wall of sliding glass lets you enjoy every inch of your favorite view. Rough-cut beams and broad hearth take the chill from the coldest day. It feels like home—and it's as authentic as any Cape Cod room you could find in near-by Sandwich, Massachusetts, where many a "captain's house" still stands. Because this big home (1,833 square feet; 86 x 39 feet over all) is by Royal Barry Wills Associates, A.I.A., you'll find good zoning and circulation. The entry hall is the key. On the floor plan (above), note how it leads you quickly to the living and family rooms (no detours, no obstacles). And the hall does another job: it neatly divides rooms for resting and rooms for working and eating. Bedrooms and two bathrooms are on one side of the house; on the other side, you'll find the dining room, with kitchen and utility rooms beyond. And in every room, there's a full measure of deep-rooted character. It's what shows so well in the family room (opposite)—not just beams, pine walls and slab mantel, not just a bright fire and open hearth, but a place your family can call home.

The hidden cost of "economy" hams

The ham you see on the left, a regular smoked ham with its cover of fat and its bone, costs much less per pound than the one you see on the right, a closely trimmed canned "Ham-What-Am" by Armour.

The big difference in price is because much of the weight of the ham on the left cannot be eaten. The weight of the bone, the outside cover of fat and the internal gristle make it seem less costly.

Armour carefully removes all of this from the "Ham-What-Am," leaving only pink ham meat. Choice meat from the tender hams of corn-fed young pigs. Because you eat every bit of it, a five pound "Ham-What-Am" will serve 18 to 20 people. The cost per serving? About 29¢.

The important thing to remember is that these are servings of the finest ham you can buy—and it's hickory smoked.

The next time you're tempted to buy an "economy" ham, think it over carefully. You will find the "Ham-What-Am" is an exceptional value.

The well rounded meal

It may not be easy to believe, but it is true—Armour Star Franks offer a balance of nutrition equal pound for pound to sirloin steak.

They are made from lean, red cuts of beef—rounds, flanks and shoulders rich in protein; and choice cuts of pork.

These Armour Star Franks are more than an easy-to-prepare snack. They are a solid meat meal with the nourishment active people need. And their smoked meat flavor makes them welcome often. Serve them often.

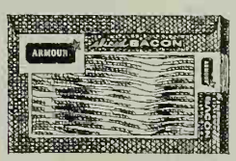
How to select bacon

Most people make the mistake of picking out the very leanest bacon they can find.

When fried, it doesn't always live up to their expectations. All too often they are disappointed because it is tough and stringy, or has a too salty taste.

The bacon to look for should be about ⅓ lean. This is the kind that will fry crisp and tender and have the best flavor.

The place to find this bacon is in the bright red package with the Armour Star.



Don't overcook your meat!

When you cook meat many delicious changes take place. The most important of these to the flavor, aroma and juiciness of the meat, is that heating ruptures the tiny fat cells, and in effect, bastes the meat.

Overcooking speeds up this process, and the rich flavored juices drip out. The longer most meat is cooked, the less juicy it is—and the less tender it is.

Overcooking can be caused by cooking for too long a time or at too high a temperature, or both. This is why you should cook meat slowly at low temperature. HINT: Regular smoked ham will be juicy and tender when cooked to an internal temperature of approximately 155°.

The "Ham-What-Am" by Armour is slowly cooked to this temperature range. This is one reason it's so tender, juicy and flavorful. You only need warm it to serve it.

Swedish Meat Balls

Fluffy, perfect. A smörgåsbord tradition—

¾ pound lean ground beef
½ pound ground veal
¼ pound ground pork
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
1 cup light cream
½ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 egg
¼ cup finely snipped parsley
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
Dash each pepper and nutmeg
1 recipe Gravy

Have meats ground together twice. Soak bread in cream 5 minutes. Cook onion in 1 tablespoon butter till tender but not brown. Combine meats, crumb mixture, onion, egg, parsley, and seasonings. Beat fluffy (about 5 minutes at medium speed on electric mixer, plus 8 minutes by hand). Form in 1-inch balls (for easier shaping, wet hands when necessary). Brown nicely, only a few at a time, in 2 tablespoons butter, shaking skillet to keep balls round. Remove meat balls and make Gravy: Stir 2 tablespoons flour into fat in skillet; add ¾ cup canned condensed beef broth, ¼ cup cold water, and ½ teaspoon instant coffee. Heat and stir until gravy thickens. Add meat balls to gravy; cover and cook slowly about 30 minutes, basting occasionally. Makes 5 dozen.

Fruited Tower Mold

The gelatin top doubles as a salad dressing—

Fruit Layer: Dissolve three 3-ounce packages lemon-flavored gelatin in 2 cups boiling water. Reserving the syrups, drain a No. 2½ can peach halves and a No. 2½ can pineapple slices. Combine syrups and add cold water to make 3 cups. Add syrup mixture to dissolved gelatin. Chill until partially set. Arrange peach halves and 12 maraschino cherries in bottom of a 6½-cup ring mold. Cut pineapple slices in half and dip in gelatin mixture; arrange on sides of mold. Pour in gelatin mixture. Chill till firm.

Dressing Mold: Dissolve one 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Add ½ cup each cold water and mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt; blend with beater. Quick-chill in ice tray in freezing unit 15 to 20 minutes or till firm 1 inch from edge but soft in center; beat fluffy. Chill firm in 3-cup mold. Unmold Fruit Layer on platter; invert small bowl of same height in center. Turn out Dressing Mold on foil-covered cardboard cut to fit it; set on bowl. Pipe cream cheese where salads meet. Makes 12 servings.

Swedish Brown Beans

Sweet-sour to go with Swedish Meat Balls—

1 pound (2¼ cups) Swedish brown beans
5 cups cold water
3 inches stick cinnamon
1½ teaspoons salt
⅓ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons dark corn syrup

Rinse beans; drain. Add water; cover and let stand overnight. (Or bring water and beans slowly to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 2 minutes; cover, and let stand 1 hour.) Add cinnamon stick and salt. Cover, and simmer 1 hour or till beans start to get tender. Add brown sugar and vinegar. Cook uncovered, 45 minutes longer or till beans are tender and liquid is nice consistency—stir now and then. Add syrup. Six servings.

Fruit Soup

Serve with meat or as part of the dessert—

1 11- or 12-ounce package (1¾ cups) mixed dried fruits
½ cup golden seedless raisins
3 to 4 inches stick cinnamon
1 orange, unpared, cut in ¼-inch slices
1 No. 2 can (2¼ cups) unsweetened pineapple juice
½ cup red currant jelly
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
¼ teaspoon salt

Combine mixed dried fruits, raisins, cinnamon, and 4 cups water. Bring to boiling, then simmer uncovered till fruits are tender, about 30 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Cover, simmer 15 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Serve warm or chilled. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Apple Salad Bowl

Colorful, refreshing, festive—

1 cup halved and seeded green grapes

Table-ready meats; cool drinks

THERE'S no end to the different ways you can serve table-ready meats. Tell us about your best fix-up. Or, how about sending in a winning recipe for the coolest drink ever. Two Cooks-of-the-Month will receive $20 each. Nineteen other winners will receive $5 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured in the Prize Tested Recipes pages next July. The winners of these 21 prizes will receive a framed Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Hints to help you

Table-ready meats include—to name a few—canned ham, luncheon meat, deviled ham, and corned-beef hash; also Bologna and other cold cuts. With little effort, you can turn one of these meats into the tub of a casserole, sandwich, or skillet meal. Or, brush with sauce and broil. Tell us what you do.

Cool drinks—sodas, shakes, floats, fizzes, and pretty punches. Whether it's to serve a few or a crowd, we'd like the recipe. Start with fruit or vegetable juices or concentrates. Use carbonated beverage, summer-drink powder, coffee or tea, ice cream or sherbet. Ideas:

reception punch — coffee-chocolate ginger ale with fruit-juice ice cubes — float tomato-juice cocktail — chilly soupshake — frosted lemonade

Contest rules

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper and mark it "July Table-ready Meats" or "July Cool Drinks." If you wish, send a recipe for each of the two categories.
2. Print your full name and address in upper right corner of paper.
3. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, teaspoons.
4. Specify brand names of the nationally known food products you use as ingredients so we can test your recipe with the same brands.
5. Include 50 to 100 words about the origin of the recipe you submit.
6. Recipes submitted become property of Better Homes & Gardens.
7. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, December 31. In cases where duplicate recipes are submitted, the one with the earliest postmark will be judged. All judges' decisions will be final.
8. We reserve the right to adjust and edit winning recipes.
9. Address the recipes you enter to 5512 Test Kitchen, Better Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

HOLIDAY CAKE

To the delight of everyone is this marvelous-tasting holiday cake. Quick and easy to make and so cheery for winter. Just the thing for any Santa Claus or Christmas Eve event or for a Christmas dessert. Here's a gay idea for New Year's, too. See easy recipe, right.

HOLIDAY CAKE recipe

1—Use a package of any delicious white cake mix. Follow directions except instead of 1⅓ cup water, use only 1 cup water and one ½-ounce bottle liquid red vegetable coloring (to amount of ⅓ cup). 2—Bake per directions. Cool. Then, or just before serving, cover with a prepared white fluffy icing. If you serve whole cake, be sure one piece is cut out to thrill everyone with the delicious and exciting red inside.

Fruitcake Spectacular

Here's an easy recipe that makes 18 individual fruit cakes in medium-size cupcake pans, or one cake in a 9 x 5 x 3″ loaf pan.

QUICK HOLIDAY FRUITCAKE

1 pkg. Betty Crocker Date Bar Mix
⅔ cup hot water • 3 eggs • ¼ cup flour
¾ tsp. baking powder • 2 Tbsps. light molasses
1 tsp. cinnamon • ¼ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. allspice
1 cup chopped Diamond Walnuts
1 cup S&W Glace Fruit Mix
1 cup raisins

Heat oven to 325° F. (slow mod.). Grease and flour cupcake pans or loaf pan. Combine date filling from Date Bar Mix pkg. with hot water in large bowl. Add crumbly mix, eggs, flour, baking powder, molasses and spices; blend well. Fold in walnuts and fruit thoroughly. Pour into loaf pan or fill cupcake pan ⅔ full. Bake loaf 1 hr. and 20 min.; cupcakes 35 min., or until toothpick stuck in center comes out clean. Cool. Wrap well. Store in cool place for 2 or 3 days before serving.

Frosting for small cakes: stir 1½ to 2 Tbsps. warm water into 1 cup powdered sugar. Drizzle over cakes and sprinkle with chopped walnuts.

Some like it hot...some like it cold

There are those who say nothing does so much for a Florida grapefruit as broiling it to a golden brown. They say this takes away a little of the tartness —while adding something all its own.

On the other hand, there are those who refuse to tamper with one of nature's noblest efforts. They take the tart-sweet tingle of grapefruit as it comes.

In between, then, are all kinds of people who like it both ways—and who are willing to try it other ways, too. In salads, for example. Or under sherbet.

The point? There is a way to fix grapefruit that will please anybody and everybody. How about you?

Artichoke–Pimiento Bowl

- 1 recipe Italian Dressing
- 1 9-ounce package frozen artichoke hearts
- 1 4-ounce can or jar pimientos, chopped
- 1 2-ounce can anchovy fillets, diced
- 2 cups torn head lettuce
- 2 cups torn romaine lettuce
- 2 cups torn small spinach leaves

In saucepan, bring Italian Dressing to boiling; add artichoke hearts. Cook till tender, about 3 to 5 minutes. Cool; stir in pimiento and anchovies. Chill in dressing till serving time. Drain off dressing, and reserve. Add artichoke mixture to salad greens; toss with enough reserved dressing to coat. Makes 8 to 10 servings. Italian Dressing: Combine ½ cup olive or salad oil, ⅓ cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons water, 4 thin slices onion, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 clove garlic, crushed, ¼ teaspoon celery seed, ½ teaspoon salt, and dash pepper.

Mrs. Mortimer Lazarus, Jericho, New York

Borsch Salad Molds

- 1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin
- ¾ cup boiling water
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 2 4½-ounce jars (1 cup) strained beets (baby food)
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated onion

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add remaining ingredients; beat smooth with electric or rotary beater. Pour into 6 individual molds; chill till firm, about 6 hours. Unmold on red onion slices. Serve with chilled marinated cooked or canned peas.

Mrs. Walter Flynn, South Fort George, B.C., Canada

Baked Blueberry Pudding

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- 1¼ cups canned applesauce
- 1 1-pound can blueberries, drained
- 1 recipe Lemon Sauce

Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg. Sift together dry ingredients; add to creamed mixture alternately with applesauce, beating till blended. Fold in berries. Pour into 6-cup greased and floured mold. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour and 10 minutes or till done. Makes 6 to 8 servings. Serve warm with Lemon Sauce: Mix ¾ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Slowly stir in 2 cups water and 1 slightly beaten egg. Cook and stir till mixture thickens and just comes to boiling. Remove from heat; stir in 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel and 3 tablespoons lemon juice.

Mrs. Nettie Gideon, De Soto, Missouri

Cran-Mince Parfaits

- 1 3- or 3¼-ounce package vanilla pudding
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped
- 1 cup prepared mincemeat, chilled
- 1 10-ounce package frozen cranberry-orange relish, thawed

Prepare pudding according to package directions; chill. Beat smooth; fold in whipped cream. In 7 or 8 chilled parfait glasses, layer mincemeat, pudding, relish. Mrs. N. L. Smith, Minneapolis, Minnesota

Cherry Eggnog Mold

- 1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup sugar
- 3 slightly beaten egg yolks
- 1½ cups milk
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 3 egg whites
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ cup thinly sliced Brazil nuts, toasted and salted
- ½ cup thinly sliced drained maraschino cherries
- ½ cup whipping cream, whipped
- Rum flavoring to taste

Mix gelatin and ¼ cup sugar. Stir in egg yolks and milk. Cook and stir over low heat till mixture thickens slightly; add vanilla. Chill till partially set. Beat till fluffy. Beat egg whites to soft peaks; gradually add ¼ cup sugar, beating to stiff peaks. Fold egg whites and remaining ingredients into gelatin. Pour into 5-cup mold. Chill overnight. Serves 6. Mrs. H. J. Klapmeyer, Amarillo, Texas

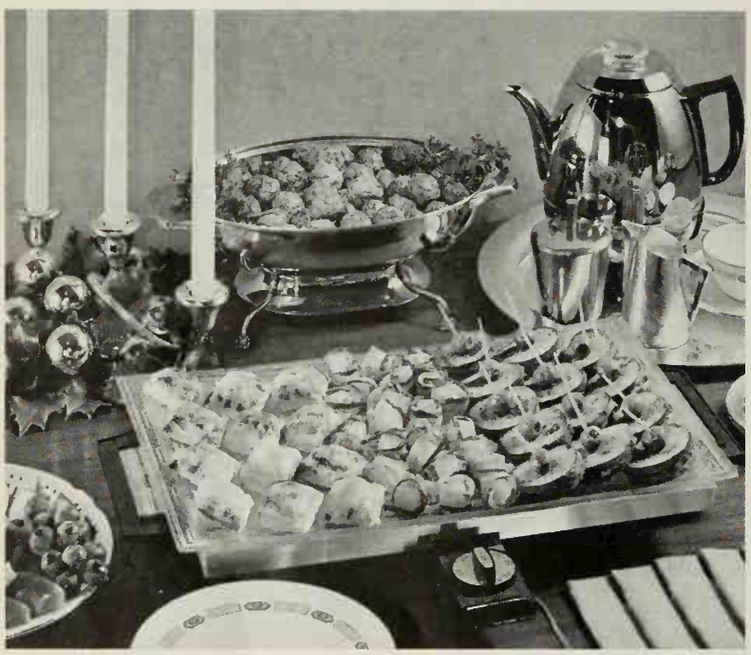
WAYS TO KEEP HOT FOODS HOT!

For fun without fret, an "eat-anytime" buffet is tops. It puts guests at ease, frees you to visit. How's it done? Well, wise up to warmers. Look at these tricks for hot food anywhere, anytime.

Just serve where the crowd is—a buffet supper before the fire or a snack while they listen to records. The secret of an "eat-anywhere" buffet is serving foods that take no last-minute fuss, getting them ready before folks come, then using warmers to keep 'em tasty.

Just use your serving cart as a buffet table. Electric fry pan not only cooks food but keeps it hot till the crowd eats. Candle keeps beverage carafe warm.



Say happy holidays to your friends with an open house. It's the easiest way to handle the largest crowd. And it pleases folks because they can come when it's most convenient for them. But you certainly don't want to be a ghost hostess who stays in the kitchen cooking or warming up snacks. Here's how to avoid it:

Bring your electric coffee maker right to the buffet table. And your griddle can go glamorous for serving several kinds of warm taste-tempters. Casseroles with candle warmer bases are party perfect, too.

Other table-top keep-warm ideas: electric saucepan, portable oven, bean pot, bun warmer, electric tray, or chafing dish. Aluminum foil cover holds heat in, too.

Photographs: Scott, Photography Inc.

Surprise' em with a portable party. Why not a fondue feast? It's such wonderful fun for winter evenings because everybody gathers cozily around the same pot of bubbling cheese mixture, dunks chunks of bread with long forks. A one-dish meal or late-evening treat.

Smart idea for keeping the fondue bubbling hot—set your earthenware fondue casserole on your electric warming tray. There's room for a basket of bread chunks, even coffee cups. Just bring along the electric coffee maker, and the party's in motion. They'll eat every bite. (A chafing dish also doubles as a fondue cooker.)

Your electric warming tray has many other party possibilities, too. Or use it to keep dinner warm when Dad misses the train or your budding basketballer has to stay late for practice. Even serving carts with warming tray tops are available for extra convenience.

Will they grow up in a free world? Would you want them to grow up in any other kind? The answer to that question is why millions of Americans regularly visit the Savings Bond window at their bank.

What 63¢ a day can mean to their future

. . . and Uncle Sam's

Investing 63¢ a day at 3¾% interest can bring some pretty nice things into your future. In six years—$1,500 down on a new home. In twelve years—nearly $3,500 for college costs.

But things being the way they are, it's pretty hard to consider your own future without giving some thought to your country's future, too. Millions of Americans have done this and are putting their savings into United States Savings Bonds.

The money you invest in Savings Bonds is one of the best ways you can help Uncle Sam today. It helps keep our economy strong and provides one of the most dependable means the Government has to manage the costs of national defense.

Buy a Bond today. You can lend your country a real hand now by saving this way for the future.

Five ways U.S. Savings Bonds benefit you personally

1. You get 3¾ % interest to maturity.
2. Your Bonds are replaced free if lost.
3. You get your money whenever you need it.
4. You can save automatically where you work.
5. Your investment is guaranteed by the U.S. Government.

Savings Bonds are fireproof. Theft-proof, too. Every Savings Bond you buy is registered in Washington and will be replaced free.

Keep freedom in your future with

Easier entertaining with your freezer

Be prepared for the holiday festivities and last-minute get-togethers this season. Party foods, made in advance, can be frozen, ready to serve on short notice. Here are some slick tricks for freezing that can simplify your entertaining plans and save lots of last-minute preparation time for the hostess.

Individual desserts in serving dishes, pictured here, are being placed in the freezer to eliminate just-before-party rush.

A moisture-vaporproof wrap of saran or foil tops each serving. Secure cap with freezer tape.

Other glamour desserts such as parfaits, cream-puff shells, baked Alaska, ice-cream pie can be made ahead of time and kept in your food freezer until that special time for serving arrives.

Photographs: Allen Snook

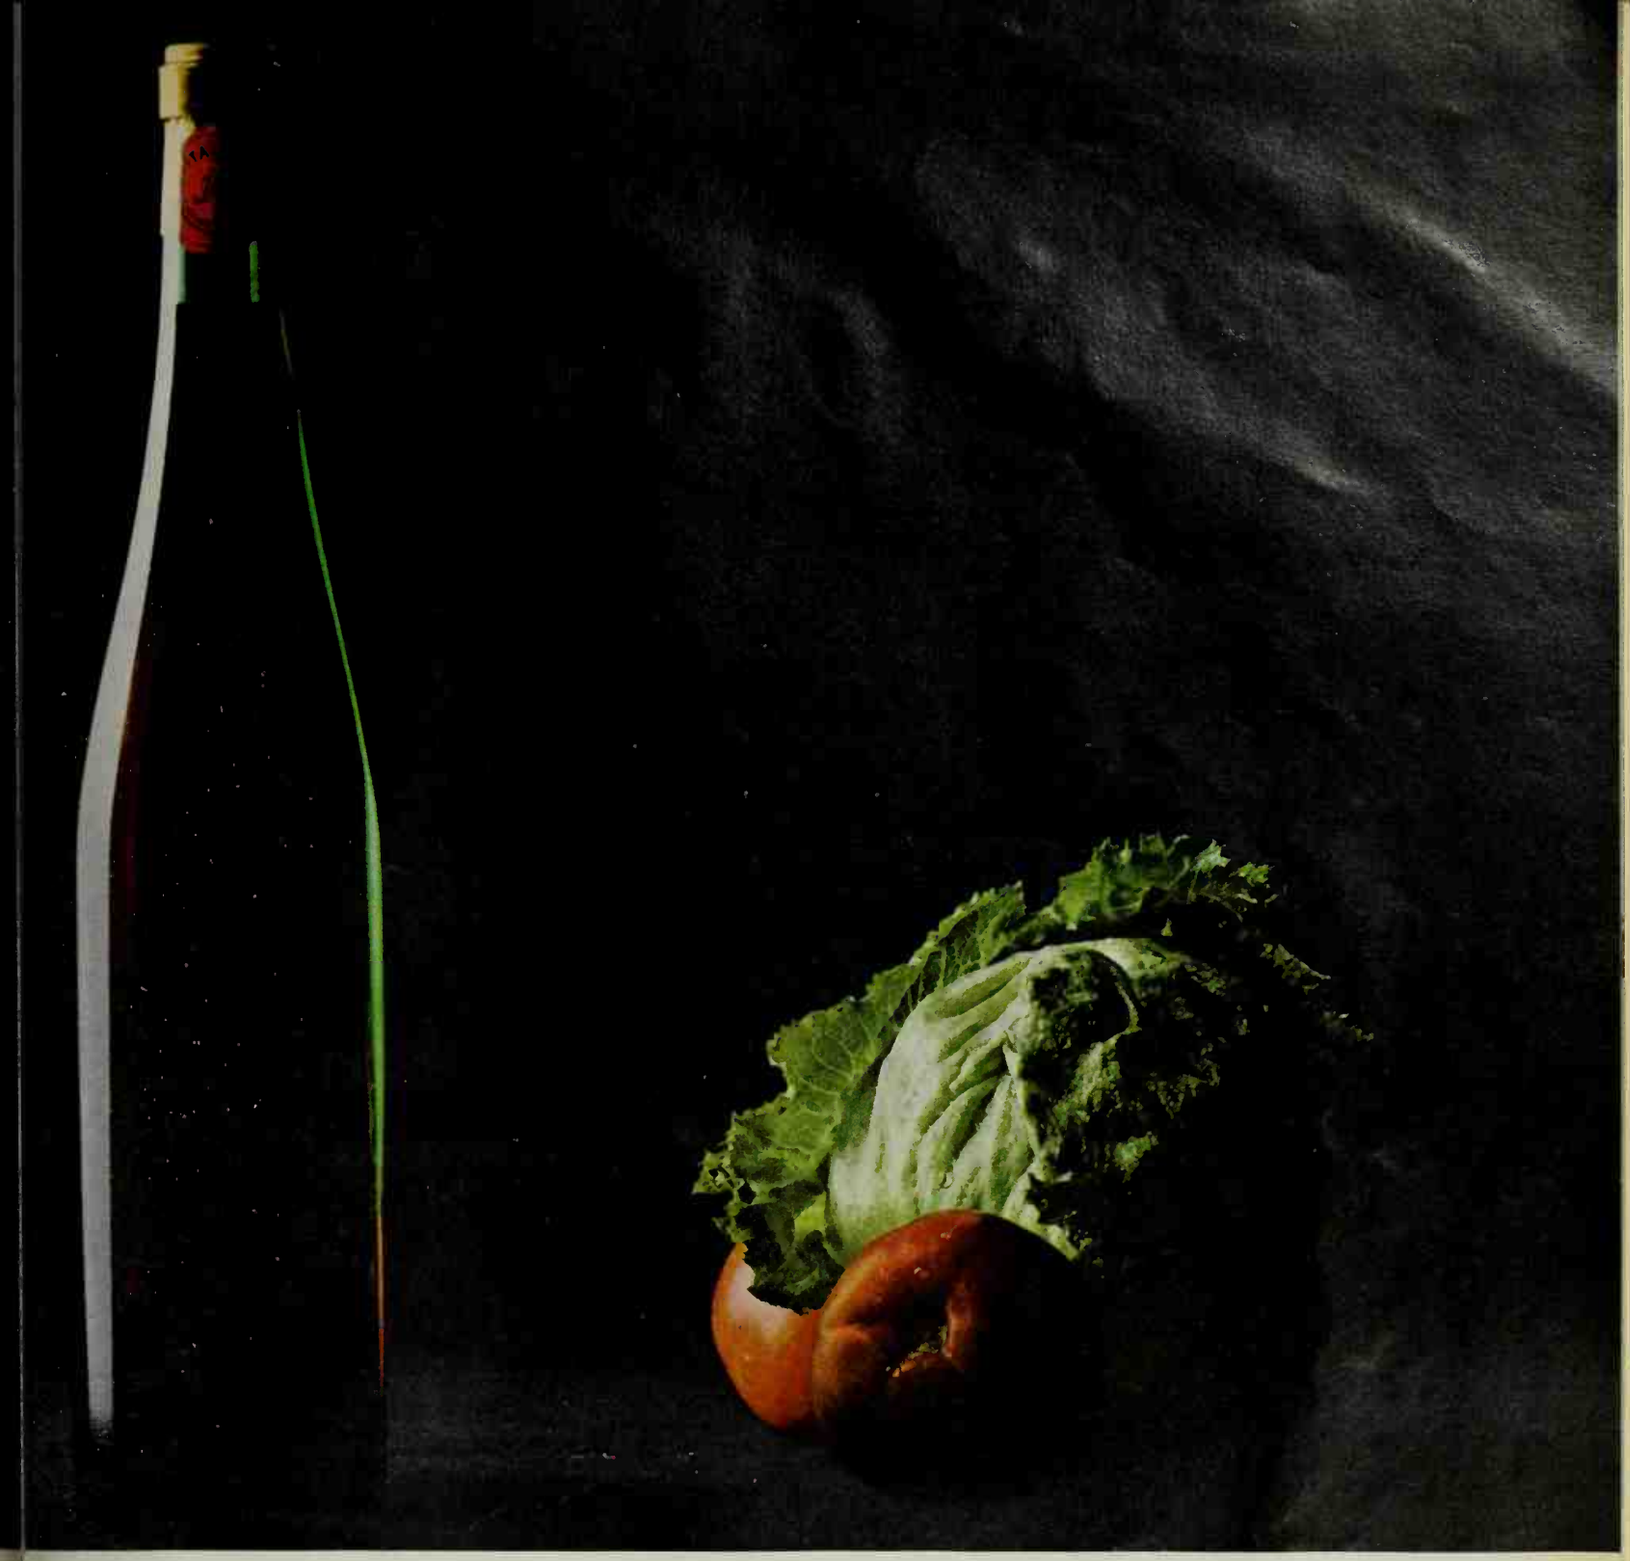
Freeze pies before baking. Put steam vents in later. A 2½-inch cardboard collar placed around edge of pie protects crust. Wrap for freezing.

Bake frozen pies without thawing, to prevent undercrust from getting soggy. For best results, place frozen pie directly into a preheated oven.

After five minutes of baking, cut your favorite design in the crust to let steam escape, then return pie to the oven.

Have quick breads ready to bake. Freeze in paper baking cups, then transfer to an easy-to-store bag like this self-sealing polyethylene one.

To bake muffins without thawing, start in a 300° oven. After they've risen, increase the temperature to the recommended degrees until they are done. Luscious yeast bread was baked, and will be foil or plastic wrapped for freezing.



The age-old secret of Continental chefs . . . is the exciting new taste in salads!

NEW

Wish-Bone Dressings blended with wine.

For hundreds of years Old World chefs have enhanced their greatest dishes with the warm flavor of wine. Now Wish-Bone brings this flavor secret to your table in two new salad dressings blended with wine.

DECEMBER GARDENING WHERE YOU LIVE!

With
Better Homes and Gardens
WESTERN FIELD EDITOR
Norvell Gillespie

This month I'd like to send to several close friends plant gifts that will have a story behind them. I've used the poinsettias for several years now, but am anxious to try something new. Any ideas?

E.B., Spokane, Washington

Why not consider such unusual plants as the Christmas rose (hellebore) whose flowers were formed by tears, it is said, shed by a girl tending sheep on the road to Bethlehem. She was crying because she had nothing to bring to the newly born Christ Child. And, as her tears fell to the earth, an angel turned them into Christmas roses. She took a large bouquet of the pure white blooms to the manger, and when the Christ Child touched them, they became flushed with pink. Cecil Solly, the noted Northwest broadcaster, used this legend in his Christmas card to friends recently.

Other good plant materials would be holly, rosemary, and sage. Alfred Carl Hottes, one of the early garden editors of Better Homes & Gardens, wrote a book entitled, "1001 Christmas Facts and Fancies." The legends can be explored in these pages of fascinating reading, and the book is to be found in most public libraries.

I want to add to my collection of big trumpet-flowered daffodils. How about some of the triandrus varieties of narcissus for early bloom? E.N., Boise, Idaho

Good idea. The triandrus varieties of daffodils have been generally overlooked. And they are exceedingly worth-while. They have pure white flowers in clusters of two and three on dainty stems 15 to 18 inches long. Thalia is usually the earliest to bloom. Moonshine comes along in midseason with creamy white blooms. It's true that most daffodils do best in full sun, except in hot, inland areas. Moonshine, however, performs well in shade and creates a real picture when given a naturalized setting.

Are lilies—not just Easter lilies, but the beautiful hybrids—as easy to grow in pots as tulips and other bulbs?

Mrs. C.P., Las Vegas, Nevada

About the only difference is that lily bulbs must be provided with deeper pots than the ones required for daffodils and tulips. Usually, single, top-sized bulbs are placed individually in 8-inch pots, or three bulbs are set in 12-inch pots or tubs. Old-fashioned, unglazed clay pots seem to give better results since they are porous and drain well. But redwood containers and Japanese soy tubs make handsome containers as well.

Lilies like a rich, well-drained, gritty soil, yet one with sufficient humus to satisfy the needs of the roots. Use equal parts of loam and rotted oak-leaf mold, bark, or redwood soil conditioner, and one-fourth coarse river sand. Some gardeners add bone meal at the rate of about a heaping tablespoonful to an 8-inch pot, but I think it's easier to feed lilies with liquid fertilizers during the spring and summer when they are growing. THIS IS NOT AN ADVERTISEMENT

Some tissue boxes are advertisements for the tissues inside.

With Chiffon, the tissues inside are advertisements for the tissues inside. Chiffon is so good, we don't think we need to keep reminding you of the name.)

Observe our discreet box.

There is no big, bold type running up and down the sides and across the top. There are no bright, showy colors to attract your attention.

It's just a neat box with a subtle diamond design that's guaranteed not to offend your artistic sensibilities.

(All advertising and sales promotion material is on a removable see-through overwrap that you throw away.)

Oh, yes.

There is one little thing.

The name Chiffon does appear in small, almost invisible letters on the box.

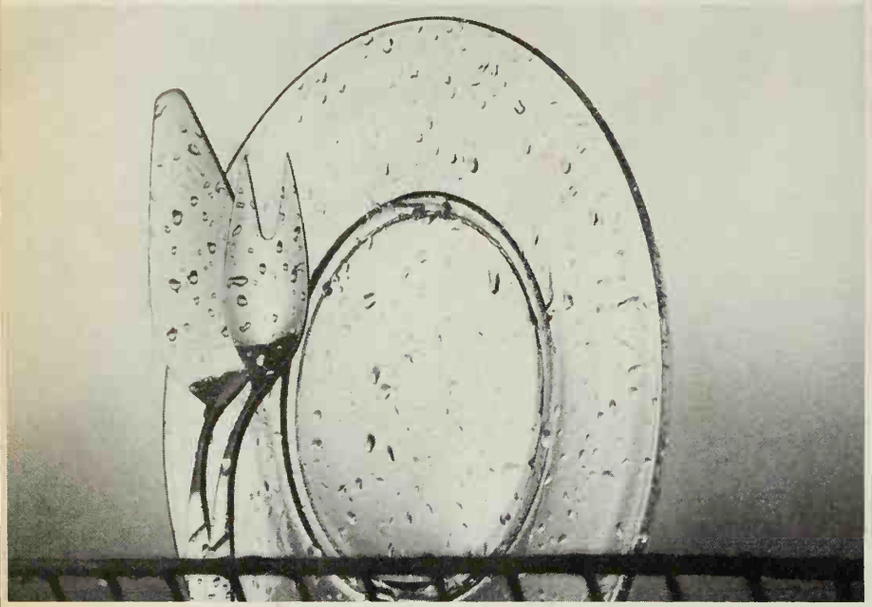
See why more dishwasher owners use Cascade than any other product...

Cascade eliminates drops that dry into spots!



WATER DROPS See what happens when even clean water is sprayed on glassware, silver. This test shows how drops form. These dry into ugly spots.

CASCADE But with Cascade drops don't form! Just as in your dishwasher, water slides off in clear-rinsing "sheets." Dishes, silver dry as spotless and sparkling as possible.

No other dishwasher detergent cleans better...

Cascade is absolutely unsurpassed at stopping spots (your toughest problem in automatic dishwashing). That's because Cascade has Chlorosheen ...an exclusive formula that eliminates the drops that cause spots. Drops aren't left to hold grease and food particles or dry into cloudy streaks or messy spots. You've never seen dishes cleaner, silver brighter! No other dishwasher detergent does a better job. Better get Cascade for your dishwasher!

...or is safer for china patterns!

Cascade is rated safe for today's loveliest china patterns by the American Fine China Guild, whose members make Castleton, Flintridge, Franciscan, Lenox and Syracuse china. Their recommendation was given Cascade after testing every leading dishwasher detergent. Look for this important seal of approval on every Cascade package.

Can you suggest a couple of companion plants to go i our rhododendron beds to give color and interest oth months? W.L., Bellevue, Washingto

In recent years, both the Japanese skimmia (S. japonic and the lily-of-the-valley shrub (Pieris japonica) have com into wide use. Both are evergreen shrubs that thrive whe ever rhododendrons grow.

December is a good time to check the behavior of skimm plants, because the leaves are just as pert and glossy a earlier in the year. It's a foreground plant with a compac rounded habit. Red hollylike berries are out now and wi last until January—providing both male and female plan have been set out for proper pollination.

The lily-of-the-valley shrub is slow-growing, but eve tually reaches a height of about six feet. The clusters pearl-white blooms come in early spring.

Can you give me any hints on how to prune pyracantha I want to cut plenty of red-berried branches this mont for use in church decorations, but I don't want to har my plants. Mrs. S.W., Phoenix, Arizon

The main thing to remember is that berries are produce on two-year-old wood. When you cut branches for decor tive use this month, cut them back to a lateral. Other tha this, just give the plants water during the summer, a litt fertilizer, and you cannot stop them from growing.

When should rose bushes be transplanted?
F.N., Los Angeles, Californi

The best time to transplant rose bushes is late Decembe to mid-February. Before you shift the bushes to their ne spots, cut back the tips, remove all the old foliage, an you'll find the plants are much easier to handle. You'll win up probably with a series of canes about 15 inches tall.

I grow tuberous begonias under lath, but after the firs good blooms my plants throw defective blossoms.
C.A., Fairfield, Californ

The fact that the Fairfield area is subject to the hot, dr winds from the Sacramento Valley is the real cause of you problem. Cooler temperatures early in the season allo good first blooms, but the advancing season's heat caus blooms to fail. To insure good blooms, install a fogger-mi system that can be operated for pennies per day.

Would you please suggest some evergreen vines I can gro in a bay-window planter that gets sun all day long?
C.Y., Lakewood, Californ

I can't think of anything finer than bougainvillea for th purpose. It's a reliable evergreen in your part of Californi and yet furnishes you with color six months of the yea There are at least a half-dozen hybrids on the market no ranging from purple-reds to magentas to scarlets.

A more exotic plant—one not to be found in the averag garden—is the Beaumontia grandiflora. You can expect fr grant, trumpet-shaped, 5-inch flowers—just like East lilies—from May until September.

Remainder of parts are colored paper and cardboard. Cars: Cover gift boxes with colored paper. Mount on platform of lightweight cardboard. Wheels and windows, same as engine. Track: Cut length desired from heavy paper or cardboard. Sketch on rails with brush or marking pen. Mount train on track with glue or double-faced gummed tape.

25. Trunk box. Wrap gift in brown paper. Glue orange cardboard strips, side handles, as shown. After strips are in place, glue on paper lock.

26. Fruit basket. Use ice cream container as box for gift. Wrap bottom in brown wrapping paper. Use black marking pen for grain effect. Glue on strips of gold paper, then anchor fake apples to lid.

27. Elegant boxes. Remove hinges from plain wooden box available in hobby shops; reverse lid. Order a single-strength glass cut to fit top. Line box with Christmas wrapping paper, first on bottom of lid and inside box. Cover outside of box with velvet or paper, trimming edges as you go along. Cover recessed part of lid with velveteen. Add gold trims. Place decoration in lid, then glue on glass top. If desired, glue buttons or jewels onto the four corners for "feet." When box is completed, spray with clear plastic to keep from soiling.

28. Candy-laden tree. Fill a glass candy jar with colorful sweet treats. Inverted compote covers jar and supports inverted glass salt dish.

29. Hanging centerpiece. Cut a strip of stiff paper 12x25 inches. Fold in half lengthwise, both directions. Measure off 5 equal sections, fold and crease each section both directions. Unfold completely. Cut each folded section along one side of paper into sharp triangles; fold each one of the triangles over lower half and trace around edges. Crease firmly each of the traced points. Join two ends together with tape. This leaves you with 5-pointed star

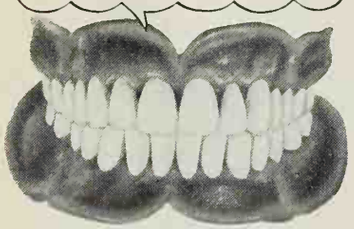
NOW! DENTISTS HELP OVERCOME THE SHOCK OF NEW FALSE TEETH- WITH FASTEETH



When false teeth get on your nerves many dentists give special FASTEETH powder. It helps hold teeth in place—helps keep them from slipping or dropping down when you talk—makes you feel more secure. FASTEETH cushions tender gums so you can bite harder and eat faster with greater comfort. FASTEETH helps you laugh and speak clearly without embarrassment. FASTEETH checks "plate odor" (denture breath). At drug counters everywhere.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

STOPS ITCH—RELIEVES PAIN

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

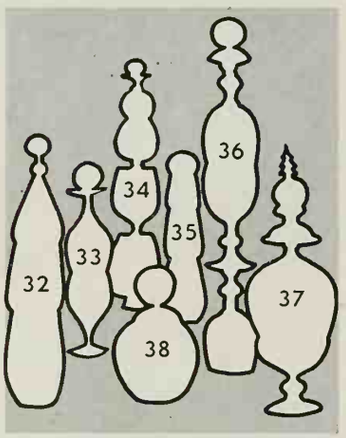
at bottom. Run a needle and thread through each of center folds. Turn back flaps at top. Attach string to corners. Trim points with gold paper, ribbon, or glitter.

30. Santa: Stick tips of 36 red chenille stems about ½ inch apart into 4-inch plastic foam disk. Stick tops into 2½ inch disk. Cut 24 stems to 8-inch length; stick into top edge of same disk. Then stick other ends into another disk, forming head. Glue 3 or 4 stems into each side of middle disk for arms. Glue to felt mitten. Add paper features. Paste lei around wrist and neck. Staple felt hat and scarf in place. Snowman is made same way except white chenille stems are used.

31. Poinsettia ensemble. Cover hat form with velvet. Cut stems from artificial poinsettia petals. Put blue on back of petal, but only on bottom half. Start pasting at bottom of frame, fitting one leaf between the other. Large leaves go at bottom, small ones at top. When all petals are glued on, add ornaments. For the bag, sew two circles of velvet together; leave opening at top for gold cord drawstring. Hatstand: cover an oatmeal box with paper; glue on paper features.



32. Using 8- and 12-ounce tumblers, glue Santas to glass, as shown. White plastic ferns from display stores complete scene. Glue ball to Santa's topknot.

33. Fill goblet with angel floating on angel hair. To cover, invert same size goblet; glue rims together. Top with ball. (For gluing all the glass items shown, use this technique: Brush transparent glue around rims of glasses. Press together and hold until glue adheres. Figures inside glasses are anchored with glue, bulletin-board wax, or double-faced tape.)

34. Four footed rose bowls in graduated sizes are used here. Display family mementos for all to see, or purchase inexpensive Christmas figures from the dime store. Invert top bowl, then anchor ball in place with glue.

35. Fill 12-, 8-, 6-ounce tumblers with small size balls; glue together. Place gold ball on top.

36 Goblets. Here's a chance to use three of the same size goblets. Glue rims together securely after placing scenes inside.

37. Invert a footed rose bowl on a milk glass sherbet. Finial is an inverted salt dish topped with red ball and tree.

38. Two sheep and a shepherd find a home in this rose bowl with a foil star and bauble at its tip. For complete shopping information about the glassware shown on our cover and on page 53, write to Editorial Information, BETTER HOMES & GARDENS, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

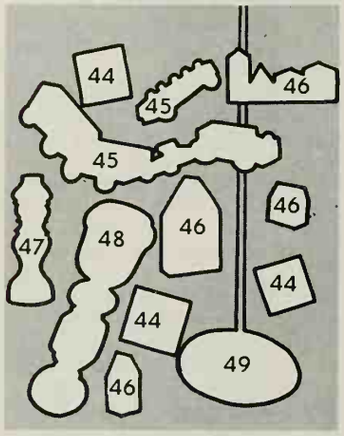
39. Fringe tree. Proportion branches to size of gift box. Base and trunk are cut from colored paper. Top tree with gold foil star. Flower plant: Take a piece of paper large enough to wrap around entire package; cut scalloped leg design and top trim. Wrap around box; add artificial flower.

40. Milk carton puppets. Cut through middle of quart milk carton on three sides. Bend in half on uncut side, bringing edges of top and bottom together. Cut off pouring spout; flatten top. Cover with colored paper or fabric. Line "mouth." Add features.

41. Sculptured angels. Tools needed are white and colored construction paper, gold foil paper, scissors, ruler, sharp pencil, stapler, glue, and a large blunt needle. Use the needle to score the paper before folding. Experiment with varied paper folds from books on paper sculpture.

42. Gold-bearded Santa. Expand a wire pan cleaner around wrapped box. Stretch a space for face. Add features with marking pen. Cotton pompon nose is glued on. Gay nineties package has cutout pieces of construction or wrapping paper glued to plain paper-wrapped box. To make sleigh, cover gift box with paper. Glue narrow strips of white paper to bottom of box. Line with gold paper ribbon extending from top of package.

43. Angel mobile uses same tools as paper sculpture angels above. String figures on heavy thread for hanging. Refer to a paper-sculpture book, or take scissors and cut an angel design for yourself.



44. Alphabet blocks. Cut squares of wood about one inch thick; sand before applying coat of clear sealer. Cut letters from tissue paper. Coat blocks with clear spray then position letters; spray again.

45. Wheel toys. Use scraps of pine. For wheels, slice circles from dowels, broom handles; or use checkers. Use ¼-inch dowel for axles. Dr holes through car with 5/16-in drill for axles. Drill ¼-inch hole wheels. Sand and paint befo assembling. Use washers betwe wheels and car; glue wheels ends of axles.

46. Wooden block houses. Saw variety of house shapes, varying size from 2½ to 6 inches tall. Sa and coat with clear sealer. De orate with doors, windows, hedg fences, cut from colored tissue painted on. Finish with clear la quer or plastic varnish.

47. Candleholder. Bore hole in t of old table leg deep enough hold taper. Remove old finish wi paint remover. Sand and unde coat then enamel in colors desire

48. Candlestick. For intricate d signs on this candleholder that w once part of a stair railing, u small brush and colored enam Dots, lines, scallops, flowers, leav and stars are used here.

49. Swing. Cut circle of ¾-in plywood. Size could range from to 10 inches in diameter, depen ing upon size of child using swin Bore a half-inch hole in cent Sand carefully. Paint with und coat to seal wood. Confetti patte is put on with brush and color enamel. String with nylon or oth smooth rope. Tie knot in end rope, wrapping cut ends with ta or wire to avoid fraying.

50. After assembling the panels the doll house, add the decorati details. Make the finials on the ro peaks from wooden beads a short pieces of ⅛-inch dowel ro Cut the roof-top trim from wood illustration board. You can al make the dormer scallops and b ten strips for the front of the hou from illustration board, or woo stained dark brown. Light where you least expect it

Christmas tree lights can be used all year round. Here, small Italian lights are used to highlight the reflections in an antique mirror. The lights are strung around the frame and fastened with tape—an easy and quick way to decorate a window, doorway, or picture.

Photographs: Hopkins

Completely concealed lights brighten a collection of statuettes on display in a cabinet. Small fluorescent bulbs, the kind used in store display cases, create the "flooded with light" effect. The lights are secured with tape; cords lead out the back of the cabinet.

"This will amuse you. The radio is playing 'Winter Wonderland'."

The fact that people of good will are capable of bad decisions is illustrated by the Christmas necktie.

Old Mr. Dennison, ever cautious and conservative, is complaining because his old tire chains do not fit his new snow tires.

When our beat-up old A.K. (for Alley Kat) kept tracking up the kitchen floor with mud after the fall rains, we decided to get rid of him. But he brought in a homeless little kitten and licked it so lovingly that we changed our minds.

The newspaper "lovelorn" columnists perform their best service by advising their readers to go find somebody who can give them some good advice.

A good many salesmen can make a fairy tale sound like the truth, but our boss says the aim of our company is to make the truth sound like a fairy tale and then prove that it isn't.

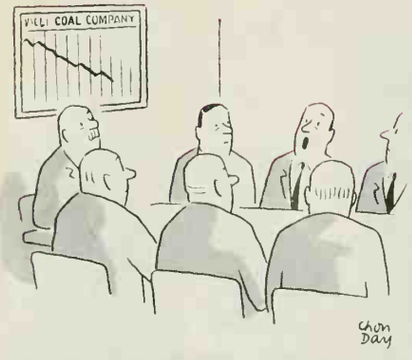
Martin Daly points out that the people most likely to have a Merry Christmas this year are those who heeded his admonition to have a Happy New Year last year.



"Suppose we try to get kids to put bigger eyes in their snowmen!"

Peggy Bayless, who has the courage to express unpopular convictions, is genuinely sorry that she does not happen to have any.

Grandpa Hillis recalls that as a boy he used to like to stick his head out the window of a train and watch the world rush toward him, but now he finds it more relaxing to ride backwards and watch the world float past and away.

Experience has taught me that it takes half as much time to do a thing right as it takes to explain why I did it wrong.

The trouble with a private quarrel is that it is usually fought in public.

Mrs. Anderson, our dowager friend, becomes furious with those women who are always trying to make a match for Mr. Bell, our bachelor friend. She says they are recklessly endangering one of society's most valuable institutions—the presentable extra man.

After working at the bank for years, Mr. Benson says he can always spot the fellow who comes in to put more money in his savings account by the worried look on his face.

Every fourth Friday, Christine tapes a penny to every window sash in our house. The kids enter spirited window-washing competition on Saturday morning—one cent per pane.

"All I hope," says Mrs. Gullick, mother of five fine sons, "is that the boy I am expecting will be a girl."

Bill Norman pretends to enjoy eating all of his vegetables in order to encourage his 5-year-old to eat all of his, but all he has taught the boy is to eat all of his vegetables to make sure that daddy chokes down every last mouthful of his, too.

The dangerous thing about inflation i that you feel so good while you are ex ploding.

"Mother says if I want a boy to like me I have to talk about subjects he's interested in," our Rosie told her high-school librarian "Do you have any books on eating?"

On his 20th wedding anniversary, Fre Randolph said that if he had to do it al over again, he couldn't have been chose by a better woman.

Christmas is a time when most of u pause to reflect that we are too busy t pause and reflect.

Winter always seems to bring a flurry c letters from friends in warmer parts of th country telling me to give up "that beastl climate" I live in, and come dwell amon orange trees where the sun nearly alway shines. Such letters do paint in glowing col ors, it's true, and I won't deny I get strong ly tempted during our periodic blizzards

But it isn't very cold today—maybe 2 degrees—and I can see sunlight slantin down through the few rusty-looking leave remaining on our big oak out front. A fe minutes ago, Judy and young Burt cam in from a hike through the woods dow along Turnbull's Creek. Their faces wer shining from the exercise and brisk air, an as they raced each other to the kitchen fo a Christmas cooky hot out of Christine' oven, they reminded me of the pionee children I've seen in paintings, stridin alongside covered wagons heading West

And as I realized that—like those pio neers—they're strong and self-reliant, felt a sudden welcome warmth to see a ne generation coming along so sound in min and body.
